

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in press a new book by Henry James, entitled "The Real Thing, and other stories."

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish shortly a little book entitled "Hiram Golf's Religion, or, shoemaker by the grace of God," written by a prominent clergyman of New York.

HOVENDON Co. will publish on January 14 a new novel by "The Duchess," entitled "Nora Crelna." They have just ready a cheap edition of "An Englishman in Paris."

GINN & Co. have in press "Mensuration," by Wm. S. Hall, C.E., E.M., M.S., Adjunct Professor in Lafayette College. This work is designed to meet the requirements of an undergraduate college course, and presupposes an elementary knowledge of algebra, geometry and trigonometry.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. will publish the following novels and short stories this month: "The Dugdale Millions," by W. C. Hudson; "List, Ye Landsmen," by W. Clark Russell; "A Blot of Ink," from the French of Rene Bazan, by "Q;" "An Old Beau, and other stories," by John S. Wood; "Novel Notes," by Jerome K. Jerome; and "Nurse Elisa," by George Manville Fenn.

TAIT, SONS & Co. announce three new books in their special line of light reading: "A Republic Without a President," the title story of a volume of short tales, by Herbert D. Ward; "Thumb-Nail Sketches," by C. Haddon Chambers, who describes many of the peculiar phases of Australian life; and "A Shock to Society," a striking novel of English life, by Florence Warden, author of "The House on the Marsh."

D. APPLETON & Co. have in press a cheap edition of "An Englishman in Paris," which, notwithstanding that it has been deprived of the authority it was supposed to possess, has still sufficient merit to make it exceedingly interesting reading. They also announce a "Hand-Book of Military Signalling," by Capt. Albert Gallup, Signal Officer, First Brigade, National Guard, N. Y.; "In the Suntime of Her Youth," by Beatrice Whitby, No. 109 in their Town and Country Library; and new editions of Prof. E. Ray Lankester's "History of Creation," and "Appleton's Hand-Book of Winter Resorts," revised to date.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce for early publication two new books, each of special interest. One is "Ivar the Viking," a series of pictures of Viking life in the third and fourth centuries, by Paul B. Du Chaillu, the author of "The Viking Age," etc. The other is a Japanese play in four acts, "Adzuma, or, the Japanese wife," by Sir Edwin Arnold, the author of "Japonica," "The Light of Asia," etc. The play tells, in dramatic form and with faithful adherence to Japanese manners, a popular mediæval story of feminine virtue. Charles Scribner's Sons' newest imported books are three volumes in The International Humour Series, and W. Blissard's interesting study of "The Ethic of Usury and Interest." Mr. Blissard, who is already known as the author of "The Socialism of Christianity," calls his book "A Study in Inorganic Socialism," and sets himself to inquire into the survival of usury in the capital and interest of modern business enterprises. Italy, Germany and France are the countries so far represented in the International Humour Series. W. H. Dircks is editor of the series, but each volume has a separate compiler. The extracts representing "The Humour of Italy" are selected and translated by A. Werner; Boccaccio, Machiavelli, Castiglione, Ariosto, Leopardi, Paolo Ferrari are among the writers represented. The volume of German humor is compiled by Hans Müller-Casenov, and includes extracts from Richter, Zachokke, Heine, Reuer, Julius Stinde and J. v. Scheffel. Amongst the French writers whom Elizabeth Lee has chosen to represent "The Humour of France" are Fableaux, Rabelais, Villon, Molière, La Fontaine Lesage, Béranger, Gautier, "Gyp," Maupassant and Catulle Mendez. Each volume contains also an introduction, biographical index, and collections of proverbs, aphorisms, witticisms, etc. Another new book just imported by the Scribners is Gerald P. Moriarty's excellent study of "Dean Swift and His Writings," illustrated with a number of fine portraits.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

McClellan, Mrs. G. ["Harford Flemming," pseud.] Broken chords crossed by the echo of a false note. Phil., J. B. Lipincott Co., 1893. c. 873 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A pretty, silly little girl, the daughter of a clergyman, runs away from home and appears as an actress. Two men become infatuated with her. She marries one to save herself from disgrace, and a few months later his death is announced. The other loves another woman, who breaks the engagement on learning his secret, and sends him to make reparation for the wrong he has done. His marriage to the actress, who keeps her former matrimonial venture a secret, leads to many complications and much unhappiness, but the story is worked out to a satisfactory conclusion. A mill village in one of the southern states is the scene.

Mann, Mary E. In summer shade: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1892 [1893.] c. 8+243 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 729.) pap., 50 c.

Love with its attending misunderstandings is the theme. In a once handsome English country home, but now neglected and poverty-stricken, the heroine is found. In spite of the fact that Mary Burne's father had degraded his family name by marrying a gypsy Mary is a noble, beautiful woman. Her beauty is the chief cause of her troubles, as she is loved by men in entirely opposite classes of life, whose jealousy and unreasonableness afford material for many incidents. The other members of the Burne family are amusingly and graphically described.

*Massachusetts. The insolvent laws, with notes of decisions, by Jos. Cutler; ed. with additional notes by Gorham D. Williams. 5th ed., incl. the legislation of 1892 and cases in v. 154 of the Mass. reports. Bost., G. B. Reed, 1892. c. 804 p. O. shp., $3.50.

Mead, Rev. H. B. The wonderful counselor: all the recorded sayings of the Lord Jesus chronologically arranged on a plan for easy memorizing in single passages, one for each day in the year; with brief notes, connecting words and phrases; with an introd. by Francis E. Clark, D.D. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1892.] c. 14+264 p. T. ol., 50 c.

The chronological arrangement of three hundred and sixty-five scriptural selections from the New Testament is, according to their compiler, that followed in Robinson's harmony, Riddle's edition.

*Michigan. Rules of practice of the supreme courts, and law and chancery rules of the circuit courts; with the notes by Hoyt Post contained in the 4th rev. ed. of 1884, and additional notes to date by T. W. Browne: to which are added the special rules adopted by the superior court of

*Michigan. Supreme ct. Reports from Jan. 20 to March 18, 1892; W: D. Fuller, st. rep. V. 90. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1892. c. 59+758 p. O. shp., $3.50.

*Morrow, Prince A., M.D., ed. A system of genito-urinary diseases. syphilology and dermatology. In 8 v. V. 1, Genito-urinary diseases. N. Y., Appleton, 1892. il. 8', subs., [for complete work,] $18.

Müller-Casenove, Hans. The humor of Germany; selected and tr., with introd. and biographical index, by Hans Müller-Casenove; il. by C. E. Brock. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 10+487 p. il. D. (International humor ser.) cl., $1.25.

Beginning with "The poet complains of unreasonable friends," by Antonio Pucci (1875), specimen pieces in prose and poetry are given of Italian humorous writers from the 14th century to the present time, thirty writers being represented by seventy selections. The volume is delightful reading and is notably neat and attractive in appearance, with many vignette illustrations. The biographical index to writers is very full and useful. There are interesting chapters of epigrams, proverbs, folk-lore and traditional anecdotes, and one on newspaper humor.

*Nebraska. Supreme ct. Reports of cases, Sept. term, 1891-Jan. term, 1892. V. 83. D. A. Campbell, off. rep. Lincoln, State Journal Co., 1892. c. 87+915 p. O. shp., $3.

*Newell, Martin L. A treatise on the action of ejectment and concurrent remedies for the recovery of the possession of real property. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1892. c. 117+935 p. O. shp., $6.

- *Northwestern reporter, v. 52; cont. all the decisions of the supreme courts of Minn., Wis., Iowa, Mich., Neb., No. Dak., So. Dak. Permanent ed. May 28-Oct. 15, 1892; with table of northwestern cases in which rehearings have been denied; with tables of northwestern cases published in v. 52, Iowa reports; 89, Mich. reports; 32, Neb. reports; 80 and 81, Wis. reports. A table of statutes cited and construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1892. c. 16+1255 p. O. (National reporter system, state ser.) shp., $3.50.
- Parker, Margaret K. The old house at Four Corners. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1892.] c. 91. 4-32 p. il. D. pap., 35 c.
- The four corners of a Connecticut village is the site of a quaint old homestead, pictured and described with a bit of its quaint family history for young readers.
- *Pennsylvania. Supreme ct. Reports, v. 150; by Ja. Monaghan, st. rep.; cont. cases decided at Jan., May, July and Oct. terms, 1892. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1892. c. 25+700 p. O. shp., $3.50.
- Porter, Delia Lyman. The blues cure, and other stories. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1892.] c. 18 p. T. cl., 40 c.
- Five short stories with evident moral purpose are entitled The blues cure; Pull out the plug; Hospital for broken resolutions; The measuring-rod; My possible self.
- Sheldon, Mrs. M. French, ["Bébé Bwana," pseud.] Sultan to sultan: adventures among the Masai and other tribes of East Africa. Bost., Arena Publishing Co., 1892 [1893.] c. 6+485 p. por. il. S. cl., $5.
- Mrs. French-Sheldon is distinguished as the first woman who has led a caravan through Africa, entering from the east coast and penetrating as far as the Kilimanjaro district, the scene of the late Masai raids. Armed with a passport from the Sultan of Zanzibar, she left Mombasa April 4, 1891, with her porters on her journey of adventure. Her tact and intelligence made her entire journey one of triumph. Everywhere she met with kindness and consideration, and left with each tribe articles of our civilized life, with the knowledge of using them, which evoked enthusiastic gratitude. Her personal adventures and her descriptions of the tribes, their habits, etc., are richly interesting. The volume is generously illustrated with pictures made by her own kodak.
- *Smith, Rev. Francis. The canary, its varieties, management and breeding. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1892. 154 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.

- Stokes, G. T., D.D. The Acts of the Apostles. In 2 v. V. 2. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1892. 18+480 p. O. (Expositor's Bible, new [5th] ser.) cl., $1.50.
- See notice of first volume in "Weekly Record," P. W., Oct. 10, 1891, [1892.] The latter portion of the Book of the Acts is discussed more briefly than its earlier chapters. These cover a period of upwards of thirty years, while the latter chapters discuss the work of Paul during a comparatively brief period. The author's object is exposition, and the supply of material suitable for expository purposes, and he avoids the endless theories supplied by German ingenuity. The two volumes offer the author's conception of the manner in which the Church of God was founded upon earth.
- *Stone, S. J. The knight of intercession, and other poems, by S. J. Stone. 7th ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892. 12°, cl., $2.

PICK-UPS.

A FIN DE SIÈCLE JOKE. A correspondent of the New York Sun inquires where he may be able to obtain a certain book in reply to which
store; sometimes you'll find one that sells books."

"THERE was a man named Strauss, a member of the Consistorial Court at Berlin, and a very strict and learned Protestant; he was the author of several works: 'The Baptism in Jordan,' 'Helon's [sic] Pilgrimage to Jerusalem,' etc. In passing through Munich he put up at one of the hotels, and at once wrote his name in the visitors' book. He had hardly reached his room when the chambermaid appeared, and rushing towards him, exclaimed, 'What delight, Herr Strauss, to see you here! Your waltzes are the finest in the world.' The member of the Consistorial Court disclaimed the compliments showered upon him somewhat stiffly. A few minutes after in burst an enthusiastic youth, ejaculating, 'Oh! I am indeed happy in being thus permitted to pay my respects to the author of the "Leben Jesu."' Herr Strauss had again to defend himself with energy from the imputation of identity with so celebrated a personality, and used afterward to say to his friends, 'I need not boast of my popu-

AMERICAN BOOKS FOR THE COLUMBUS YEAR.

We trust it is not too late to call the attention of our publishers to the opportunities presented by the Columbus year, and the certainty of the large numbers of foreigners it will bring as visitors to our shores, for securing intelligent and liberal buyers of books, souvenirs and notions of a distinctively American character. This year of all others should put a premium on home talent. Authors, printers and binders should be encouraged to produce their very best, and any new work showing originality, imagination and character born of our American institutions, manners, customs, history and national life should be preferred and awarded a setting that will make it an irresistible temptation to our European guests.

Things are done at short notice in America, and, with the knowledge and means at the command of the majority of our publishing houses, there is still time enough in which to produce meritorious works of a strictly American character. Even if they have already planned the year's books without giving sufficient thought to the great possibilities of the hour, we venture to say that it would pay the American publishers in the end, if only through the reputation gained—and we believe there would be an immediate money return—if they were to set aside as far as practicable their other material and put American thought and American workmanship as exclusively as possible before the thousands from foreign countries who are expected to visit the Columbian Exhibition.

Englishmen will hardly care to buy American reprints of their favorite authors, nor will Germans, Frenchmen, Spaniards and Italians spend money to secure indifferent or poor translations of the writers of their several countries; but they might easily be interested in work distinctively characteristic of our country. We recall a request from a young foreigner, who paid this country a flying visit last year, for a list of good American books that he could take home with him as gifts. He intimated that he was able to buy jewelry, bric-à-brac and keepsakes more conveniently at home. What he wanted was something specially American, preferably something descriptive of American life in the several sections of the country he had visited, and so he bought American novels enough to make the bookseller to whom we recommended him wish that the range from which to choose had been greater.

If every publisher would put his money and his time into one or two representative American books or souvenirs, and push them circumspectly and persistently through the book trade of the cities, towns and summer resorts sure to be visited by sight-seeing Europeans (and our own country cousins for that matter) during this Columbian year he might have the satisfaction, if nothing more, of having contributed his share towards making the publications of the United States in 1893 a lasting monument to the talents of American authors and the patriotism and good judgment of American bookmakers.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT LAW.

"It would seem," says the Ottawa correspondent of the New York Times, under date of December 29, "from a passage in one of the interviews given to the press by John W. Foster, United States Secretary of State, that a misunderstanding exists in the United States as to the recent action of Canada on the copyright question.

"An assurance seems to have been given on behalf of Her Majesty's Government to the American Minister at London that if the American copyright act were made available to British authors American authors would thereby become entitled to register for copyright in the colonies as well as in Great Britain.

"This statement of the law is not strictly correct, so far as the colonies are concerned. In Canada, for example, the Copyright act only allows that privilege to authors in foreign countries having a treaty on the subject of copyright with Great Britain, and it is therefore not in the power of the Canadian Government to allow registration to American authors, notwithstanding the assurance to the contrary given by the British Government.

"The Canadian Government did nothing more than to state the condition of the Canadian law on the subject. That law has been in force for seventeen years, not only with the express approval of the British Government, but by virtue of an Imperial statute which was passed to give it effect.

"If the Canadian Government had issued copyright according to the assurances of the British Ministry it would have been found to have been worthless. The British authorities maintain that Canada has no power to amend its Copyright act without the sanction of the British Parliament."

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT'S HISTORICAL PAPERS.

THE valuable historical papers owned by the United States Government and preserved in the State Department at Washington are said by the Washington Post to be virtually under the control of a New England literary clique of which Henry Cabot Lodge and Henry Adams are the ring-leaders, and are inaccessible, except to a small coterie of New England historical writers. Mr. Lodge has emphatically denied the charge, which he says has been made by a personal enemy for political effect. Worthington C. Ford, whose name has also been connected with this story, was interviewed by a Brooklyn Eagle reporter at his home and offered the following explanation of the charge, which, he says, has been made off and on for nearly twelve years. He traces its origin to William Henry Smith, the head of the Western Associated Press. While Mr. Frelinghuysen was Secretary of State Mr. Smith requested to be supplied with a list of all historical manuscripts in the State Department which had not already been printed. The rules of the department at the time forbade even the examination of manuscripts by an outsider, and the only persons who had been granted any privileges up to that date were Sparks, Bancroft, and Edward Everett Hale. The documents were much worn, badly arranged, and there was as yet no index or calendar to serve as a guide to them. Mr. Bayard began to calendar the papers when he took office, and thus far calendars of Monroe, Jefferson and Madison papers have been prepared. Mr. Smith was told if he would designate what special documents he wanted, copies would be sent to him. He offered to send an irresponsible clerk to do this work, and Mr. Frelinghuysen very properly refused. During the third year of Bayard's administration Mr. Smith renewed his request and was again refused. Since then he has repeated this demand every year and has claimed that there was a literary ring and also that clerks were stealing manuscripts wholesale. Mr. Ford was certain that if Mr. Smith would observe the necessary rules he could obtain anything he wished. He feared that such uncalled-for attacks might lead to a reversal of the liberal policy of the government, which is working steadily to put the public in possession of full calendars of these historical treasures.

BI-CENTENNIAL OF THE INTRODUCTION OF PRINTING INTO NEW YORK.

THE New York Typothetæ and the printing and publishing trades of the city generally have made arrangements to celebrate the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of the art of printing into New York on the 12th of April next, by a dinner at Delmonico's. The first printer to practise his trade in New York City was William Bradford, an Englishman, and as Bradford was appointed Public Printer of New York on April 10, 1693, it was decided to regard that date as the day marking the beginning of printing in New York. On December 29 a meeting was held in the rooms of the Typothetæ, 19 Park Place, and the following named gentlemen, representing various trade interests, were appointed to confer with men in their line of business for the purpose of making the dinner a noteworthy event: Fred H. Leavy, printing inks; C. Frank Boughton, printing presses; W. E. Waters, W. H. Alexander, Robt. Rutter, bookbinders; Wm. A. Harper, publisher; T. J. F. Perkins, paper; Jas. A. Ferguson, electrotypist; John G. Bainbridge, stationer; John W. K. Keller, president Press Club; Oswald Ottendorfer, newspapers. The next meeting of the committee of arrangements will be held January 10.

William Bradford, whom the society will honor as New York's first printer, was born of Quaker parentage in Leicestershire, England, May 20, 1660. He was an apprentice to a Quaker printer, and no doubt received a fair share of the cuffs and kicks bestowed on "printers' devils," but found some compensation for what he suffered by marrying his employer's daughter. He emigrated in 1682 and settled in the spot where Philadelphia was afterwards built. In 1685 he began printing under patronage of the Friends; his first work was the publication of an almanac in 1686—the "Kalendarium Pennsilvaniese." In 1692 Bradford incurred the displeasure of the dominant party in Philadelphia through issuing a pamphlet expressing his sympathy with George Keith, and was imprisoned for libel. After his release he accepted an offer from New York to set up a press in that colony, and on April 10, 1693, he was appointed public printer by Col. Benjamin Fletcher, governor of Pennsylvania and New York, taking up his residence in New York. His first publication in New York, according to the late Dr. George H. Moore,* was a pamphlet describing Col. Fletcher's exploits among the French and Indians in Canada and on the northern frontier of New York. Among the books printed by Bradford were the laws of the colony in 1694, commonly known as "Bradford's Laws, 1694," and the Common Prayer-Book in 1710. In October, 1725, he published the first newspaper in the colony—The New York Gazette. Secretary W. W. Pasko, of the Typothetæ, who has devoted much time to gathering the record of Bradford's career, states that the public printer later became a warden of Trinity Church. He had two sons, the younger of whom, Andrew, made a comfortable fortune as printer and publisher in Philadelphia, where for a time he was a competitor of Benjamin Franklin. William Bradford died in New York, May 23, 1752. He was buried in Trinity Churchyard, and on his tombstone was the following inscription:

"Here lies the Body of Mr. WILLIAM BRADFORD, Printer: who departed this Life May 23, 1752, aged 92 years: He was born in Leicestershire in Old England in 1660: and came over to America in 1682 before the City of Philadelphia was laid out: He was Printer to this Government for upwards of 50 Years: and being quite worn out with Old age and labour: He left this mortal State in the holy Hopes of a blessed Immortality.
Reader, reflect how too you'll quit this Stage:
You'll find but few attain to such an Age
Life's full of Pain: Lo: here's a Place of Rest.
Prepare to meet your GOD: then you are blest.
Here lies also the Body of Elizabeth, Wife to the said William Bradford: who departed this Life June 8, 1731, aged 68 years."

Of late years the old stone crumbled away so as to be almost undecipherable, and some fifteen years ago it was replaced by a new one in exact fac-simile.

OBITUARY.

MARTHA J. LAMB.

MRS. MARTHA J. LAMB, editor of the Magazine of American History, died of pneumonia on Sunday, January 1, in her rooms at the Coleman House, New York City. Mrs. Lamb was born in Plainfield, Mass., in 1829, and was the daughter of Arwin Nash and Lucinda Vinton. She was of English and Huguenot descent and through her grandmother was related to Charles Reade. Her education was thorough, and her knowledge of the English branches and modern languages was remarkable. At an early age she began to write upon historical subjects, and her best work at all times has been in the field she made her specialty.

In 1852 Miss Martha Joanna Reade Nash was married to Charles A. Lamb, of Ohio, and for eight years after resided in Chicago. During this period she almost wholly laid aside her literary labors and threw her energies into philanthropic work, being prime mover in the work which led to the foundation of the Half Orphan Asylum and the Home for the Friendless, two institutions among the most successful charity organizations of Chicago. In 1863 Mrs. Lamb was appointed secretary of the first Sanitary Fair held in that city, and her practical activity made a marked success of this undertaking also. In 1866 she came to New York, and since then has made this her home, and devoted herself industriously to literary work. In the spring of 1883 she became the editor of the Magazine of American History, in which periodical have appeared contributions from all parts of America that have been pronounced by experts to be a fund of rich material for some future historian of America. Mrs. Lamb occupied an enviable position in the estimation of historians, and was elected to membership in twenty-six historical and other learned societies in this country and in Europe. Her most important writings in their order of publication are: "Play School Stories," in four volumes; and "Spicy," a novel in 1874; "History of the City of New York," in two volumes (her best-known work), in 1881; "The Christmas Owl" and "Snow and Sunshine," in 1882; "Wall Street in History," in 1883; and upwards of one hundred articles on historical subjects chiefly connected with United States records. Mrs. Lamb was buried on Wednesday, January 4, from the Madison Square Church, New York City.

PROF. EBEN NORTON HORSFORD, an able writer on scientific subjects, died in Cambridge, Mass., January 1, aged 75 years.

AUGUST LAMMERS, a prominent German journalist and author of "The History of the Development of Free Trade," died in Bremen on December 30.

ALBERT DELPIT, the French author, died in Paris January 4, aged 44 years. Among his novels were "The Companions of the King" and "The Sons of Coralie."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE PARSONS LATHROP are said to be editing this winter the "Annals of the Visitation Order in America."

EMILIE EDWARDS, the young Boston singer, who has been so successful in her literary venture "Love's Temptation," has nearly completed another novel, a pure love-story, entitled "A Royal Heiress," which has already been accepted by a Chicago publisher.

LEON DAUDET, the son of Alphonse Daudet, and husband of Victor Hugo's granddaughter, Jean, who has scored a success with his book "Hoeres," a study of heredity, is now writing another novel, to be called "Le Prophete," which will have for its hero a literary man who founds a new school.

MR. SWINBURNE has written for the Illustrated London News a poem of considerable length, dealing with the well-known incident in the life of Grace Darling. Mr. Swinburne, it may be interesting to recall, comes from the locality associated with Grace Darling's heroism, and was acquainted with her father.

F. HOPKINSON SMITH will soon publish in the Century a story entitled "Alias, Tom Grogan," a study of the labor question from a dramatic point of view. Some time next year he will issue his great work, "Venice and the Islands of the Sea," for which he has made over 50 water-color paintings, which will be reproduced in facsimile, by a new process which has proven successful in the reproduction of color.

D. APPLETON & Co., the publishers of "Joost Avelingh" and "God's Fool" have printed the following note personal to the author: "Maarten Maartens is a Dutch country gentleman living in an old chateau in the wilds of Holland. His neighbors know nothing of his English literary career. To them he is merely one of themselves, only a little more indolent and indifferent to local topics. They cannot understand what he does with his time all day (as he does not shoot), and occasionally, at some social function, a young lady will ask him whether he reads English. He has travelled a good deal, and has lived in France and Germany. It was mere dogged resolve which forced his books into print in English. He chose to write in English so as to have an audience. He sent 'Joost Avelingh' to England from Holland, and all the big houses it was sent to refused it. Then he published it at his own expense."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will issue shortly with the author's sanction Charles Wagner's "La Jeunesse," which attracted considerable attention in France. The translation will be entitled "Youth."

JUDGE TRUAX, of the Supreme Court, has vacated the order upon which Telemaque T. Timayenis was arrested in a suit brought by Peter N. Ramsey, arising out of difficulties connected with the Minerva Publishing Company.

CHARLES E. HOPKINS, upon his return from Europe on the 15th inst., will assume charge of the New York office and salesroom (506 Broadway), of Fr. Bergner & Co., of Baltimore, Md. He will have associated with him Charles Engelman.

BRENTANO's publishing department has engaged the services of Mr. Clarence A. Caldwell as traveller. This gentleman, who has a large acquaintance throughout the country, is the brother of Burt Caldwell of Altamusa, and was formerly with Neill, of Philadelphia.

CHARLES P. SOMERBY, 28 Lafayette Place, N. Y., announces the eighth edition of Helen Gardener's "Pushed by Unseen Hands," and a new edition of a "A Thoughtless Yes," by the same author. Both of these interesting volumes are now issued in the Commonwealth Library.

THE WAVERLY COMPANY, of New York, announce for early publication "The Son," by Paul Bourget, of whom Zola writes that with the exception of Huysmans and De Maupassant, "he is the only original writer among the newer school of French novelists." "The Son" is said to be a powerful novel in analysis.

A. M. THAYER & Co. will issue shortly "The Story of Our Post Office," by Marshall Cushing, private secretary to Postmaster-General Wanamaker. It will describe this great government department in all its phases, devoting chapters to the transportation of the mails, the railway mail service, post-office work in general, the letter-carriers and their organizations, mail robberies, methods of lottery companies and "green goods" swindlers, the details of routine work, leading postmasters, etc., etc., and will conclude with a biographical sketch of Mr. Wanamaker. The volume, which is to contain upwards of 1000 pages and nearly 500 illustrations, will be sold by subscription.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation the following: "A Manual of Natural Theology," by Professor George P. Fisher, which is in the nature of a companion volume to his very successful "Manual of Christian Evidences;" in the American History Series, Professor Sloane's "French War and the Revolution;" and two new books by Professor Charles A. Briggs, "Higher Criticism and the Hexateuch" and, in paper covers, "The Defence of Dr. Briggs Before the Presbytery of New York." Among the books on the Scribners' list, the publication of which has been delayed until this month, are Dr. Henry M. Field's "Story of the Atlantic Telegraph," which is practically a new book; John C. Ropes' "Campaign of Waterloo" and the accompanying "Atlas;" and George B. Grinnell's two volumes of Indian folk-lore, "Blackfoot Lodge Tales" and "Pawnee Hero Stories and Folk Tales."

BOOKSELLERS and stationery men are to be specially looked after while visiting the World's Fair this year. Mr. Charles A. Sibley, well known as manager for Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, and Mr. D. A. Allen, a well and favorably known name to bookmen, are president and secretary and treasurer respectively of the Windsor Beach Hotel Company, organized to construct a large building on the lake front south of the Exposition grounds, exclusively for the benefit of the booksellers and stationers visiting the Fair. In the advertisement of this hotel in this issue of the WEEKLY will be found pointed out the special need and details of such provision for the great traffic expected during the months when all Chicago's accommodations will be taxed to the utmost. The hotel agrees to furnish lodging at the rate of $1 per day, and will be connected with a restaurant in which charges will be kept moderate and satisfactory meals guaranteed. The hotel is located at the corner of Bond Avenue and Seventy-fourth Street, south of the Exhibition grounds. The steam and electric cars will pass the hotel and place visitors at the Fair gates in about five minutes, at a cost of only five cents. The standing of Messrs. Sibley and Allen is sufficient guarantee that promises made will be kept, and that booksellers and stationers will be specially looked after on the most favorable terms possible.

FOREIGN NOTES.

R. D. BLACKMORE's new story, "Perlycross," the scene of which is laid in the West of England, will be published in book form in the fall of 1893 by Sampson Low, Marston & Co., who have arranged with Macmillan & Co. for its issue in England in serial form in Macmillan's Magazine, and with Harper & Brothers of New York for the American book-form copyright. Arrangements have not yet been completed for its serial publication in the United States.

BERNARD QUARITCH has just published facsimile reprints of a photo-lithograph of the Latin translation of Columbus' letters to Sanxis, treasurer of Aragon, in which Columbus gives an account of his discoveries. Mr. Quaritch has also published a reproduction of Caxton's advertisement of the Salisbury Commemoration Services which was printed about 1477. Only two copies of this broadside are known to exist. These facsimiles are printed with introductory notes by Mr. Nicholson, librarian of the Bodleian.

HENRY STEVENS & SON, London, announce that they will have ready early this year, for private subscription only, not for publication, as the Stevens' contribution to the literature of the fourth centenary of the discovery of America, a facsimile reprint of the original Spanish edition, together with a literal translation into the English language, of "The New Laws of the Indies, for the good treatment and preservation of the Indians, promulgated by the Emperor Charles the Fifth, 1542-1543," to which is prefixed an historical introduction by the late Henry Stevens of Vermont, and Fred. W. Lucas. The edition consists of only 13 copies on the finest vellum at £26 5s. each, and 75 copies on the finest handmade paper at £10 10s. each.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—An explosion of natural gas on the 4th inst. wrecked the lower part of the printing establishment of Donohue & Henneberry on Dearborn Street.

CINCINNATI, O.—B. C. Bancroft, for the past 16 years connected with the Chain & Hardy Co., of Denver, Col., has recently removed to Cincinnati, to take charge of the merchandise department of the Western Methodist Book Concern, in place of Mr. H. C. Dickhaut, who has just been appointed special German agent for the concern.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—We regret to note that fire on the morning of December 30 destroyed the entire stock of Smith & Butterfield, booksellers and stationers. They have promptly secured a store opposite their old quarters and will be pleased to receive catalogues and price-lists from publishers and manufacturers of stationery, novelties, etc. They also desire that those having accounts with them mail duplicate invoices of all goods billed since December 1 as soon as possible, as those sent with the goods have been lost.

HUTCHINSON, KANSAS.—Coburn & De Tar, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership, F. A. Coburn retiring. John A. De Tar will continue the business under his own name.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry S. Allen (13 Astor Place, N. Y.), formerly of the firm of Leavitt & Allen Bros. and Anderson & Allen, and later in business for himself as publisher of subscription-books, has disposed of his business and is open for an engagement.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers) to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

An Englishman in Paris:

NOTES AND RECOLLECTIONS. Two volumes in one. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"A work of extraordinary interest. . . . In their present form these remarkable reminiscences constitute a unique repository of authentic anecdotes, entertaining aperçus of characters, and curious disclosures."—London Telegraph.

"A delightful book about the Paris of the immediate past; one of the liveliest it has ever been our good fortune to read. It is all well-informed gossip about famous men, women and events, from cover to cover."—London Daily News.

Nora Creina.

The Countess Pharamond.

By "RITA," author of "The Doctor's Secret," "The Vagabond Lover," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Ever since Rita published her first novel "Sheba," and hinted at its close that there would be a sequel to the story, there has been a wide-spread, expressed desire for the work. This is supplied in "The Countess Pharamond," and the work fully sustains the interest aroused in the preceding volume.

The Tower of Taddeo.

By OUIDA, author of "Syrila," "Under Two Flags," "Moths," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"Ouida's new novel is thoroughly readable, and not lacking in the author's distinctive style. Its scene is laid in Florence, and its romance is calculated particularly to please book-lovers. The fate of Sir Checchi is a telling episode narrated with fine dramatic effect."—Philadelphia Press.

Esther Vanhomrigh.

By MARGARET L. Woods, author of "A Village Tragedy," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"'Esther Vanhomrigh' is a rare novel, for it turns one directly to history to learn just how broad is the actual basis for the data on which it is founded. . . . Thackeray might have been proud to sign his name to the dramatic tale of 'Esther Vanhomrigh.'"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

For the Sake of the Family.

By MAY CROMMELIN, author of "Goblin Gold," "The Freaks of Lady Fortune," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER

The "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," begun as a monthly supplement to The Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly, in an enlarged form, is now issued as an annual volume.

The volumes, beginning with that for 1890, contain a complete index in one alphabet to the magazine articles for the year, arranged on the plan of the original Poole volumes, with a direct reference to the date of issue. It indexes ninety-nine of the leading magazines (printed in the English language) of the United States and England.

The new volume, covering 1892, is planned to contain also an extension of the material of the "A. L. A. Index," so that it will be a first supplement to that important work.

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

Tait, Sons & Co.'s New Fiction.

A Republic Without a President

By HERBERT D. WARD, author of "The Master of the Magicians," "The New Senior at Andover." 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"A Republic Without a President" is the title story of a volume which illustrates with particular briskness the crisp and vigorous style of Mr. Herbert D. Ward. The final story in the volume entitled "Colonel Oddmenton" is a sequel to "A Republic Without a President" and as such makes a most pleasing finale to an enjoyable book. The work will undoubtedly be received with pleasure not only for the peculiarity of its title, but for the merit of the subject matter as well.

Thumb-Nail Sketches

OF AUSTRALIAN LIFE. By C. HADDON CHAMBERS. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

It is only within the last few years that Australia has become the field for the most entertaining line of fiction. In the varied character of these sketches by C. Haddon Chambers the peculiar phases of the life in Australia are made wondrously clear. He does not confine himself entirely to the island, but relates some of the most interesting anecdotes pertaining to the journey there and back.

A Shock to Society.

By FLORENCE WARDEN, author of "The House on the Marsh," "Ralph Ryder of Brent," etc. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

Few novelists among the women writers of England have reached the enviable position occupied by Florence Warden. In "A Shock to Society" she has written with admirable vivacity, subordinating analysis to movement, but drawing, notwithstanding, some very life-like portraits which are framed in striking scenes.

The Dawn of Italian Independence:

Italy from the Congress of Vienna, 1814, to the Fall of Venice, 1849. By WILLIAM R. THAYER. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $4.00.

Mr. Thayer has qualified himself for writing this work by long study, under favorable conditions ; and it is peculiarly welcome as covering an important period in Italian history which has hitherto been inadequately treated. The great interest of the subjects treated, the full knowledge, vigor and literary skill shown, and the fresh power and capacity for large national development in the Italy of to-day, lend special value and attraction to Mr. Thayer's work.

The Interpretation of Nature.

CONTENTS ; The Interpretation of Nature ; Critical Points in the Continuity of Natural Phenomena ; The Place of Organic Life in Nature ; The March of the Generations ; The Bond of the Generations ; The Natural History of Sympathy ; The Immortality of the Soul from the Point of View of Natural Science.

In these seven very interesting chapters Professor Shaler discusses several important questions related to both natural history and theology. Writing from unusually full scientific knowledge, with a noble candor and earnest dignity, he interprets Nature in a large and high way, and affords an admirable example of the temper and method in which both theology and science may most profitably be studied.

The American Library Association Index.

Susy.

By BRET HARTE. 16mo, $1.25.

Mr. Harte's readers and admirers will be glad to pursue, in this latest book by him, the adventures and experiences of a young lady who is already known to them as the heroine of his story, "A Walf of the Plains."

American Marine.

The Shipping Question in History and Politics. By WILLIAM W. BATES, Late U. S. Commissioner of Navigation ; author of "Rules for the Construction and Classification of Vessels." 1 vol., 8vo, $4.00.

In this work Mr. Bates is confident that he makes a contribution of singular value to the proper understanding of a subject of great national importance.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN & Co. have ready "In the Key of Blue," a volume of essays by John Addington Symonds; "A Paradise of English Poetry," compiled by H. C. Beeching; a new and enlarged edition of William Winter's poems, "Wanderers;" "Round London," by Montagu Williams; and a new book by Charlotte M. Yonge, entitled, "An Old Woman's Outlook." They also announce "Drawing and Engraving," an exposition of the principles of the art, by Philip Gilbert Hamerton; "Gothic Architecture," by Edouard Corroyer; "Pioneers of Science," by Oliver Lodge; and "The Visible Universe," by J. Ellard Gane.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. announce "The Loyalty of Langstreth," by John R. V. Gilliat, which is described as "a vivid picture of life in the 'smart' set of New York, London, Paris and Newport." They have just ready "The Brides of the Tiger," by W. H. Babcock, a story of the early days of the colony of Virginia and of the methods of supplying wives to the planters of that community. They have in press: "My Jean," by Patience Stapleton, author of "Kady," "Babe Murphy," etc.; "An Odd Situation," by Stanley Waterloo, author of "A Man and a Woman;" and "The Man from Wall Street," by St. George Rathborne, author of "Dr. Jack."

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co., in association with Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., of London, will shortly publish "Under King Constantine," a volume of poems from a new poet, whose identity is not disclosed. It contains three idylls, "Sanneur," "Kathanal" and "Christalan," all of the post-Arthurian days of English chivalry, to which Sir Thomas Mallory gives clue. "Christalan" is the pathetic tale of a knightly lad, yearning and living to write the motto "Valiant and true" on his shield of knighthood. Though crippled just as he has reached the age of vigil, he wins the accolade before dying by saving King Constantine's life. "Sanneur" and "Kathanal" have for their stories the motive of love rising and overcoming carnal passion, and thus becoming the supreme love of the soul. Whether the poet is English or American, man or woman, is yet to be learned by the public.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 21st an important work of history, "The Dawn of Italian Independence" in which Mr. Wm. R. Thayer, of Cambridge, who has lived for some time in Italy, and is especially qualified to write about that country, describes the period of Italian history from the Congress of Vienna in 1814 to the fall of Venice in 1849. The greatly increased interest in all matters relating to Italy will lend a special interest to this work. At the same time they will publish a book of no little value on the "Interpretation of Nature," by Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, who writes from the standpoint of science, and yet in a way to show the very marked similarities in nature and in the spiritual world. It is a book which will be found intended to be helpful to those who labor under the impression that in some way there is a conflict between nature and religion. The tone of the book is admirable, and the illustrations drawn from Prof. Shaler's large scientific study are of very great interest. The American Library Association Index, promised for the same day, is a work of similar value to "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature." The volume furnishes a guide to a vast mass of essays, reports and proceedings, which are by this means made accessible to readers and writers who are often at a loss to know how to find certain special articles out of the vast mass of that kind of literature. A new story by Bret Harte, entitled "Susy" and virtually a sequel to "A Waif of the Plains," will be published at the same time; also a book entitled "The American Marine: the shipping question in history and politics," by Wm. W. Bates, who has for fifty years been connected with shipping and navigation, and who is conceded to have a great deal of information with regard to the subject, though, perhaps, not all will accept his theories. A new issue in the Riverside Literature Series, including the two most important orations of Daniel Webster, that on Bunker Hill Monument and that on Adams and Jefferson.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (O. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: no cm.); S. (16mo: 17 1/4 cm.); T. (8mo: 15 cm.); TT. (32mo: 12 1/4 cm.); Po. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., odd., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Alexander, Ja. B. The dynamic theory of life and mind: an attempt to show that all organic beings are both constructed and operated by the dynamic agencies of their respective environments. Minneapolis, Minn., published by the author, Ja. B. Alexander, 128 State st., 1893 [1892.] c. 10+1067 p. O. cl., $2.75.

"It is my endeavor to point out that organisms instead of being hand-made and purposive, are machine-built machines, and operated when built by forces outside of themselves. Especial care has been taken to ascertain the relationship of man to the other animals, and to point out their resemblances and contrasts. Especial attention is called to mental phenomena and the machinery for their production."—Preface. List of authorities cited. Full index.

Babcock, W. H. The brides of the Tiger: a tale of adventure when these colonies were new. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. 4-218 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 28.) pap., 50 c.

The time is about 1819. In accordance with a custom of the day Richard Smith, of Kent, engages as one of the crew of the Tiger, a vessel commissioned by London traders to supply wives to the planters in the colonies. His detailed account of a voyage from England to America includes perilous exploits, humorous incidents, a quaint love-story and some facts in Virginia's colonial history.

Berg, Walter G. Buildings and structures of American railroads: a reference-book for railroad managers, superintendents, master-mechanics, architects and students. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1893. 34+500 p. 4°, cl., $7.50.

Bible. Old Testament. The smaller Cambridge Bible for schools: The book of Judges; with maps, introd. and notes by J. Sutherland Black. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 116 p. 18°, cl., 30 c.

Booth, Mrs. Eliza M. J. Gollan, ["Rita," pseud.] The Countess Pharamond, (a sequel to "Sheba.") N. Y., Hovendon Co., [1893.] c. 91. 3-345 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

When the story opens in Paris the Countess Pharamond, known as Bessie Saxton in "Sheba," is an acknowledged society leader. At one of her receptions the introduction of the Earl of Ameraley, who figured in the former novel as Paul Meredith, the opera singer, revives Australian memories. The renewal of this acquaintance is the indirect cause of a tragedy, and of some of the sensational and sorrowful incidents in Sheba Ormatroyd's romantic love-affair.

Bryant, Edwin E. Reviews in practice and pleading in the form of questions and answers for the use of students of law in the University of Wisconsin. Madison, Democrat Pr. Co., 1892. c. 402 p. S. leatherette, $1.50.

Daniel, C. A. a social vision. Phil., Miller Pub. Co., 2006 N. 29th st., 1892 [1893.] c. 296 p. S. cl., $1.

A plan for the social reform of Philadelphia is offered in the story of "Al," who begins his work of regeneration in Minister st., a narrow lane in the vicinity of Seventh and Lombard sts. His successful efforts in that locality are finally the cause of the people electing him Bishop. In his conception of the part is seen the overthrow of many cherished social and religious institutions of Philadelphia. The time of the story is supposed to be 1850, after Al, with the co-operation of the heroine, Enid Burr, has established a City of Brotherly Love. The localities mentioned are well-known streets mostly in the old city proper.

The Marquis of Chetwynd, formerly the betrothed husband of Sylvia Monk, incurs her displeasure by marrying an unknown girl at St. Kildus. Concealing her hatred of Chetwynd's wife, Sylvia Monk consults an Indian ayah, and the pair concoct a diabolical plot which involves both the life and happiness of Bernice. The counterplotting of Gilbert Monk, Sylvia's stepbrother, however, brings about strange issues, notably the supposed spectral visitation on which the interest depends.

An examination of the causes and effects of crime. In three parts. Pt. 1, "General criminology," has chapters on the evolution of crime; the physical side of the criminal; psychology of criminals; intelligence of criminals; associations of criminals; criminal contagion; criminal hypnotism. Pt. 2, "Special criminology," consists of reviews of individual and personal cases of crime studied by the author in penal and reformatory institutions of America. Pt. 3, "Bibliography of crime," offers an extensive and exhaustive bibliography of the best books and articles in English and foreign languages on this subject. It covers 125 pages. There is also a good subject index.

Farmer, Mrs. Mary. The evolution of an empire: a brief historical sketch of Germany. N. Y., W. Beverley Harison, 1892. c. 4+64 p. D. cl., $1.

The first of a series of brief outline historical sketches in which the author eliminates as much as possible the non-essential facts, presenting to the student a single continuous thread of events which may be easily retained in the memory. In this volume a few vivid strokes portray Germany from the Aryan migrations to William II.

According to the Preface, "the aim is to supply a good critical apparatus for the study of the drama as a work of art and as an historic product." Hence, an introduction which discusses the different aspects of the drama, and notes which offer suggestions for comparative study, with extracts from the best criticisms on the poem. The text is for the most part that of Forman's edition.

Steinbrecher, Alice Werner. Verbal quartettes. N. Y., W. Beverley Harison, 1892 [1893.] c. 4 p. text, cards in a box, Fe., 50 c.

An educational game, played like "authors." Consists of 64 cards, each having upon it four words in French, German and English.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 14, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entry of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereto."—LORD BACON.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

ANOTHER controversy is afoot in England between publisher and author, started by the recent difference of opinion between Mr. Heineman and "Ouida," in which, as usual, everybody seems anxious to take a hand, with the usual result—a large waste of paper and print and no settlement of the question at issue. In this, as in previous similar controversies, both sides are apt to take extreme positions, forgetting that the truth of the matter generally lies between the two. The author, or rather some authors, take it for granted that the publisher gets hold of the biggest and most advantageous part of the handle of the contract, while some publishers—we have reference now only to the present discussion—assume that the authors ought to accept their statements without question. Clearly both of these positions are equally preposterous. Both parties have rights which must be respected, and both are in a position to have these rights clearly defined and secured.

The publisher does not run his establishment as a philanthropic institution, and therefore will endeavor to secure himself in every way possible from suffering loss. He is at liberty to accept or reject manuscripts from whomever presents them for his consideration. He cannot be coerced or cajoled into accepting a manuscript, and therefore is as much at liberty to act as a free agent as any other merchant. In deciding upon publishing a manuscript the publisher considers the quality of the work if by an unknown author, or the value of the reputation of a known author in connection with the new work. It occurs probably as frequently that publishers hesitate to entertain a new manuscript by a well-known author as they feel constrained to refuse the work of a new or less known one. Having accepted it, however, the publisher computes the cost of making the book, including the price of composition, making plates, presswork, paper and binding, and the incidentals connected with distributing the book, including rent, travellers' expenses, advertising, postage, editor's copies, interest on capital invested, and such other expenses as legitimately belong to the work under consideration. Besides these he allows for a percentage of profit to himself and the author. He places at the author's disposal his machinery and experience, and for the use of these demands a compensation. And right here we might add that the publisher more frequently than one would think earns a large slice of his profit by attending to minutiae in preparing and working out contracts, in the preparation of the author's copy, and in attending to details that properly belong to the author. An elaboration of the necessity of the author educating himself in all that pertains to the business of negotiating for manuscript, and upon the importance of properly preparing his copy and its relation to the economical production of his book, will be found in Mr. Cody's communication to the N. Y. Sun of the 8th inst., part of which is reprinted in this issue.

The author on the other hand is also a free agent, and may accept the publisher's proposals or seek to obtain better terms elsewhere. No one can force him to entrust his work to this, that, or any other publisher. He has devoted months or years of his life to his work, and is justified in obtaining the highest remuneration possible for his labor. If he cannot obtain what he considers his due from a publisher, and has faith enough in his work, and capital enough to make his book, and talent enough to dispose of it, there is no law in any land to prevent his taking this course.

If he consents of his own free will to the terms proposed by a publisher he has still a right to insist upon the strict fulfilment of them in every particular, and he will, unless he has had the misfortune to deal with a rogue, find no difficulty in obtaining as fair an accounting of the transaction connected with his work as he would from the architect building his house.

He may not obtain in the end a fair remuneration for the labor he has put into his book, but this may then be due to other causes than the dishonesty of his publisher. He may, for instance, have had the misfortune of entrusting his work to the care of an incompetent man, who may yet be honest. So he might entrust his good cloth to the tender mercies of a botch of a tailor. In both cases he would have to pay for an error of judgment. Or, his work, notwithstanding his own and his publisher's expectations, may not have filled a demand. In that case his publisher, quite as much as himself, would have to pay for his error of judgment.

This argument rests upon the supposition that the publisher assumes all risks of publication. Where an author assumes this risk he becomes practically a partner in the business speculation, and so may insist beforehand upon certain privileges in the matter of accounting that would reasonably secure him against fraud on the part of sharpers.

However, we do not think we go very wide of the mark in claiming that the publisher is as anxious for the success of a book as the author may be, without regard to the arrangements upon which he produces the book. He is in business to make money fully as much as to distribute literature. As a good-selling book means a good profit to him, it is to his interest to endeavor to make each of his ventures as profitable as lies in his power. In such prosperity the author deserves to share, and should any question arise the publisher must stand ready at all reasonable times to give a full and unequivocal report as to the status of the book that may be in dispute. We believe that such is the practice among publishers of standing and repute in all countries, and that these fear combinations of authors, under whatever name they may associate, as little as the author need have misgivings as to the honesty of the large class of reputable publishing houses all over the world.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

At the annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade the following were elected trustees: Alexander Agar, James C. Aikin, D. S. Appleton, Henry C. Bainbridge, Bloomfield Brower, C. T. Dillingham, A. J. C. Foye, Walter M. Jackson, Samuel I. Knight, J. Val Koch, Amos M. Lyon, William H. Mairs, Charles McLoughlin, George L. Pease, Frank Squier, Emil Strobel, Iwan Von Auw and Frank W. Wood. The receipts of the board for the year were $15,655.32, and the expenditures within $155.35 of that amount.

During the year 1892 1452 letters were written by the Bureau of Information, against 835 written in 1891. 8640 weekly circulars have been furnished members during the year. This department has been used by 163 members.

As the expense for obtaining information in this department as to dealers in the trade continually increases, the trustees found it necessary at the meeting held in December to pass a resolution limiting the number of inquiries to 200, all in excess of that number to be charged for at the rate of 20 cents each.

In the failure and assignment department during the last year there have been received 315 cases, consisting of 1245 claims, aggregating $194,388.41. On January 1, 1892, there were 484 unsettled cases, which, with the 315 received during the year, makes a total of 799 cases. Of these, 30 cases have been closed by payment in full; 97 cases have been closed by assignment; 1 case has been closed by extension; 15 cases have been settled direct with creditors; 60 cases have been settled by compromise; 85 cases have been closed as worthless; 151 claims were put in judgment, representing 50 cases, making a total of 338 disposed of, and leaving in process of adjustment 461 cases.

There has been paid to creditors in this department $38,521.56, exclusive of amounts paid direct. There have been 9888 letters written, 6142 letters received and 3734 circulars issued to creditors. In addition to those already mentioned there have been 441 general letters received and 579 letters written.

There has been received and disbursed both by the collection and failure and assignment departments the sum of $112,902.35.

POE'S "TAMERLANE."

In May last the book world was excited over the unexpectedly large price realized for an insignificant-looking little volume that was considered dear at $250 by those who felt themselves posted in such matters. Since that sale one of these wiseacres thought he was "taking chances" in offering an advance of $150 on the price paid for the book—one of two copies known to exist of the original edition of Poe's "Tamerlane," which was sold at auction to Dodd, Mead & Co. by Libbie & Co. in May, 1892, for $1850. Contrary to all prophecies, that tiny volume has recently been sold by Dodd, Mead & Co. to an unnamed bibliophile for $2500, which makes it, so far as known, the most expensive book for its size ever handled.

The book did not belong to the late Mr. T. O. H. P. Burnham, as has been erroneously stated, but to one of his clerks, who found it some years ago in one of his book hunts. After Mr. Burnham's death, Mr. Libbie, the well-known Boston auctioneer, who is a collector of Poe's works, prowled around the basement of the "Old South" bookshop, and picking up a pile of pamphlets, jestingly said, "I wonder if there is a 'Tamerlane' among these." The clerk told Mr. Libbie he had a good copy at home. He was induced to dispose of it at the auction which has become one of the red-letter events in the annals of book auctions. The credit of its recent sale belongs to Mr. William Barclay Dunham, who also enjoys the distinction, we believe, of being the youngest man in the old-book business who fills a responsible position, having been deemed worthy by his firm of succeeding George P. Richmond, who stands at the head of his specialty in this country.

A full description of the book was given in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, May 14, 1892, v. 41, p. 738. A writer in the New York Sun calls attention to the fact that "Tamerlane" was printed almost simultaneously with the "Poems by Two Brothers," by Charles and Alfred Ten-nyson, the manuscript of which was sold by the Sothebys last month for £480, and also points out the further coincidence that the Latin motto in "Tamerlane" is the same as that in the "Poems by Two Brothers."

AUTHORS' LACK OF KNOWLEDGE OF BOOKMAKING.

By A. S. Cody, in the New York Sun.

... THERE is one thing, however, which the Society of American Authors may well do, just as the British society is doing, which would be heartily co-operated in by the publishers themselves, I venture to assert, in spite of all that the grumbler may say about the publishers on that point. This "thing" is the education of authors in all that pertains to the business of negotiating for manuscript. If any American publisher gets a pretty large slice of profit out of an unsophisticated author, he feels that he earns it and more by doing the author's business for him, in working out all the little details of contract, as well as of publication, and editing his manuscript, as almost every publisher is obliged to do with almost every author if he wishes to save the book from being a disgrace to the author as well as to himself.

An unsophisticated author comes into a publisher's office. He doesn't know anything. When the publisher talks about "forms" and styles of type and methods of arranging titles and title pages, introductions, and tables of contents and chapter headings, the author simply stares idiotically. As to talking to such a man of costs of manufacture, of the value of paper and printing and binding, it is such folly that no sane publisher would think of it. How different it would be if the author were sufficiently instructed to be able to ask intelligent questions! When he asks What will it cost? in his vague, foolish way, the publisher refuses to tell him because the answer to the question depends wholly on a thousand details that have not been settled. The paper may cost six cents a pound or it may cost twelve; the typesetting may cost fifty cents a thousand ems or it may cost a dollar; the binding may cost three cents a copy or it may cost twenty-five; the press-work may cost ninety cents a thousand sheets or it may cost three or four dollars; the advertising may cost nothing or it may cost several hundred or several thousand dollars. When this is the case who can blame the publisher for refusing to say offhand what it will cost? But perhaps some one will ask why he shouldn't say how much it will cost after all the details have been settled and the bills have been actually paid. There are two reasons for not doing that. First, a large publisher would find it extremely laborious to separate the expenses on one book from those on another. He makes one publication help another to such an extent that he himself does not know with any great accuracy just what proportion of profit he gets out of any particular book. If he gets a gross profit out of his whole business he is content, and apart from that he simply tries to avoid publishing a book which will not pay under any circumstances, and to get a book now and then that will be distinctly profitable. All the books in between he publishes principally to find employment for his establishment and keep it going, and to keep himself before the public, so that when he does strike a good book he will be in a position to make money out of it.

The other reason is, that saying anything definite would be sure to get him into hot water with many another foolish author. Now, if an author were as well instructed in the principles of his business as the publisher is, and could talk intelligently about the probable popularity his book would have with the public apart from his personal wishes (which are often contrary to his personal judgment in the matter), and if he could consider intelligently the best form in which to have the book published—the best paper, the best binding, the question of illustrations and their expense, and all that thereto pertains—he would find the publisher quite ready and willing to talk with him on the strict business principles that prevail in the sale of other commodities. A publisher is simply perfectly happy to find such an author, an author quite as capable of cheating him as he is of cheating the author. It is so much easier to do business with an intelligent man than it is with a blockhead. An intelligent man will ask nothing preposterous and will be content to make a fair division of profits. Everything goes smoothly and easily. Certain results inevitably follow. The publisher is well content to earn his share, instead of earning both his and the author's by doing the author's work for him. The author, being familiar with his own production, can do his own part with a mere fraction of the expenditure of energy that would be necessary if the publisher worked it all out for him.

Yes, nothing would make the publishers happier than to have a well-managed society of American authors whose object should be the careful instruction of its members in the principles of their business. As to ill results from a trades union, the publisher will risk that, for the newest successful author will always be turning up quite a good way from the pale of the society, and the publisher will be quite as likely to get his clutches on him first as the society will. No! the publishers, in New York at least, are not alarmed. They know perfectly well that a crusade against themselves as a body is perfectly impossible (now and here at least). They are also more or less aware of the fact that it takes infinitely less mental energy to make money legitimately, fairly, and squarely, with the opportunities we all have here in the United States, than it does to cheat; that they will not cheat unless the author compels them to. Of course, there are bad publishers, publishers not wise in their day and generation. But their own folly soon destroys them.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

FISHEL, ADLER & SCHWARTZ vs. LUECKEL, UNGER & CO.

A DECISION recently handed down by Judge Townsend in the United States Circuit Court is interesting from the fact that it effectually disposes of what is considered an ingenious scheme to evade the copyright law. The action in question was brought by Fishel Adler & Schwartz, art publishers and exporters to England and Germany of etchings and engravings, against Lueckel, Unger & Co. The plaintiffs had purchased paintings from several well-known American artists, which they subsequently copyrighted, etched and put the etchings on the market. The defendants, Lueckel, Unger & Co., made an arrangement with the Brooklyn Photogravure Company, of New York, to reproduce these pictures by its process. The pictures were struck off and a representative of the defendants with a rubber stamp marked each copy "Printed in Germany." They were subsequently shipped to London and Germany in great quantities, but still larger quantities were offered for sale in this country. For several months the origin of these spurious copies was unknown, but finally the Photogravure Company went into liquidation and a former employee communicated the matter to Messrs. Fishel, Adler & Schwartz. Suit was then brought under section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, which secured to the complainants the "sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, and copying," etc., these engravings. The defendants sought to defeat the action on the ground that unless damages were proved an injunction would not issue, and that sales of the etchings abroad would not prove any damages on which a claim for injunctive relief could be based. They claimed that they had the right to copy the pictures in this country and ship any quantity of them abroad, as the Copyright law did not protect the complainants in foreign countries, and they also sought to throw the whole burden of the scheme on the wound-up Photogravure Company.

In his decision Judge Townsend found that the defendants' claim that the copies, being without tint, title and platemark, were unmarketable and therefore not copies according to the Copyright law, was invalidated by the evidence showing that the copies, though incomplete in these respects, did possess some market value—a fact which alone would establish the infringement. According to the law, the judge held "the appropriation of part of a work is no less an infringement than the appropriation of the whole, provided 'the alleged infringing part contains any substantial repetition of any material parts which are original and distinctive.' Here the defendants had the whole picture copied, except the plate-mark and title. They omitted the mere work of the artisan; they appropriated the genius of the artist. The question is not whether a copy is marketable, but whether it is practical. There is no equity in this claim of the defendants. The copyright has been infringed. The allegation of the defendants that they had no intention to infringe the copyright is no defence in this case. Where the infringement is otherwise established, the intention is immaterial.

"Furthermore, as the defendants authorized the infringing act, knowing that there was danger on account of the Copyright act, and, on condition that the Photogravure Company was to take the risk, they may properly be considered to have intended the result of such act.

"The act of infringement having been committed in this country, the subsequent acts abroad are immaterial, except upon the question of damages."

The decree awarded costs to the complainants and $750 as the amount of profits which the defendants derived from the infringements. It also ordered all plates, photographic negatives and copies of the pictures in the possession of the defendants to be delivered up to the plaintiffs or their London agents, and awarded a perpetual injunction.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

TO RESTORE FADED PHOTOGRAPHS.—If the photographs have merely turned yellow, without the details having actually vanished, they may be improved by placing them in a bath of a ten-grain solution of bichromate of mercury in water. This will generally very much improve them, but there is a point of yellowness beyond which no improvement is possible.—British Bookmaker.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE gross value of the late Lord Tennyson's personal estate, according to the London Literary World, is about £57,200, and he died "seized of" lands and houses besides.

THE writer of the recent volume of the Pseudonym Library, "A Splendid Cousin," who writes under the name of Mrs. Andrew Dean, is understood by the London Bookman to be Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick.

GEORGE DU MAURIER has been induced by Harper & Brothers to write and illustrate another novel for which, as the London Bookman understands, he is to be paid twice as much as he was for his "Peter Ibbetson."

GUY DE MAUPASSANT is said to be getting better, although he has still moments of intense excitement. His mother, who, by the way, was a friend of Flaubert, says his moments of lucidity occur more frequently and his memory is coming back.

JOHN RUSKIN, according to a cable to the New York Herald, "will never do any more work. The disease of the brain which has for some time afflicted him is increasing. He is docile and generally quiet, but has a delusion that he is surrounded by enemies who are waiting a chance to assault him."

JUAN VALERA, the Spanish novelist and diplomatist, has been refused admission to the Vatican as envoy of Spain by Leo XIII. The Pope's action is said to be due to Valera's novel, "Pepita Ximenez," published in America by Appleton in 1886, the hero of which is a candidate for the priesthood, who abandons his vows for love of a woman whom his father wishes to make his stepmother. Valera's novels have made him a member of the Spanish Academy, one of the "forty immortals" of Spain. He was minister of Spain to the United States from 1883 until a few months ago.

PAUL BOURGET's latest book, "Cosmopolis," is a romance of Rome, picturing the cosmopolitan society life of the Imperial City rather than its historical and artistic grandeur. "Cosmopolis"—said by François Coppée to be Bourget's chef-d'œuvre—is a story of the victory of Christianity over the religion of intellectualism. It paints the dominant side of Roman society to-day, its indifference, lack of culture and eager pursuit of money and pleasure. Julien Dorsenne, the dilettante hero, is said to be Bourget himself. The work is published in this country through Meyer & Co., 13 W. 34th Street., New York City.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

JUSTIN MCCARTHY has written a new novel entitled "Red Diamonds," which will appear serially in the Family Circle.

THE name of the Weekly Bulletin, published by J. Morrison-Fuller, Boston, Mass., has been changed to the Fuller Review.

JEROME K. JEROME has written a story with a title taken from a tombstone: "In Memory of John Ingerfield and of Anne His Wife." It is a love-story of Old London, and will be published serially in this country as well as in England by the Tillotsons.

THE London Chronicle for January 2 prints a short poem written on the last day of the old year by William Watson, who became insane recently. The poem is entitled "A New Years' Prayer," and is regarded as an indication that the poet's sanity has been fully restored.

The Herald of Health, which for forty-three years, under the able management of Dr. M. L. Holbrook, of Laight Street, New York, has advocated personal hygiene, temperance and physical culture, will hereafter be published under the name of The Journal of Hygiene.

WALTER BESANT's new serial story, entitled "The Rebel Queen," will be first introduced to American readers through the pages of Harper's Bazar. The opening chapters appear in the number of that periodical published January 7—the first number of the new volume.

Success is the hopeful title of a new illustrated monthly published by the American Press Co., of Baltimore, and edited by Eugene L. Didier, well known to the trade. The first number contains sixteen pages of original short stories, household hints on cooking, dressmaking, etc., a "children's page," and descriptive, humorous and miscellaneous articles.

The Educational Review begins its fifth volume with the January number, which contains, as leading articles, "Higher Education in the United States," by President Seth Low; "Developing Literary Taste in Students," by Professor E. Tompkins McLaughlin; "Status of the High School in New England," by Supt. Chas. H. Douglas and others.

A NEW periodical designed especially for artists is published by Harry C. Jones, 92 and 94 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The Quarterly Illustrator is designed to supply a brief but comprehensive survey of the work done in illustrating. It will furnish a representative selection every three months from all the great illustrated periodicals. Publishers and others looking for special kinds of work may find at a glance the style of talent they need and may refer at once to the names and addresses given to secure contributions.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

ELLIOT STOCK has just issued a large paper catalogue of new and interesting books on archaeology, bibliography, folk-lore, natural history and genealogy. The programmes of The Antiquary, The Field Club and The Bookworm for the coming year are included.

THOMAS J. WISE's "Bibliography of the Writings in Prose and Verse of John Ruskin" is rapidly approaching completion. The 15th part closes with a full and thorough list of important criticisms of Ruskin. So far 1025 examples are specified, bringing the subject up to October, 1884.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—F. A. Brockhaus, Leipzig, Mittheilungen. (No. 4, 16 p.)—C. N. Caspar, 437 E. Water St., Milwaukee, Wis., Standard and practical books. (No. 37, 64 p., 16c.)—Lusac & Co., 46 Great Russell St., London, Eng., Oriental list. (V. 3, no. 12, December, 1892.)—Myers & Co., 49 Booksellers' Row, Strand, London, Miscellaneous, including a selection of first editions of modern poetry, etc. (No. 14, 569 titles.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—Paul Trouche has recently opened a book and stationery store in the city.

DES MOINES, IA.—William J. Hall has opened a book-store here.

DU BOIS, PA.—Edward Baker has recently established himself in the book business in the town.

DUBUQUE, IA.—Walton & Biege is the style of a new firm of booksellers.

DUBUQUE, IA.—The Daily Telegraph of the city describes the new firm of Buettell Brothers Company, importers and jobbers of books, stationery, etc., as follows: "The firm has only recently been established here and has already proved itself to be one of the live and progressive institutions of Dubuque. It was organized the latter part of January, 1892, and was ready for business and had three representatives on the road taking fall orders in June. The officers of the concern when it was organized were E. A. Buettell, president; Dr. E. R. Jackson, vice-president, and J. L. Buettell, secretary and treasurer. The firm had a commodious four-story building erected especially for their purpose on Low Street, between Seventh and Eighth Streets, in the wholesale district. This firm is the only exclusive wholesale house of its kind in the State. They carry a full line of books, stationery, drug sundries and make a specialty in window shades and fixtures. E. A. Buettell, who is considered one of the best posted stationery men in the West, has had charge of the business since its start. The business increased very rapidly, and in September Wm. A. Buettell became connected with the new firm and has now charge of the order department. The constantly increasing business makes it necessary to call its present secretary and treasurer, A. C. Buettell, into active service. He was recently elected to this position and will sever his connection with the H. B. Glover Company on January 1. For fifteen years he has been with that firm and for over twelve years has filled the responsible position of book-keeper in their office. The affairs of this house are in the hands of young men born and raised in Dubuque. They are full of push and energy and the trade will find them prompt and reliable in all their dealings. The present traveling force will be increased January 1, making it all five representatives. The territory covered extends over the greater part of Iowa, also large portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, South Dakota and Nebraska."

FARIBAULT, MINN.—E. E. Saunders has just opened a book-store.

GREENFIELD, MASS.—Walter Whitney has opened a book, stationery and news business.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—H. E. Cremer has begun a book-store.

LOVELAND, COL.—J. Woods & Son have assigned their stock and books, stationery and musical instruments to George W. Krouskop, in favor of the Bank of Loveland.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y.—S. F. McLean & Co., of New York, have established a branch of their book-store here.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—C. S. Crabtree's book and newspaper business has outgrown his present quarters, and he has therefore concluded to move to 241 Nicollet Ave., two doors above his old stand.

OAKLAND, CAL.—Alonzo Coons has opened a book-store in this city.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The J. K. Gill Company has been organized under the law of the State of Oregon with a capital of $150,000, and has succeeded to the book and stationery business of J. K. Gill & Co.

RUTLAND, VT.—John P. Spaulding, a well-known book-dealer, died on the last day of the old year, of pneumonia. He was fifty-one years old and had been in business twenty-five years.

SAGINAW, MICH.—Fred G. Newell has purchased W. R. Robinson's interest in the book, stationery and wall-paper business of Newell & Robinson, and now becomes sole proprietor of the business.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—John R. Caw has opened a book-store in the Mills Building.

WARE, MASS.—Bartley Celle has succeeded to the book business of W. J. Canavan.

WILLIAM JARCHOW, formerly with Raphael Tuck & Sons Company, is now with Wirth Brothers.

R. W. BALLARD, formerly with E. P. Dutton & Co., is now with the Raphael Tuck & Sons Company.

WILLIAM GRAHAM, well known to the blank-book and fancy-goods trades for years past, is now with Wolf & Van Derbengle.

THE FILBERT PUBLISHING COMPANY, of Philadelphia, announce that they will be ready to deliver shortly a new novel entitled "Was it Adultery?" by B. C. Allen.

KEPPLER & SCHWARZMANN announce that the work "Cartoons from Puck," by Joseph Keppler, will not be ready for distribution until the latter part of March next.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have in press "New Month of St. Joseph, St. Francis de Sales," translated from the French, with the approbation of Cardinal Gibbons; also, "A Gentleman," by Maurice F. Egan.

T. & J. W. JOHNSON & Co., Philadelphia, have in press "Field's Federal Courts," by A. H. Garland; "Pingley on Mortgages;" "Rawle on Car Trust Securities;" and a second edition of Freedley's "Limited Partnership Association."

T. R. PYNCHON, ex-president of Trinity College, according to the New York Tribune, "has just become the happy possessor of one of the two copies of the heretical Pyncheon book, now known to be in existence. The other copy is in the Lenox Library."

MACMILLAN & Co. have in preparation for immediate issue a collected edition of the poems of William Watson, including his recently published

"Lachrymæ Musarum." A limited edition will also be printed upon Dickinson & Co.'s English hand-made paper.

GINN & Co. have in press Leigh Hunt's "An answer to the question 'What is Poetry?'" including remarks on versification, one of the most delightful short papers on the subject of poetry, edited by Albert S. Cook, professor of the English language and literature in Yale University.

JOSEPH COSKER, a driver for J. J. Little & Co., the well-known New York printers, was arrested on the 11th for stealing a lot of books representing a value of about $5000. The books were found in Cosker's house in Brooklyn, and will be restored to their owners—the publishers for whom they were printed.

W. B. HARISON, 59 Fifth Avenue, N. Y., has just issued the first of a series of educational games in French, German and English, entitled "Verbal Quartettes," by Alice Werner Steinbrecher. The game is composed of sixteen "books," four cards to a "book," and four words to each "book." The design of the game is to assist the pupil to an enlarged vocabulary.

ANDERSON BROS., University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., have just ready the first two volumes of the fourth edition of Dr. John B. Minor's "Institutes of Common and Statute Law," the first volume covering "Rights which Relate to the Person," the second, "Rights which Relate to Real Property." The fourth volume is already in press, the third being still in preparation.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. will publish on the 20th an American edition of "The Preacher's Complete Homiletic Commentary on the Old Testament." The work is in twenty octavo volumes of over 12,000 pages and extensive index, is by twenty distinguished Biblical scholars, and contains a sermonic exposition or homiletic suggestion on every paragraph or verse of the Old Testament that can be used to advantage in the preparation of sermons.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce the publication of the "Elements of Deductive Logic," by Professor Noah K. Davis, of the University of Virginia. The work is designed as a text-book for undergraduates, and comprises the body of approved logical doctrine, presented with an attempt to mitigate the natural severity of the subject by copious illustrations. They also have in preparation a new edition of the Rev. William Arthur's "The Tongue of Fire, or, the true power of Christianity."

AN authorized translation of all of the second volume of Ten Brink's "Geschichte der Englischen Literatur," that had appeared before the author's death, is announced for immediate publication by Henry Holt & Co. The centre of interest in this part of the work, as perhaps in the whole, is Chaucer, though the period embraced includes also Wyclif, the earliest drama, and the Renaissance. The translation, by Dr. Wm. Clarke Robinson, has had the benefit of Prof. Ten Brink's critical revision. It will be issued in uniform style with the first volume which appeared several years ago.

ROBERTS BROS. will have ready January 16 "Lost Illusions," the twenty-third volume of Miss Wormeley's translation of Balzac's novels, which also includes "The Two Poets" and "Eve and David;" "The Coming Religion," by Thomas Van Ness, who makes a concise and interesting presentation of the trend of modern thought; a "Guide to the Knowledge of God," Prof. A. Grady's study of the chief theodices, translated by Abby L. Alger, with an introduction by William R. Alger; and "In Foreign Kitchens," a little volume in which Helen Campbell gives many recipes carefully selected from English, French, German, Italian and Northern kitchens, and tells of their individual peculiarities and dishes. They will begin to publish in February an edition of Susan Edmonstone Ferrier's novels, which will be issued uniform in style with their recent edition of Jane Austen. Miss Ferrier's novels, "Marriage," "The Inheritance," "Destiny," are as representative of Scotch life in the early days of the century as Jane Austen's and Maria Edgeworth's stories are of English and Irish life in the same period. Each novel will be brought out in two volumes, with photogravures by Merrill.

It has been discovered that "the beautiful French china compote," alleged to have been presented to Martha Washington by Gen. Lafayette, that was sold at auction by Thomas Birch's Sons, of Philadelphia, last month, is a common clay replica made in 1876 by Warrin & Kniffin for R. H. Macy & Co., who sold them as centennial souvenirs for $1.47 a piece. The dish was bought at the auction sale by Mr. Bowden of Mitchell's for $220. Oscar S. Straus, formerly Minister to Turkey, an old customer of Mitchell's, induced Mr. Bowden to part with it for $250, although he had been offered $300 by another man. Mr. Straus naturally boasted of his possession, and proudly showed it to all who would see it, among whom happened to be Mr. Burdette, the superintendent of Macy's crockery department. Mr. Burdette recognized the dish at once as one of the thousands that they sold in the centennial year. Though the parties directly concerned in this matter will without doubt be indemnified by Messrs. Birch, the occurrence is an unfortunate one, as it throws doubts on the genuineness of all the other articles from the sales that are unaccompanied by certificates or guarantees. Birch's Sons, we feel confident, will sift the matter thoroughly for the sake of the peace of mind of those who bought so liberally at these sales, as well as for their own reputation.

FOREIGN NOTES.

CHATTO & WINDUS have in preparation a new story by G. A. Henty, entitled "Rujub, the juggler." It is a tale of the Indian Mutiny, in three volumes.

AN English translation of the complete novels of Turgenieff is said to be in progress in England. Stepniak is to furnish an introductory essay to each volume.

SOMETHING entirely new in the way of book illustration is about to issue from the Edinburgh press, says the London Literary World. "The printing of tartans has hitherto been done by the usual processes, but George P. Johnstone, who is bringing out a work on Old and Rare Scottish Tartans," by Mr. D. W. Stewart, is having the illustrations reproduced in rich silk, specially dyed, and woven in the Scottish hand-loom. Each illustration will show the full design of a particular tartan, and the various silks will be mounted as plates in manner similar to a drawing. As to the book itself, it has long been a subject of regret that there is no comprehensive account of old clan tartans. All the works hitherto published deal chiefly with well-known patterns, but leave unnoticed many authentic specimens preserved in family portraits, dresses, historical relics, and private collections. Mr. Stewart is thoroughly conversant with his subject, and has had access to many original sources of information."

PICK-UPS.

THE BIBLIOMANIAC.—"You have a fine library; I suppose you read a great deal?" "No, I don't. It takes all my time making the money to pay for these books."—Puck.

GETTING EVEN.—"Jones is going to publish my novel." "What, your old enemy Jones?" "Yes, and he wants a title for it. What would you suggest?" "'A Publisher's Revenge' would be appropriate."—Mail and Express.

THE SIDE-DOOR TO LITERATURE.—"I never thought that Molly Braynse would be foolish enough to marry Lord De Kay. She is not one I should expect to be fascinated by a title." "She isn't fascinated. She wants to get better prices from the magazines."—Indianapolis Journal.

THIS WAS IN A BOOK-STORE.—Coincidences occur in Detroit not less than they do elsewhere. Not many days ago—for the book is but recently out—a lady of this town went into a bookstore, no matter which one.

"Have you," she said to a sweet-faced clerk, who looked as if he had been brought up on a milk and honey farm, "have you 'David Allen's Daughter'?"

"Ma'ma?" he responded with a start, as a ruddy glow suffused his face and coruscated from the tips of his ears.

"Have you got 'David Allen's Daughter'?"

He braced up manfully.

"No'm. I haven't," he said bravely; "not yet, anyway, but if the old man will only hold off for about a month longer you bet I will have her."—Detroit Free Press.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amounts should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Under King Constantine.

Three Idylls, from a new poet, of the post-Arthurian days of English chivalry, two telling how the good knights "Sanpeur" and "Kathanal" show love that overcomes and rises above passion, the third telling how the knightly boy, "Christalan," being crippled and so deprived of knighthood, saved the life of the King Constantine to his own deadly hurt, and dying was made a knight "valiant and true."

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Seedlings.

By Sir JOHN LUBBOCK, Bart., F.R.S., etc., author of "Ants, Bees and Wasps," "Origin of Civilization," etc., and editor of the "Modern Science Series." With 684 illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, $10.00.

These volumes contain the results of most extensive observations at Kew and elsewhere with a view to solving some of the many interesting problems connected with the germination of plants. The numerous illustrations will be found of the greatest value to botanists in elucidating the text.

The Great Enigma.

By WILLIAM SAMUEL LILLY. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

"An important contribution to the apologetics of theism. . . . This great argument, which involves a critical examination of some of the main currents of modern speculative thought, is presented with rare dialectical skill. A powerful book."—London Times.

Dictionary of Every-Day German and English.

By MARTIN KRUMMACHER, Ph.D. In Two Parts: GERMAN-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-GERMAN 16mo, 356 pages, cloth, $1.75.

In addition to the Dictionaries proper, this volume contains lists of the most important technical terms, proper names spelled differently in the two languages, a sound-notation, an outline of grammar, and several pages of "travel talk" in parallel columns.

A Comedy of Elopement.

By CHRISTIAN REID, author of "Valerie Aylmer," "Morton House," etc. No. 108, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

The Naturalist on the River Amazons.

By HENRY WALTER BATES, F.R.S., late Assistant Secretary of the Royal Geographical Society. With a memoir of the author, by Edward Clodd. With map and numerous illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

In company with Alfred Russel Wallace, the author in 1848, began an exploration of the Amazons region for the collection of objects of natural history. This volume records the adventures of an eleven-years' sojourn, during which specimens of nearly fifteen thousand species were obtained; and includes descriptions of habits of animals, sketches of Brazilian and Indian life, and various aspects of nature under the equator.

Charles Darwin:

Rousseau's Émile ;

OR, TREATISE ON EDUCATION. Abridged, translated and annotated by WILLIAM H. PAYN, Ph.D., LL.D., Chancellor of the University of Nashville, and President of the Peabody Normal College. The twentieth volume in the International Education Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Rousseau's "Émile" may be regarded as the source of social, political and educational ideas that advocate a return to nature. It is the most radical work of the kind ever written, and not only gave the primary impulse to Pestalozzi and Basedow, but set on fire all Europe, and probably did more than any other book to bring about the French Revolution. No book is more helpful than this to provoke original thought in regard to the grounds of educational theories.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE WAVERLY COMPANY will publish in book-form Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis," which is also running serially in a New York paper.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT have just ready a new "Beecher volume," which they call "Bible Studies." It is a series of readings in the books of the Old Testament, with characteristic comments. The readings were delivered in Plymouth Church by Mr. Beecher in 1878-9, and are edited by John R. Howard from the unpublished notes of T. J. Ellinwood, Mr. Beecher's stenographer.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published "Morocco as It Is," by Stephen Bonsal, Jr., copiously illustrated; "A Short History of the Christian Church," by Bishop John F. Hurst;

"Elements of Deductive Logic," by Professor Noah K. Davis; and a new edition of the religious classic "The Tongue of Fire, or, the true power of Christianity," by Rev. William Arthur.

TAIT, SONS & Co. announce "The Parsifal of Richard Wagner," translated from the French of Maurice Kufferath, who has carefully analyzed Wagner's entire work and dedicated it to Anton Seidl, who, it is said, approves of his interpretations; Furono Amati, "a romance, by L. C. Ellsworth; "King Zub" by Walter Herries Pollock; a novel in the Strathmore Series; "Mr. Punch's Prize Novels," by R. C. Lehman; and "Everybody's Fairy Godmother," by "Dorothy Q.," a dainty brochure, artistically written and neatly manufactured.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce that in view of the expiration of copyright on the first edition of Mitchell's (Ik Marvel) "Reveries of a Bachelor," they will issue at once from new plates complete editions of the "Reveries of a Bachelor," and "Dream Life," in neat cloth-bound sixteenmos, at thirty cents a volume. They also announce that portions of the "Reveries of a Bachelor" are still protected by copyright, and, as copyright on "Dream Life" will not expire until 1894, they will bring action against any one infringing upon the author's rights.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "Seedlings," by Sir John Lubbock, in two volumes, containing the results of most extensive observations at Kew and elsewhere, solving many problems connected with the germination of plants, demonstrated with numerous illustrations; "A Naturalist on the River Amazon," by Henry Walter Bates, with memoir of the author by Edward Clodd; and "Charles Darwin," the life of the great naturalist, told in an autobiographical chapter by his son, Francis Darwin; three most interesting additions to scientific literature. They have also ready Rousseau's "Emile," abridged, translated and annotated by William H. Payne; "Dictionary of Every-Day German and English," by Martin Krummacker; "The Great Enigma," by William Samuel Lilly; and "A Comedy of Eloquence," by Christian Reid, the new volume in the Town and Country Library.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY announce for early publication "Sea-ward," an elegiac poem by Richard Hovey on Thomas W. Parsons. The admiration universally expressed for this magnificent poem when it appeared in the Independent indicates a probable, extensive demand for it in permanent form. The Lothrop Company inform the trade that "The Down-East Master's First School," "Down in Dixie" and "Five Little Finger Stories," which were delayed in the press beyond the date of expected issue, are now ready in sufficient quantity to fill orders. "Oliver Cromwell" and "Figure Drawing for Children," also delayed in the press, will be issued the last of this month. "Old Concord: Her Highways and Byways," "The Pot of Gold," "Some Successful Women," and the three volumes of the "Five Little Peppers," all of which were exhausted by the unexpectedly large demand, have been re-printed and are now in stock. "The Tennyson Remembrance Book," edited by Elbridge S. Brooks, "That Mary Ann," by Kate Upson Clark, "The Little Card," by "Pansy," and "Little Paul and the Frisbie School" are all in preparation for early issue.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted: if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.: translations, tr. s. n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Ts. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (8mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Appleton's hand-book of winter resorts; for tourists and invalids; giving information as to winter sanitariums and places of resort in the United States, the West Indies, the Bermudas, and the Sandwich Islands and Mexico. New ed. to Dec., 1892. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. il. maps, 12", pap., 50 c.

Arthur, W.: The tongue of fire; or, the true power of Christianity; with a new preface by the author, and an introd., by W. M. Taylor, D.D. [New ed.] N. Y., Harper, 1893. 21+350 p. S. cl., $1.

The book first appeared in England in 1856. In 1880 the author wrote a preface for the American edition, in which he said his work had been translated into Welsh, Kafir, Italian and French. The "tongue of fire" is the spirituality of the soul first received in baptism and afterwards shown in thought, word and deed unto the end of life. The writer is a member of the Methodist church. Dedicated to the late Bishop Simpson and Rev. Dr. McCosh.

Beecher, Rev. H. Ward. Bible studies: readings in the early books of the Old Testament, with familiar comment given in 1878-9; ed. from stenographic notes of T. J. Ellinwood, by J. R. Howard. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1893. c. '92. 488 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Twenty-three lectures delivered in Plymouth Church on Sunday evenings during the winter and spring of 1878-79. Their subjects are: The inspiration of the Bible; How to read the Bible; The book of beginnings; Abraham; Isaac; Jacob; Jacob and Joseph; Joseph; Moses; Emancipation; The wilderness and Sinai; The sabbath; Mosaic institutes; Humanity; Mosaic institutes: The household; Mosaic institutes: Social observances, etc.

*Bell, Rev. J. J., ed. Words of wisdom from the scriptures: a concordance to the scriptural book; prepared from the French; ed. with a preface by A. Maguien, D.D. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12", cl., net, $1.25.

*Bible. New Testament. The epistles of St. James: the Greek text; with introd., notes and comments by Jos. B. Mayor. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 220+248 p. 8", cl., $3.50.

Bonsal, Stephen, jr. Morocco as it is; with an account of Sir Charles Euan Smith's recent mission to Fez. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 6+349 p. por. il. map, cl., $2.

Sir Charles Euan Smith's mission during the past year to Morocco was undertaken to establish a commercial treaty between England and that country; his interview or interviews with Sultan Muley Hassan at Fez and the life at the British mission house at Fez had many picturesque and interesting sides, which Mr. Bonsal, who accompanied Sir Euan Smith, tells with much spirit. He also gives chapters on the history, scenery and inhabitants of Morocco.

Briggs, Rev. C. A. The defence of Professor

Briggs before the Presbytery of New York, Dec. 18, 14, 15 and 19, 1893. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 20+195 p. O. pap., net, 50 c.

Dr. Briggs made his own defence in his late trial for heresy. His address, given here, fills nearly two hundred pages, and after some preliminary remarks defines his standpoint through extracts from his various writings on the various questions in dispute, and on the different charges against him. These are grouped as: The rule of faith; Is the Bible the only fountain of divine authority? The reason; The church; The inerrancy of Holy Scripture; The authenticity of Holy Scripture; Who wrote Isaiah? Progressive sanctification after death.

Brown, W. H. Brown's business correspondence and manual of dictation; especially designed for the use of teachers and students of stenography and typewriting. N. Y., Excelsior Pub. House, [1893.] c. '92. 16+350 p. D. cl., $1.

A collection of selected letters representing actual correspondence in banking, insurance, railroad and mercantile business, and a chapter on punctuation, spelling and use of capital letters, with a full and complete spelling list of 25,000 words. Also special exercises for dictation, carefully graded, comprising selections from choice literature, transcripts of court testimony, address to jury, judge's charge and sentence, architect's specifications, copies of legal papers, bankers' weekly financial circulars, railroad lease, first mortgage, copy of bond, contracts, prospectus, notices, etc.

Cassidy, J. S., M.D. Elements of chemistry and dental materia medica. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. c. '92. 6+364 p. D. cl., $2.50.

Dr. Cassidy is professor of chemistry and materia medica in Ohio College of Dental Surgery. This work was prepared at the solicitations of members of his class; also for the purpose of testing the comparative value to dental students of the two approved didactic methods of teaching chemistry and materia medica, i.e., by lectures and quiz, and by recitation from approved text-books, in connection with suggestive experiments.

Catholic dogma: the fundamental truths of revealed religion: lectures delivered in 1891 under the auspices of the Church Club of New York. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 11+189 p. D. cl., net, 50 c.

Six lectures, entitled: The nature of dogma and its obligation, by Bishop A. N. Littlejohn; The Holy Trinity, by W. R. Huntington, D.D.; The incarnation, by Alfred G. Mortimer, D.D.; The atonement, by Rev. John H. Elliott; The office and work of the Holy Spirit, by Bishop Davis Sessum; Grace and the sacramental system, by Rev. G. H. S. Walpole. The aim of these is to state lucidly the fundamental facts of Christianity as they have been revealed to and are taught by the Episcopal Church.

*Church, R. W. Cathedral and university sermons. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 8+317 p. 12", cl., $1.75.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Church's (The) ministry of grace: lectures delivered in 1892 under the auspices of the Church Club of New York; with appendices. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1893. c. '92. 32+261 p. D. cl., net, 50 c.

Five lectures, which are a continuation of the course published under the title of "Catholic dogma." They are: Baptism, by Rev. W. Clark; The Lord's supper, by George McClellan Fiske, D.D.; Confirmation, by Dean Wilford L. Robbins; Holy orders, by Bishop Charles Garrett; Unction, matrimony and penance, by Bishop Charles C. Grafton.

Colombia. Constitution of the Republic of Colombia; with an historical introd.; tr. by Bernard Moses. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, 1893. 70 p. O. (Publications of the Society, Supplement, Jan., 1893.) pap., 50 c. (corr. price.)

Columbus, Christopher. The letter of Columbus on the discovery of America: a fac-simile of the pictorial edition, with a new and literal translation, and a complete reprint of the oldest four editions in Latin. N. Y., printed by order of the trustees of the Lenox Library, 1892. 61 p. O. cl., 50 c.

This scholarly work has been edited for the library by Mr. Wilberforce Eames, the assistant librarian of the Lenox Library and editor of Sabin's "Dictionary of books relating to America." It is a fac-simile reprint of the edition of the Latin version of Columbus' letter to Gabriel Sanchez, which is supposed to have been printed at Basle in 1493, and of which the only perfect copy is in the Lenox Library. To this Mr. Eames has added a translation in English, which though termed "new" on the title, is, we believe, the first translation this edition has ever received. In the appendix is given a second printing of the original Latin of this edition, and in opposite pages are printed the reprints of the three Latin editions printed in Rome in 1493, thus enabling the student to detect, almost at a glance, the variations in these four texts.

Cooke, J: Esten. Beatrice Hallam: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 14-832 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The scene is Virginia, in the colonial days. 1768. Beatrice Hallam, an actress in Hallam's company, captivates Champ Effingham, on the Williamsburg road, and later makes a still greater conquest of the young man's heart by her rendering of Fortia. His actions under these circumstances are the cause of a duel, and bring about other sensational and sentimental consequences in the life of Beatrice.

Currie, Frances Isabel. A tiff with the Tiffins. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. '92. 4-170 p. S. cl., 50 c.

Alison Fleming lived on a farm in New Jersey near the Orange Mountains. Her nearest neighbors were the Tiffins, nine children, who sometimes made depredations on her father's blackberry vines. After one of these raids Alison becomes belligerent and lays down the law for Tilda Tiffin's benefit. The result is a quarrel, in which all the Tiffins and Alison's father engage. The final adjustment of this is brought about in a surprising and interesting way by Alison.

Dare, Arline. Both were mistaken: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 4-287 p. D. pap., 50 c.

One of the "millionaire swells" of New York City finds he has a heart, but the girl who touches it has none, and they ruin each other's lives. The scene shifts, and the sensational story ends in tragedy in Mexico.

Darwin, C: Charles Darwin, his life told in an autobiographical chapter and in a selected series of his published letters; ed. by his son, Francis Darwin. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. '92. 8+365 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

In preparing this volume, which is practically an abbreviation of the "Life and letters" (1887), Mr. Darwin's aim has been to retain as far as possible the personal parts of his father's autobiography. To render this feasible, large numbers of the more purely scientific letters are omitted, or represented by the citation of a few sentences. The part of the story relating to the writing of the "Origin of species," being of special interest as a turning-point in Darwin's life, has been told with nearly the full amount of available detail.

The author is professor of moral philosophy in the University of Virginia. The book is designed as a textbook for undergraduates. A peculiar feature is a praxis appended to each chapter which, worked alone "without any recitation of the text, will insure a more satisfactory knowledge of elementary logic than the closest reproduction of the text, the praxis being omitted." The severity of the subject is mitigated by copious illustrations.

Diehl, C: Excursions in Greece to recently explored sites of classical interest: Mycenæ, Tiryns, Dodona, Delos, Athens, Olympia, Eleusis, Epictaurus, Tanagra: a popular account of the results of recent excavations; tr. by Emma R. Perkins; with an introd. by Reginald Stuart Poole. N. Y., B. Westermann & Co., 1893. 20+408 p. plans, il. O. cl., $2.

Dixie, Lady Florence. Gloriana; or, the revolution of 1900. N. Y., Standard Pub. Co., 1892 [1893.] c. 9+286 p. por. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

"The revolution of 1900" has its culminating scenes in 1900, which bring about the establishment of equal rights for women with men, and the same code of morals. The story takes place in England, and has a heroine, whose mother's sad early history turns her attention to the wrongs of her sex.

Drummond, H: The city without a church: an address. N. Y., Ja. Pott & Co., 1893. c. '92. 4-59 p. D. leatherette, 35 c.

An address grouped under the headings: "I saw the city;" "His servants shall serve;" "I saw no temple there." The texts for this brief sermon are portions of verses from Revelations.

Dubelle, G: H. The ne plus ultra soda fountain requisites of modern times: a practical receipt-book for druggists, chemists, confectioners and venders of soda water; comprising all the latest novelties and specialties for soda-fountain beverages. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1893. 157 p. 12<sup>c</sup>, cl., $2.50.

Eutropius. Extracts from Eutropius; ed. by J. B. Greenough. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1892 [1893.] 8+41 p. D. (Sight pamphlets; ed. by J. B. Greenough, no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

This series will give in consecutive numbers selected passages adapted for all grades of advancement in preparatory schools, and some intended for college use, with suggestive remarks and notes.

Fleming, Mrs. May Agnes. The heir of Charlton: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1893 [1893.] c. '78. D. (Madison sq. ser., no. 57.) pap., 25 c.

*Flournoy, H. W., and Brown, J. Thompson. A guide to magistrates: with practical forms for the discharge of their duties; to which are added precedents for the use of prosecutors, sheriffs, coroners, constables, escheators, clerks, etc., adapted to the code of Va., 1887, being a revision of "Mayo's Guide." Richmond, Va., J. E. Goode, 1892. c. 14+711 p. O. shp., $4.

Foster, L. S., comp. Bibliographies of American naturalists, no. 4: The published writings of George Newbold Lawrence, 1844-1891. Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1892 [1893.] 11+124 p. por. O. (Bulletin of the United States National Museum, no. 40.) pap., n. p.

Contains also a brief biography of Mr. Lawrence, who was born in New York City, Oct. 30, 1806. He began the scientific study of birds in 1841 through the influence of Prof. Baird, but from a child birds had attracted him, and he had paid considerable attention to them. The wide scope of his writings and their excellent character may be seen through a scrutiny of the titles of his numerous papers.

Gallup, Albert, comp. Hand-book of military signaling. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. 2-78 p. sq. T. flex. cl., 50 c.

The author is Signal Officer, First Brigade, National Guard, State of New York. The instructions of his hand-book are definite and full, the system according with that in use, in the army of the United States.

Geary, Nevill. The law of marriage and family relations: a manual of practical law. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 48+637 p. 8°, cl., $3.

*Geometrical draughtsman (The); being a series of practical diagrams and designs applicable to the work of the architect and builder, the engineer and machinist, the artisan and general draughtsman, in designing the various structures useful in the industrial arts; with a practical paper introductory to the work of industrial drawing and designing, by various authors and draughtsmen; ed. by the editor of "The Industrial Self-Instructor." N. Y., Ward, Lock, Bowden & Co., 1893. 150 p. 8°, cl., $2.

Gould, E. R. L. The social condition of labor. Balt., Md., The Johns Hopkins Press, 1893. c. 3-42 p. O. (Johns Hopkins Univ. studies, 11th ser., no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

A comparison of the wages, cost and standard of living, savings, etc., of workers in the coal, iron and steel industries of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and other European countries. The American laborer is shown to have a higher standard of living than the worker of any other nation. The deduction is that the cost of the production here and abroad is about equal—that the higher daily wages in America do not mean a correspondingly enhanced labor cost to the manufacturer, as the American's superior skill, intelligence and physical condition cause him to turn in more and better work than the European.

Griswold, Mrs. Hattie Tyng. Fencing with shadows. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 404 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 24.) pap., 50 c.

The story opens in the garret of a New York City Fourth Ward tenement. Lizelle Gay, a sewing girl, is saved from starvation by a kindly neighbor, and a further existence in the locality by Victoria Armstrong, a lady in search of a servant. This incident incites the society girl to investigate and ameliorate the social conditions of others, whose histories are interwoven with a novel which has both social and romantic interests.

*Holman, Silas W. Discussion of the precision of measurements. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1893. 7+176 p. 8°, cl., $2.

Huntington, W. Reed, D.D. Short history of "The book of common prayer," with certain papers illustrative of liturgical revision, 1878-1892. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1893. c. 3+234 p. D. cl., $1.

Contents: A short history of the book of common prayer; Revision of the American common prayer; The book annexed; its critics and its prospects. In appendix are papers on: Permanent and variable characteristics of the prayer-book—sermon before revision, 1878; The outcome of revision, 1892; and a tabular view of additions made at the successive revisions, 1553-1892.

Hurst, J. Fletcher, D.D. Short history of the Christian church. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. '92. 35+672 p. Maps, O. cl., $3.

Based on the series of five short histories by Bishop Hurst, which appeared in the following order: "The reformation," 1864; "The early church," 1866; "The mediæval church," 1867; "The modern church in Europe," 1886; and "The church in the United States," 1890. The generous reception accorded these smaller works has shown that the treatment of condensation so successfully applied to the secular sciences may be used with equally good results for the popularization of historical theology. That which was done in the smaller histories for each period is here done for all the periods taken together, and a survey is presented of the whole of ecclesiastical history, from the founding of the Christian Church and the preaching of the apostles to the latest phases of religious belief in Europe and America.

Jocelyn, Mrs. Rob. One of the Bevans; or, only a horse dealer: a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. 4+308 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 141.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is Mudshire in England. The heroine, Bessie Bevan, while discussing the future outlook of her brothers and sisters in general, and that of an elder brother, Dick, in particular, agrees with her cousin Jim that Dick's only hope is to enter into a proposed project for the buying and selling of horses. This necessitates the removal of the family to Cleaverholme manor, a gruesome house reported to be haunted. Soon after establishing themselves here they are startled by a series of uncanny occurrences, and a mystery which is finally unravelled.

*Kent, Walter G. The water meter; its difficulties, types, and applications: manual of reference and fact in connection with the supply of water by meter. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1893. 122 p. folding pl. 8°, cl., $1.50.

Matheson, Rev. G. The distinctive messages of the old religions. [N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1893.] 6+343 p. D. cl., $1.75.

An examination of the fundamental principles and the varied forms of worship of the earlier religions, made for the evident purpose of showing the spiritual motive that impelled their worshippers. Beginning with China, the transition of religious thought is traced in the disciples of Confucius, of Lao-tze and other religious lights of that empire. In India the religion of a Hindu is discussed in its relation to the subject. And the several messages of Greece and Rome, etc., are conveyed, with a concluding review of Past Christianity.

*Milner, Alfred. England in Egypt. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 8+448 p. 8", cl., $5.

Morton, Frank. Self-accused. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 5-304 p. D. pap., 50 c.

When George and Olinda Hoyt were aged 21 and 25 respectively their father died. They left their luxurious Alabama home and travelled for three years, but, proving uncoungeal, they agreed to separate. Olinda engaged a companion and finally drifted to the Sandwich Islands, where she met her fate. The book gives detailed descriptions of life in Honolulu and environs.

Muir, Rev. Pearson McAdam. The church of Scotland: a sketch of its history. 15th thousand. [N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co.,] 1892 [1893.] 8+98 p. T. (Guild and Bible class text-books.) pap., 25 c.

Riley, Ja. Whitcomb. Green fields and running brooks. Indianapolis, Ind. The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1893. c. '92. 3-224 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Roe, A. S. How could he help it? a novel. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1891 [1893.] c. '91. 4-448 p. D. (Dillingham's home ser., no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

Ross, Albert. [pseud. for Linn Boyd Porter.] Thy neighbor's wife. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1892 [1893.] c. '89 4-316 p. D. (Albatross novels.) pap., 50 c.

Most of the action is laid in Spain. The heroine is a dancing girl. Young Redfield, her lover, is an impetuous boy who with all his faults deserves the affection bestowed upon him. The story is highly sensational. The heroine is contrasted with a typical American girl.

Sanford, Rev. A. B., ed. The Methodist year-book, 1893. Columbian ed. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1893.] 140 p. D. pap., 10 c.

*Stevenson, T. M.D. and Murphy, Shirley F. Treatise on hygiene and public health. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1892. V. 1. 1013 p. 4", cl., $7.50.

Stewart, Alex., D.D. Handbook of Christian evidences. 10th thousand. [N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co.,] 1892 [1893.] 9+94 p. T. (Guild and Bible class text-book.) pap., 25 c.

Strong, C. H. In Paradise; or, the state of the faithful dead: a study from scripture on death and after death. N. Y., T. Whitaker, 1893. '92. 61+19 p. D. cl., $1.

A little book which aims in the simplest way "to gather up the church's teaching upon death, Paradise, the Resurrection and Heaven." Its mission will be more than accomplished "if it serves to lift the cloud of sadness from any distressed heart."

Thompson, Annie. A moral dilemma: a novel. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. c. '92. 312 p. D. cl., $1.

On board the Curlew, bound for Santa Cruz, Alan Twiss of Glasgow confides his past history to John Cayford, and solemnly enjoins him just before his death, in sight of the harbor, to convey his last messages with papers refuting former evil charges, to Mary Forester. John's efforts to fulfil Alan's dying wish place him in "a moral dilemma." He is forced to decide whether he will deliberately disregard his vows to the dead and see the woman he loves marry a man whose life is shadowed by an early crime, or reveal his weighty secret. The interests of the story are dependent on his action.

Thomson, Ja. The city of dreadful night; with introd. by E. Cavazza. Portland, Me., T. B. Mosher, 1892 [1893.] 28+123 p. D. bds., net, $1.50; Large-pap. ed., net, $5. "The city of dreadful night" is a poem of peace.

mism," says Mrs. Cavazza, "which, neither widely read nor popular, has, however, a twofold value as a document of humanity and as an extraordinarily thorough and vivid representation of a sole, overmastering mood, undesirable but undeniable." It is a work whose unique and sinister beauty has called forth the praise of such artists as Swinburne, Rossetti, Philip Bourke Marston, Longfellow and Emerson. This, the first American edition, is a small, limited one, very choicely made, and contains, besides the title-poem, "To our ladies of Death" and "Insomnia." The bibliography of Mr. Thomson's writings by Bertram Dobell is full and valuable.

Thrum, T. G., comp. Hawaiian almanac and annual, 1893: a handbook of information on matters relating to the Hawaiian Islands, original and selected, of value to merchants, tourists and others. 19th year. Honolulu, H. I., T. G. Thrum, 1892 [1893.] c. 92. 150 p. por. O. pap., $1.

Whitby, Beatrice. In the suntime of her youth. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. 2+86 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 109.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

It is rather difficult to determine whether Agnes Trevor or her sister Elspeth is the heroine. Both are members of a big family of careless, idle, "tomboy" young people, with an improvident father and a worn, anxious mother. Neither Agnes nor her sister has much "suntime" in her youth—Agnes because she marries a rich, selfish, middle-aged man; Elspeth because after her father's death she is weighed down by poverty and care. Both girls have love stories, and to both time and patience bring happiness at last. English home life is excellently described and the story is an April mixture of tears and smiles. By the author of "The awakening of Mary Fenwick."

Wilde, Wein. Whatever thou art: a novel. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1892 [1893.] 4-282 p. D., pap., 50 c.

The "nameless child of an outcast mother" who, after her social ostracism, has made herself celebrated as a painter, is the heroine of a story laid chiefly in New York State.

*Williams, Montagu. Round London, down east and up west. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12+244 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

JANUARY 21, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PUBLISHER IN COMPETITION WITH THE BOOKSELLER.

WE make room for one of the many instances that are from time to time brought to our notice of the senseless interference of some publishers with the bookseller's business, in the hope that it may serve as a warning to those who may thoughtlessly or otherwise pursue a course that is steadily undermining the existence of the urban bookseller, and that will in time inevitably jeopardize their own. A Wisconsin bookseller has for some time been supplying a book for \$4 net to customers whose trade he has cultivated. For this book the publisher charged him, in small quantities, \$5 less  $\frac{1}{2}$ . Out of the difference between the net price to himself and the price he charged his customers he had to defray transportation and the expenses of running his business, leaving, it will be seen, at the best, but a slim margin as profit. Recently one of his townsmen wrote to the publishers of that book for their best terms, and was informed that he might have it at \$3 per volume, or, practically, for thirty-four cents less than the bookseller was obliged to pay for the same in quantities. Of course, the bookseller promptly and very properly refused to handle the book unless he was guaranteed against further interference. At last reports the publishers were still to be heard from.

It seems almost incredible that this firm of publishers should be ignorant of the fact that by such a course they are limiting their own business. Here is their natural source of distribution, the bookseller, devoting his energy, talent and enterprise in their behalf, and creating, so far as lies in his power, a market not only for the book in question but for all others that they may issue. In return for his services he is willing—in this case at least—to work on a smaller margin than a dealer in any other branch of business would care to do. We will assume that this bookseller has worked up a demand for the book, when an outsider, one who no doubt has succeeded before in the same direction, claims from the publishers a consideration which the bookseller cannot afford to grant. And the publishers, forgetting their obligation to their agent, the bookseller, are either unable or unwilling to resist the temptation of a sale. Indeed, it is humiliating to think that to make assurance doubly sure and fearing the prospective customer may delay the purchase, they stultify themselves to the extent of repudiating the price they have put upon the work to the public; and worse, break their faith with the bookseller who has had confidence enough in them to invest his good money in their wares, and whom, for that and every other reason, they should feel bound to protect.

We commend to these publishers the example of a firm of publishers in Philadelphia who, whenever they receive an order from a locality in which they know of a bookseller, return the order including remittance to their correspondent with a polite request to patronize the bookseller. And though that firm has been in existence in one shape or another for over one hundred years we have yet to hear that they have lost either business or friends through such a course.

WE regret that Mr. Stan V. Henkels has not made as satisfactory an explanation in re the "Martha Washington comport" * as the public has a right to expect. In a communication to the New York Sun, dated Philadelphia, January 13, Mr. Henkels says:

"It [the "Martha Washington comport"] was consigned to me by a gentleman of your city, who had purchased it from a person who represented it to be what the catalogue described it. At the time of the sale, I made in this case, as we do in every case, a plain, straightforward statement that duplicates had been made of this certain kind of chinaware, but that I did not think this one was a duplicate. In answer to a question made by one of the company, Mr. Bowden, I think, 'Would I guarantee it genuine?' I said 'No;' that we could not give a guarantee, but would sell it 'as it is, genuine or not genuine.' Mr. Bowden heard me mention this fact, and under those conditions purchased it. The public were not deceived! Our company was not deceived! Mr. Bowden was not deceived! But somebody was when they imagined for an instant that they could sell it as genuine to Mr. Oscar Straus."

This statement hardly covers the ground. In the first place, if the auctioneer had any doubts in the matter the proper place to make "a plain, straightforward statement that duplicates had been made" was in the catalogue. There was no such warning given there; on the contrary, a footnote sets forth unequivocally that "Martha Washington was presented with a set of this china-ware by General Lafayette; a very few pieces of it remain and these are much sought after."

[* This should be compote, which is a corruption of the French word compotier (a dish for stewed fruit). In our mention of the matter last week we tried to give the word correctly, but our printer succeeded in making utter nonsense of it, unfortunately too late for correction.—Ed. P. W.]

His statement that no one was deceived in the matter, excepting "somebody . . . when they [sic] imagined for an instant that they could sell it as genuine to Mr. Oscar Strauss," is certainly awkward. Unless we labor under a delusion somebody was deceived. Mr. Bowden claims to have been deceived, and Mr. Strauss certainly was, or affected to be, else why did he offer to buy the dish for $250? Unless the whole affair was worked up by the bazaar which originally manufactured the duplicates as a clever dodge now to work off a "job lot" or "remainder," we think that the auctioneers still owe an explanation to the public who patronized them on that particular occasion.

WE remind the trade that our Annual Summary number will be issued on the 28th inst., and ask that they promptly forward copy for their advertisements in that number. This number has come to be recognized by the bookseller as one of the most important and useful of the year, especially for keeping track of the publications of those houses issuing only at long intervals. It is the latter who lose most by not keeping themselves before the public and book-sellers, and we therefore urge upon all such, whose books we cheerfully record through the year free of cost to them, to give us their proportionate contributions to the advertising pages of this number.

THE AUTHORS' READING FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE B. AND S. P. A.

AT eight o'clock on the evening of the 16th inst., the time appointed for the authors' readings under the auspices of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, every seat in Chickering Hall was occupied, and quite a number of persons who had neglected to procure seats in time were obliged to stand. To say that the audience was brilliant is no exaggeration, and throughout the entertainment it proved itself attentive and appreciative. Exactly on time, ushered in by Mr. C. T. Dillingham, the president of the association, and his aides, Messrs. C. A. Burkhardt, J. A. Holden, W. J. Kelly and J. F. Vogelius, the authors, who had so generously volunteered to aid the entertainment, took places on the platform. Among those present were: Mrs. M. V. H. Terhune (Marion Harland), Gertrude Atherton, Mrs. Marg. Sangster, "Jenny June," Charles Dudley Warner, Dr. E. Eggleston, F. Hopkinson Smith, Gen. James Grant Wilson, Robert Grant, Will Carleton, Thomas Nast and W. H. McElroy.

After an organ prelude by Dr. S. N. Penfield, Mr. Dillingham briefly explained the object of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, and introduced as chairman Mr. Charles Dudley Warner. It was a happy idea to secure Mr. Warner for this function, and one that contributed much to the enjoyment of the evening. He assumed the office in a short speech in which he humorously referred to the debt authors owed to the bookseller as the distributor of the products of their brains, and to the stationer as the purveyor of their sinews of war, paper and writing materials—which he inferred were all that seemed necessary nowadays to produce "copy." He also referred to the hardship of the author in having the tenure of his property—the right to his books—limited by law to a term of twenty-eight years, and, if he be shrewd, to fourteen years more. His remarks were heartily applauded, as was the appearance of the first author to read—F. Hopkinson Smith. The selection was the "Market-Woman" scene from his volume of short stories, "A Day at Laguerre's." Mr. Warner next, by request, read with richly humorous seriousness his famous "Bear Story." He was followed by Marion Harland, who read the "Horse Race," from her latest book, "His Great Self." Dr. Edward Eggleston read in an imitatively funny manner the interview of Mrs. Bowyer, the faith-cure specialist, with the heroine of "The Faith Doctor." Robert Grant read "Josephine's Party," from his "Reflections of a Married Man;" Gertrude Atherton, a selection from "the Doomsdancer," telling of a young Indian maid who ran away from a California mission with her lover against the padre's commands, which had an unexpectedly humorous ending. Thomas Nast next made his appearance, and was followed by Gen. James Grant Wilson, who read from his army experiences "An Episode of the Late War." Will Carleton offered to read a poem on Whittier to atone for the omission of one announced to be read by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was unavoidably detained. W. H. McElroy closed the entertainment by reading the funny adventures of a shark, from "A Ballad of Nantucket." The entertainment, we are pleased to know, was a success in a financial as well as in a literary sense.

TAIT, SONS & CO.'S IMPORTANT PUR- CHASE OF PLATES.

TAIT, SONS & Co. make the important announcement that they have purchased the plates and stock of the following standard and miscellaneous works, formerly published by the United States Book Co., National Book Co., and Lovell, Coryell & Co. From the United States Book Co. they have acquired the Keystone Edition of 12mos; the Franklin Series of biographical works; the Strathmore Series of copyright works, in cloth and paper; their fine illustrated gift-books; the Doré books and the miscellaneous books comprising new publications of the United States Book Co. From the National Book Co. they have their library editions and standard sets in cloth and fine bindings; their library edition of 12mos, in cloth and three-quarter calf; their Rugby Edition and their Crimson and White Series of 12mos. From Lovell, Coryell & Co. they have the four volumes of Frank A. Munsey's works, and Grace Greenwood's stories in three volumes.

The United States Book Co. will continue to include the above publications in their lists, but simply as jobbers. When the present stock of these works is exhausted Tait, Sons & Co. will prepare new and superior editions bearing their own imprint. A complete catalogue of their publications will be ready at an early date.

ALBANY (N. Y.) RECORDS STOLEN.

ON January 16 it was discovered that valuable records covering thirty years had been stolen from the City Hall in Albany, N. Y. They consisted chiefly of the proceedings of the Board of Contract and Apportionment, in thirty-two volumes, dating back to 1857; some important assessment rolls were also taken. The records were kept in a fire-proof vault in one of the towers of the City Hall, adjoining the county clerk's office, which is one of the busiest departments of the City Hall. The records were later found in a mutilated condition in a junkshop on Orange Street. The owner of the shop said that he had been buying the papers for ten days past at a cent a pound. The thieves had evidently been conducting their work in broad daylight, carrying the bags full of books down the county clerk's stairway and loading them into a truck near at hand. The covers were torn off all the volumes, which in the aggregate weighed two tons. There is a watchman always on duty in the City Hall, and the jailor and his family live in the building. Besides this the passageway of the county clerk's office is constantly used by persons passing into the courts. The thieves have not yet been captured.

CHEAP BOOKS IN ENGLAND.

THE recent opening to the public of a free library in the Whitechapel district of London was the occasion of an address by Lord Rosebery on the value and importance of reading, and the gradual growth of the reading habit. "He spoke of books," says G. W. S. in the New York Tribune, "as a man who knows them and loves them, and desires other people to love them. But it is a utilitarian age, and it seemed to him that the most urgent recommendations of books he could offer to the toilers of Whitechapel was their exceeding cheapness. He summed it up in his usual picturesque way: 'For the price of a hat you may now get a library that all the merchant princes of the Middle Ages—all the Fuggers and the Medicis—could not have obtained had they given their heart's blood for it.'

"With even more emphasis, Lord Rosebery owns that to him there is 'nothing' so striking as the fact that you can get almost all the great works of the human mind for so very small a sum. The small sum proves to be, for half the masterpieces of literature, three pence apiece. It is a very doubtful boon. The workingman had better go to his reading-room or library and read them in readable print for nothing at all, and save his eyesight, which is worth considerably more than six cents. The attempt to compress a literary masterpiece into a three-penny volume must result in very small print and very poor paper and ink; worse than that of the average newspaper. It is time somebody should protest against cheapness for which so high a price is paid as the readers of these unprofitable cheap issues must pay in the long run. If things go on as at present, the next lucrative profession of the future will be the oculist's. Everybody's eyes in the next generation will be in need of constant repair. 'The whole of Milton for ninepence' is the dearest investment the student can make. When we give our minds to commercial views and the praise of cheapness is sounded from the lips of a distinguished speaker, one likes to hear also what the professional view is; I mean the trade view. I turn to a trade organ and I read that 'in a time of wonders nothing is more wonderful than the revolution that has taken place during recent years in regard to the production of cheap literature.' Elsewhere has been heard a grumble that the ancients, in their cheap dress, should be extolled and commended to the reading public, while the dear moderns were left unsung. Let us do our trade oracle the justice to say he is wiser than this. He sees and says that whatever stimulates the taste for books must, in the end, be to the advantage of the modern producer of books, be he writer or publisher of them. It is a truism, but nothing is so often disputed as a truism by those who wish it were false."

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE H. SMITH, well known to the book trade as head of the firm of E. B. Smith & Co., Detroit, Mich., died in that city on the 10th inst. in the fifty-seventh year of his age. Mr. Smith served his apprenticeship with Merriam Moore & Co., Troy, N. Y., in the years 1852 to 1857. He afterwards had a bookstore in Pontiac, Mich., for several years, moving to Detroit in 1869. He was a member of the firm of E. B. Smith & Co., booksellers, from 1871 to 1880. In 1881 he purchased the business of the Seely Manufacturing Co., makers of perfumes, extracts, etc., and remained as its president till the day of his death. Although an invalid for more than thirty years, yet with rare courage and will power he devoted himself to his business with an energy equal to that of a well man, and with this he maintained his cheerful and genial disposition, and had a thoughtful care for all who surrounded him. These qualities endeared him to a large circle of friends who have now only the memory of a man who was a consistent and devoted Christian, a generous benefactor and a warm friend. He leaves a widow and four sons.

FRANCES ANNE KEMBLE (Mrs. Pierce Butler), known to the world as "Fanny Kemble," died in London on Monday, Jan. 16. She was the daughter of Charles Kemble and the niece of Mrs. Siddons, the most celebrated of all English actresses. Although not originally intending to be an actress, circumstances made this career a necessity. Born in 1811, she was eighteen years of age when she began her life as an actress in 1829 in the role of Juliet, supporting her father as Romeo. In 1835 she was married to Mr. Pierce Butler, of Georgia, and her marriage practically ended her career as an actress. She separated from her husband in 1839. After this she gave readings in many cities, always with success. Mrs. Butler had also marked literary ability. Among her published writings are: "Journal of a Residence in America"; "A Year of Consolation"; "Residence on a Georgia Plantation," almost a complete record of her married life; "Records of Girlhood"; "Records of Later Life"; "Notes Upon Some of Shakespeare's Plays"; and several translations from German poets. Fanny Kemble was a very beautiful as well as a highly talented woman.

As we go to press we hear of the death of Charles Caverly, for eighteen years the agent of the Universalist Publishing House, which occurred at his residence in Dorchester, Mass., on the 17th inst.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF BOOKBINDING.—Bookbinding is receiving at present considerable attention by the cataloguer. James Bain, of London, has recently published "A Bibliography of Bookbinding," by Miss S. T. Prideaux, which is said to be fuller than any of its predecessors in French, as it is also the first serious attempt at a bibliography in English. It is unusually abundant in American material.—Ernest Thoman, of Paris, has in preparation an elaborate work on "Les Relieurs Français" (1500-1800), in the writing of which he is aided by the staff of the National Library.—In the spring the Century will begin a series of papers on the art of the bookbinder, to be illustrated and to give full attention to the development of the art in the United States. Articles on the subject are also announced to appear during the year in the Portfolio.

THE January Bulletin of the Public Library of the City of Boston contains, in addition to its usual lists of new books, which now amount to about 25,000 annually, two important special contributions, one a continuation of the new edition of the Historical Fiction catalogue, the other a list of the current magazines and other serial publications received in the Central Library. A list of the transactions and publications of learned bodies is promised soon; meanwhile this useful list of over eleven hundred current periodicals shows the great resources of the library in this department of literature. The Historical Fiction catalogue in this number takes up the subject of England prior to the union of the crowns of Scotland and England, at the time of James I., and is a careful and scholarly piece of work, especially in its treatment of the early and legendary portions. Decidedly the pièce de résistance of this Bulletin is a fac-simile of one of the greatest historical treasures of the library—the original paroles of honor of the officers of the British and Hessian forces, after the surrender at Saratoga, in October 1777 headed by Generals Burgoyne and Riedesel.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—F. A. Brockhaus, Leipzig. Monthly list of new books. (December, 1892.)—E. Dufosse, 27 Rue Guénégaud, Paris. Americana. (9th Ser., No. 4, 931 titles.)—Otto Harrassowitz, Leipzig. Bericht über neue Erwerbungen, No. 3; notices a number of new and important bibliographies.—Edward Howell, Church St., Liverpool. Miscellaneous. (No. 85, Jan., 1893. 1109 titles.)—S. F. McLean & Co., Cooper Union, N. Y. Miscellaneous. (776 titles.)—J. Hossey Osborn, "Ye Olde Book Store," 95 Van Houten St., Paterson, N. J. Miscellaneous. (624 titles.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.—Joseph A. Nagle, bookseller, is dead.

NEW YORK CITY.—A fire broke out soon after midnight, Jan. 17, in the basement of No. 18 Ann street, occupied by Dick & Fitzgerald, publishers. The cause of the fire was unknown and damage to the extent of $500 to stock was the result.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mr. Meyer, formerly in charge of Brentano's French department, has opened, under the firm name of Meyer & Co., a French bookstore in the Falk Building, 13 West 24th Street. Mr. Meyer, who has been for years connected with one of the leading Paris publishing houses, offers to give any information desired of Paris publishers and publications.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Brentanos' will remove next May to Broadway corner of Union Square and Sixteenth Street, now occupied by the Whiting Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. A. SCHADE VAN WESTRUM, editor of Book Chat, Brentano's, has won the first prize for a novel offered by Town Topics.

WORTHINGTON CO. will publish shortly in their International Library "The Cipher Despatch," from the German of Robert Byr, by Elise L. Lathrop.

THE Typothetæ of New York celebrated the 187th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin at its annual dinner on the evening of January 17, at the Hotel Brunswick.

H. L. KILNER & Co., of Philadelphia, have just issued a catalogue of the books of which they have recently purchased the plates and stock from the Baltimore Publishing Co.

AT the meeting of the trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade on the 10th inst. the following were elected officers: Frank Squier, president; Charles T. Dillingham, first vice-president; Henry C. Bainbridge, second vice-president; and W. W. Davis, secretary.

THE Groller Club has published, for circulation among its members only, 360 copies of Moncure D. Conway's "Barons of the Potomac and the Rappahannock." The edition is illustrated with portraits, views and head and tail pieces engraved on wood by R. G. Tietze.

ISABELLA CASTLEBAR turns out to be the pseudonym of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Winter, wife of William Winter, the well-known critic. Under her pseudonym she has written two stories: "Love, and the Love of Gold," and "The Spanish Treasure," both of which have appeared in the New York Ledger.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will shortly publish a work on "Early Maryland, Civil, Social and Ecclesiastical," by Theodore C. Gambrill, D.D., of Baltimore. Mr. Whittaker also announces "The Private Life of the Great Composers" by John Frederick Rowbotham, with portraits of the fifteen subjects.

J. G. CUPPLES COMPANY will issue but one hundred copies of the édition de luxe of E. H. Goss' biography of Paul Revere. The illustrations for the work, which include portraits, historical scenes, colonial views and reproductions of many of Revere's queer old caricatures, will be printed on India paper.

THE Wisconsin Historical Publishing Company, of Milwaukee, is bringing out a "History of Wisconsin in Twelve Illustrated Magazines." The first number, which has just appeared, contains a paper on "Geological and Prehistoric Wisconsin," presumably by Mr. Clark S. Matteson, the editor, and an article entitled "Romances of a Brigade," by Col. J. A. Watrous.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY announce for immediate publication the authorized and copyright edition of "The Life of Catherine Booth, the Mother of the Salvation Army," by F. de L. Booth-

Tucker. The two large octavo volumes, each containing over six hundred pages, are enriched with several steel engravings and over fifty other illustrations, also marginal notes and a copious index.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM has issued volumes 1 and 2 of the reprint of the "Original Plymouth Pulpit Sermons," by Henry Ward Beecher. The set will be complete in five volumes of about nine hundred pages each. Volume 3 will be ready early in February, and the remaining two volumes at intervals of one month. Among the books announced by Mr. Ketcham during the coming months is one entitled "Sanctified Spice," by the Rev. Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, New York City.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS are about to begin the publication, in their subscription department, of an edition for subscribers of the Works of Fenimore Cooper. The set will be termed the Leather-Stocking Edition, and only 1000 copies will be printed. It is to be completed in 32 volumes, octavo, handsomely printed from entirely new type and on selected paper. The volumes will contain original designs by a number of well-known artists. The first group, comprising six volumes, will be ready for delivery in February.

At a recent meeting of the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company, at Washington, D. C., Robert Beall, the owner of the "Waverley" book-store on Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C., was elected a member of the board of directors. Mr. Beall is considered to be one of the best informed men on railroad matters in the country, and has been for many years a director of the Metropolitan line of Washington. His book-store, where Franck Taylor flourished in past years, is the favorite resort of the leading statesmen and politicians of the city.

GINN & Co. will publish next month "A Students' Manual of a Laboratory Course in Physical Measurements," by W. C. Sabine, M. A., Instructor in Harvard University. The manual will contain an outline of seventy experiments in mechanics, sound, heat, light, magnetism and electricity, arranged with special regard to a systematic and progressive development of the subject. The description of each experiment will be accompanied by a brief statement of the physical principles and definitions involved, and a proof of necessary formulæ. The book is intended for use in supplementing college courses in physics.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish shortly "The Survivals of Christianity: Studies in the Theology of the Divine Immanence," by Dr. Charles James Wood, in which he compares Christian doctrines with those of other religions and with the various forms which Christian doctrines have assumed in the several stages of their historical development. After showing how the pure teachings of Jesus and his apostles have been affected by contact with other modes of life and thought than theirs, as well as by the general inheritance of pre-Christian ideas, the author proceeds to emphatically express constructive views upon important religious and social questions of the present day.

The announcement by D. Lothrop Company, Boston, just after Christmas of their purpose to give up their retail book business and devote themselves entirely to the publishing of books came as a surprise to many who had had long and extensive dealings with this old-established house. The move is, however, in touch with the tendency of modern trade to centralize and concentrate upon specialties, and is in accordance with the plan projected by the founder and late head of the house, Mr. D. Lothrop, who had felt the drift of the times and appreciated the wisdom of devoting all the energies of the firm to the making of books, leaving the retail trade where it belonged, in the hands of the booksellers. The difficulty of withdrawal from the close and pleasant relations he had so long maintained with the retail buyers had delayed this step, but it was in near contemplation at the time of his decease, and the firm but carry out his plans in their present move.

J. H. OSBORN, "Ye Olde Book Store," 96 Van Houten Street, Paterson, N. J., will supply the trade with "The History of Paterson, N. J.," by William Nelson, which is now in press. This book is the result of some twenty years spent by Mr. Nelson, secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, in gathering dates about the history of Paterson, and will undoubtedly be the most interesting book ever published in Paterson. It will be illustrated with photogravure engravings and be quarto in size and limited to 1,000 copies. Of these, 750 will be printed on antique book paper and sell at ten dollars a copy. The remaining 250 will be printed on imported Holland hand-made paper at twenty-five dollars a copy. Paterson being one of the leading and typical manufacturing cities of the East, its history written by the foremost historian of the State will have more than a local value, and be of interest and value to any student interested in the growth of our country.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have added to their series of English Classics "Select Speeches of Daniel Webster," edited, with notes, by Prof. A. J. George. This book is intended as a companion volume to "Burke's American Orations," which was prepared by the same editor and published a year ago. The present edition represents Webster in the various and distinct fields in which his genius manifested itself so powerfully and so nobly. He is here seen before a jury, before the Supreme Court of the United States, in the Senate, in a great national canvass, and as a eulogist. The book will alike interest the student of English and the general reader. They will issue shortly "Ausgewählte Meisterwerke des Mittelalters," selected and edited by Professor Carla Wenckebach, of Wellesley College. This book is designed for students in higher institutions of learning, as well as for lovers of German literature in general. The selections are all complete in themselves, and have been given in modern German, since a book in the German of the period would be available to only a few readers. Such textual and expository notes have been added as are essential to the understanding and appreciation of the works.

GEORGE R. GRAHAM, journalist and founder of Graham's Magazine, is ill at the Memorial Hospital, Orange, N. J. The recent report that he was in a dying condition is now said to be unfounded. Mr. Graham was born in Philadelphia Jan. 18, 1813, and had been admitted to the bar in that city when he became editor and part owner of the Saturday Evening Post and entered the publishing business. While continuing his relations with the Post, he bought Atkinson's Casket, a small literary monthly which he edited and published until 1841, when he united it with the Gentlemen's Magazine and formed Graham's Magazine, which attained a very large circulation and was for many years considered one of the best magazines of its kind in the United States. In 1846-7 he bought the Philadelphia North American and the United States Gazette, which he merged into one strong publication, the North American. The fortune he accumulated in these enterprises was later swept away in financial speculations, and Mr. Graham went to Newark, N. J., where he became editor of the Newark Journal, which he conducted until failing eyesight and health compelled him to give up all work. Of late years he has been unable to do much work with his pen.

FOREIGN NOTES.

OCTAVE UZANNE, of Paris, has just published his long-promised "Physiologie des Quails."

ZOLA's new novel, "Docteur Pascal," which brings to its end the long history of the Rougon-Macquart family, will make its first appearance in the Revue Hebdomadaire.

SWAN SONNENSCHN & Co. have purchased the English rights in "Die Gefahren der Frauen-Emanzipation," by Adele Crepaz, which has already run through several editions in Germany. They will shortly issue an English translation prefaced with Mr. Gladstone's letter to the authoress, which they have obtained permission to publish.

FOLLOWING their edition of Jane Austen's novels, and produced in a similar style, J. M. Dent & Co. will issue at the end of this month Miss Burney's "Evelina" in two volumes, with seven photogravure illustrations, including a reproduction of Edward Burney's portrait of Fanny. They have in preparation a series of small volumes, entitled The Bon-Mots Series, edited by Walter Jerrold (grandson of Douglas Jerrold), consisting of a collection of the witty sayings of such writers as Sydney Smith, Sheridan, Lamb, Douglas Jerrold, Foote, Quin and Theodore Hook. The first volume, which will be published shortly, will be devoted to the two first named, and, besides the portraits of the authors, will be ornamented with a series of grotesque designs by Mr. Aubrey Beardsley interspersed with the text.

CAMILLE FLAMMARION, according to the New York Herald, has recently received a ghastly legacy in the shape of the skin from the shoulders of a certain countess whose name is withheld. It appears that Flammarion had admired the beautiful shoulders of the countess, and upon her death her husband, true to a promise exacted from him, had the skin removed by a well-known medical practitioner of the Jura and forwarded to the author of "Uranie" with a letter informing him that it was the desire of the countess that he have bound in it the first copy of the first book which he should publish after her death. Flammarion was tempted to send it back, but on reflection determined to carry out the wish of the dead woman. Accordingly he sent it to a tanner, who worked on it for three months, and it was sent back beautifully prepared. He has just had his last work, "Terre et Ciel," bound in it. The binding is not only unique but is said to be exceedingly handsome. On it is stamped in gold letters the words: "Souvenir d'une morte."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusives of address (on any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at a uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them, enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put at their firm-name the word [Cash].

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT, NEW YORK.

The "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," begun as a monthly supplement to The Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly, in an enlarged form, is now issued as an annual volume.

The volumes, beginning with that for 1890, contain a complete index in one alphabet to the magazine articles for the year, arranged on the plan of the original Poole volumes, with a direct reference to the date of issue. It indexes ninety-nine of the leading magazines (printed in the English language) of the United States and England.

The new volume, covering 1892, is planned to contain also an extension of the material of the "A. L. A. Index," so that it will be a first supplement to that important work.

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

THE HIGHER CRITICISM OF THE HEXATEUCH.

By CHARLES A. BRIGGS, D.D. 8vo, $1.75.

The field of the Higher Criticism of the Bible has been chiefly the Pentateuch and the Book of Joshua. This volume presents the result of Dr. Briggs' studies and is designed for the general public rather than for Hebrew students.

PROFESSOR BRIGGS' DEFENCE.

Before the Presbytery of New York, December 13, 14, 15 and 19, 1892. 8vo, paper, 50c., net.

This pamphlet contains the complete and detailed reply of Professor Briggs to the Prosecuting Committee of the Presbytery of New York. As he has, in some cases, been misquoted and misunderstood, a reading of the defence itself is essential.

The Parsifal of Richard Wagner.

Translated from the French of MAURICE KUFFERATH. Exquisitely illustrated.

This volume is charmingly illustrated with half-tone productions from photographs of the principal characters and scenes from the opera "Parsifal." The entire work is carefully analyzed and discussed in a manner which will be most fascinating to all lovers of the Wagner music, and must of necessity be interesting even to its opponents. The work is dedicated to Anton Seidl, and its general treatment has met with his approval.

Furono Amati.

A Romance. By L. C. ELLSWORTH, author of "A Little Worldling," etc. 12mo, cloth, gilt, $1.00.

Mrs. Ellsworth is at her best in this new novel. There is a pathos throughout the tale which is never burdensome, and the story of the struggles of the young violinist is developed so naturally that the startling events which end his career, are proofs of the author's ability to depict human character and human impulses with unmistakable fidelity.

King Zub.

By WALTER HERRIES POLLOCK, author of "A Nine Men's Morris," etc. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. Strathmore Series.

"King Zub" is the title story of a volume in which each one of the succeeding stories seems stronger than the one before it. Walter Herries Pollock, the author, figures prominently in English literature, and this volume of stories will be most favorably received by those who are familiar with his work as editor of the London Saturday Review.

Mr. Punch's Prize Novels.

By R. C. LEHMAN. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.00.

This entertaining volume affords an unusual amount of genuine amusement; the unlimited fund of original and pointed sayings, which the author uses to excellent advantage, makes the work deserving of a place beside its predecessor, "Mr. Punch's Model Music-Hall Songs and Dramas."

Everybody's Fairy God-Mother.

By DOROTHY Q. Illuminated covers, 50 cents.

The dainty little brochure entitled "Everybody's Fairy God-Mother," by Dorothy Q., is a most attractive volume, both in the tone of the literary work and the style of manufacture. All who have seen the peculiar growth known as the "Holy Ghost Flower" will be particularly interested in this work.

Who Is the Man?

By J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "My Friend Pasquale," "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"In 'Who is the Man?' the author has essayed to work out a highly interesting problem, and that he has done so successfully few will be disposed to dispute. The reader's interest is held spellbound, and the mystery of the volume deepens with every page."—New York Recorder.

The Secret of Narcisse.

A Romance. By EDMUND GOSSE, author of "Gossip in a Library," "On Viol and Flute," etc. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

"The book resembles some delicately finished, clear-colored pictures of the Flemish painters. . . . Mr. Gosse with consummate art elicits our sympathy and has convinced us of the tremendous tragedy by the method of the accusation itself."—Saturday Review.

Announce the Continuation of Their New Edition of TROLLOPE'S NOVELS.

The next group published will be THE PRIME MINISTER SERIES, containing the following :

PHINEAS FINN.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

THE DUKE'S CHILDREN.

These works, like the Barchester Tower Novels, form a distinct group by themselves and are, in a sense, a continuous story, the same characters running through the whole series. They will be issued as above in proper chronological order.

The first instalment, "Can You Forgive Her?" in three volumes, will be published in March, and the other volumes will follow at convenient intervals.

Also a New and Uniform Edition of the Novels and Tales of

MARIA EDGEWORTH. With Illustrations.

To be issued in instalments, beginning with "Belinda," which will be ready shortly.

Great attention will be given, in preparing this new edition of Edgeworth, to the details of its manufacture. The volumes will be of convenient size to hold in the hand and all the resources of modern bookmaking will be invoked to render them models of their kind.

"She is the author of works never to be forgotten ; of works which can never lose their standard value as 'English classics.' Her novels always found an eager reception, at a time when the poetry of Scott, of Campbell and of Crabbe was issuing in its freshness from the press, when the Edinburgh and Quarterly Reviews, then splendid novelties, were to be duly read and studied, when Madame de Staël was at her zenith, and, in a word, when the competition of the noblest wits was only less keen than at the present day."—EDWARD EVERETT, in North American Review.

Said SIR WALTER SCOTT : "If I could but hit Miss Edgeworth's wonderful power of vivifying all her persons and making them live as beings in the mind, I should not be afraid.

OTHER NEW BOOKS.

THE ROSE: Its Cultivation, Varieties, etc. By H. B. ELLWANGER.

An entirely new edition, from new plates. Thoroughly revised and largely rewritten by George H. Ellwanger. 16mo, tastefully bound, $1.25.

ALMOST FOURTEEN. A book designed to be used by parents in the training of their sons and daughters for present modesty and nobility and for future fatherhood and motherhood. By MORTIMER A. WARREN. A new edition, revised. $1.00.

Important Announcement.

By PAUL BOURGET.

Crown Octavo, Cloth, Ornamental, - - $2.00.

It affords us pleasure to announce for publication early in February the authorized edition of Paul Bourget's masterpiece, "Cosmopolis," the work which is at present creating such a furor in Europe, and for which, in consequence of its vivid portraiture of American society in Rome, an immense demand has already arisen in this country.

From the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

"Paul Bourget's latest book, 'Cosmopolis,' is a romance of Rome, picturing the cosmopolitan society life of the Imperial City rather than its historical and artistic grandeur. 'Cosmopolis,' said by François Coppée to be Bourget's chef-d'œuvre, is the story of the victory of Christianity over the religion of intellectualism. It paints the dominant side of Roman society to-day, its indifference, lack of culture, and eager pursuit of money and pleasure."

We would strongly urge upon the Trade the necessity of placing early orders for this important work, as the first edition will soon be exhausted.

In commenting on the statistics the Publishers' Circular says:

"The table we now present to our readers shows, as compared with the return for 1891, an increase of between five and six hundred books published during the year. New editions are included in this estimate. A notable contribution to the added figures is the number of new novels and new editions of works of fiction. Among these, no doubt, are many works intended for young people. From the mere titles it is often impossible to learn whether a story is meant for adults or younger persons. It may be added that, nowadays, the greater proportion of so-called juvenile fiction is of so high a class that the reader himself may sometimes be in uncertainty as to the class to which a book actually before him belongs. The author has, it may be, acted on Sir Walter Scott's dictum, 'Do not write down to young persons'—which is, after all, but a paraphrase of another famous saying, 'Maxima debetur pueri reverentia.' As for novels proper, we are inclined, in part at any rate, to attribute their prodigious increase to the number of stories which are published serially in papers, periodicals and magazines. These become books later on.

"The most noticeable point about the figures of 1892 is, we think, that any increase in the number of books should be apparent, bearing in mind the wonderful development of periodical and newspaper literature, and the extent to which the attention of readers is necessarily diverted from less ephemeral literature."

BOOK PRODUCTION IN FRANCE IN 1892.—According to the Bibliographie de la France the number of books issued in France during 1892 was 13,123, showing a falling off of 1069 volumes as against the issue in 1891. The number of musical compositions was 5093, or 15 more than in 1891; and the number of engravings, lithographs and photographs 1526, or 2 less than in the previous year.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, held on Wednesday evening, January 18, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Association be tendered by this Board of Trustees to the Committee on Entertainment, Messrs. Charles A. Burkhardt, John A. Holden, William J. Kelly and Joseph F. Vogelius, for the untiring energy, perseverance and consummate ability in the inception and execution in so brilliant a manner of the Authors' Reading given on the evening of January 16, in aid of the Reserve Fund of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association.

THE BOOKS OF 1892.

THE year 1892 was the most busy one for publishers and authors in the experience of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. Our "Weekly Record of New Publications" shows that we entered the titles of 4862 works during that time, exceeding by 86 the number recorded in 1886, when we entered 4776 titles—the highest figure reached at any time before this year—and exceeding by 197 the titles entered in 1891, when they numbered 4665. These 4862 titles, it must be remembered, do not stand for that number of new works by American authors, but include reprints from the English and other sources, translations, importations and new editions, of which latter alone there were 788 works. The balance of publication, however, was in favor of our own writers, who, if they produced few great and exhaustive works, displayed more than usual activity.

Again, as in so many past years, the novel takes the lead in numbers. The actual figures are 1102 works against 1118 of 1890, which year we take for comparison because the last one uninfluenced by the operation of the copyright law. These 1102 novels really mean more than the 1118 of 1890, because they represent that number of distinct works, not duplicate and triplicate copies of the same work, issued by as many different publishers. But 367 of this number were new editions or new issues, probably in a cheaper paper form, leaving 735 new novels to be noticed by this office—that is, two a day for every day in the year, Sundays not excepted.

Reprints of English works and translations were found chiefly in fiction, which embraced beside the best efforts of our own novelists all that was worth reading from famous English or Continental novelists. The other departments are made up of American works, with few exceptions. Our religious, our juvenile works, our law and medical and educational works, our political and social science and our history, are almost wholly American, or if taken from foreign sources are so modified and edited that they owe much of their style, form and purpose to American writers, and are made acceptable to American readers. It is in biography and memoirs, in description and travel, and also, perhaps, in poetry and literary miscellany, that the importation of editions is largely noted. Here apparently the extensive and voluminous works written by our English cousins were not sufficiently in demand to warrant reprinting.

Evidently the workings of the copyright law have made little material change in the character of our literature, except to rid us of the "cheap and nasty" editions of English novels. While we have still the paper novel with us, it now differs scarcely in any way mechanically except in binding from the higher-priced book. Whether the general prosperity of 1892 in the book trade reported from all sides, may be attributed to the Copyright law we are not prepared to say, though the security it afforded to all publishing enterprises must have had some weight in the business of the year. In spite of the "chronic croaker," who is always on hand, the book trade, we believe, is bound to expand and prosper, especially fostered by its present favorable conditions.

A few years ago it was almost impossible to get together a small library of standard works in the English language, published in this country, in sufficiently good editions for binding for permanent rest on the shelves of a private library. Now this is all changed—our publishers, very generally awakened to the demand for good editions, have been giving us many specimens of excellently made books—books that in every detail of paper, print and ornamentation gratify the refined taste of the real book-lover. These good editions, we are glad to note, replaced to a large extent during the holiday season the "Christmas books" of the past—an indication in the way of better reading and extended culture that is full of promise.

With great wealth and the leisure that accompanies it literature and the gentler arts must command renewed culture and appreciation. If "epoch-making" books are not being written by our authors, any more than by the authors of other nations, we are at least reading "epoch-making" books, delving into the great storehouse of the literature of the past, proving in spite of our love for novels just as strong a love for all else that is good and beautiful which has come to us from the writers of other times.

The fact that 1892 was a Columbus year largely colored our literature. Novels, biographies, his tories and poems were inspired by the life and doings of the great discoverer. Several works that we have pointed out in our review have treated the subject in a scholarly and careful manner but outside of these little praise can be bestowed upon the literature so far suggested by our celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America. The East, so long the centre of literary activity, will have to look to its laurels; we have a vigorous and unconventional West that has put forth no mean claim to intellectual superiority during the past year. If some crudity yet characterizes its writing and making of books, its contributions to the literature of 1892 have on the whole been notable.

In closing our review of the year we sadly recall the names of great literary men and women from both hemispheres whose voices are forever silenced. England lost Tennyson in 1892—a loss mourned by all the world—the historian, Edward Augustus Freeman and Amelia B. Edwards, France Renan, and America Whittier, Whitman and George William Curtis. Who shall take their place? Not in this generation can the void left in literature by their loss be ever even partially filled.

Following we give the books of the past year, with those of 1891, for comparison. The classification is as approximately correct as the peculiar difficulty of dividing books into classes allows. It will be seen we recorded 4862 titles; 1872 of these were titles of which we simply received information, indicating that fact by entering them with a star prefixed; the other 2990 titles stand for books received at this office from the publishers and entered in almost all cases with a full explanatory or descriptive note.

FICTION.

In American FICTION almost all our chief novelists were represented by one or two works. From W. D. Howells we received "The Quaker of Mercy," a realistic account of the discovery of a bank defalcation, by an officer of a New England Trust Company, in which appears a wonderful analysis of motive, forming a painful psychological study. "The Three Fates," and "Don Orsino," were F. Marion Crawford's contributions to light literature. In "The Three Fates" a story of New York city, Mr. Crawford evidently made use of his own literary experience to some extent. In "Don Orsino," he introduces the present descendant of "Saracinesca" and "Sant' Ilario"—a young man of the Italian Transition Period, who seeks work and a career in contradistinction to the traditions of his family. Rome of the last two decades, with its financial crisis, is vividly described. A strong, original novel came from Miss Mary E. Wilkins, heretofore known chiefly as a writer of short stories, entitled "Jane Field." It is a powerful character study of an apparently hard, unloving, Puritan New England woman, whose heart leads her away from the beaten paths of rectitude. Mrs. Margaret Deland's "The Story of a Child" is in strong contrast with "Sidney" and "John War Preacher." Theological questions are ignored in it, the writer offering a vivid and touching picture of the personality of a lonely, imaginative, sensitive little girl living with her grandmother in Old Chester, Pennsylvania. Mary Hallock Foote is interesting as usual. Another of her picturesque stories of the Pacific coast, called "The Chosen Valley." Anne Rives, now Mrs. John Armstrong Chanler, wrote a sequel to "The Quick or the Dead," under the title of "Barbara Dering," which traces all the faults and exaggerations of the first book, although Barbara's domestic infelicity in a second marriage are quite cleverly presented. "A First Family of Tasajara" has its scene in Tasajara Valley, California, and recalls in vivacity and unexpectedness, its author's—Harte—earlier works. The characters are typical of the region in which the story is laid, and the scenes are such as could only have taken place in the wild, unsettled country described. Mrs. Rensselaer Cruger ("Julien Gordon") only produced one story, "Marionettes," a pathetic experience, with characters from New York and a life and scenes shifting from America to France. Though extremely readable the novel scarcely carries out the promise of a "A Puritan Pagan." In collaboration with William Shreve the well-known English writer, Blanche W. Howard, now Mrs. von Teuffel, produced a novel entitled "A Fellow and His Wife," which is evidently novel in construction. The plot characters are developed through a series of letters between a husband and wife, Mr. Sharp having written the wife's letters, and Blanche Willis Howard the husband's. The scenes are Rome and Germany, the story being told with unusual grace and literary ability. Blanche Willis Howard wrote alone "A Battle and a Boy," a pretty story of a little Tyrolean waif, for young people. A characteristic story by Anna Katharine Green, the author of "The Leavenworth Case," met with a popular success; it is entitled "Cynthia Wakeham's Money," and is rich in mysteries and horrors. "Calmire," by an anonymous author supposed to be an American, was probably the most discussed American novel of the year. It is a story with a purpose, having but a thread of a plot, on which are strung long, exhaustive theological discussions between the hero, an agnostic, and the heroine, a young, ardent believer.

Edgar Fawcett evinced his usual industry. To him are to be credited three novels, viz., "Women Must Weep," "The Adopted Daughter" and "An Heir to Millions." In all three he illustrates some familiar phase of the "fringe" of New York social life, and is always graphic and sincere. Maria Louise Pool made a very strong and pleasant impression with two of her stories, first given to the reading world through the pages of the New York Tribune and afterwards issued in book form, which are called "Roweny in Boston" and "Mrs. Keats Bradford." One is a sequel to the other, the two forming an unusually true-to-life picture of a New England girl's thoughts and aspirations. Other New England stories were "Winterborough," by Eliza Orne White, the author of "Miss Brooks;" "A Golden Gossip," by Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney; "Roger Hunt," by Celia Parker Woolley, which attracted considerable attention; "Pratt Portraits," by Anna Fuller; "The Heresy of Mehetabel Clark," by Annie Trumbull Slosson; "Miss Wilton," by Cornelia Warren; and "Vesty of the Basins," by Sarah P. McLean Greene, who wrote "Cape Cod Folks." Her present novel takes for its scene a small fishing village on the far "down-east" coast of Maine.

Our Columbian celebration colored the literature of 1892. The novels, however, on this subject were not numerous. Constance Goddard Du Bois wrote "Columbus and Beatriz," which gives in the guise of fiction a chapter from the romantic side of the life of Columbus. The series of Columbian Historical Novels embraced four volumes by the same author, John R. Munsick, forming a consecutive narrative, the intention of the series being to give a complete history of the United States from the discovery of America to the present day. The names of the books so far published are: "Columbia," "Estevan," "Pocahontas" and "Saint Augustine." Six other volumes are yet to come to complete the plan. The Columbus Library, adapted by Elise L. Lathrop from the German of C. Falkenhorst, has been so Americanized that it may be mentioned in this classification. It comprises three historical romances, viz.: "With Columbus in America," "With Cortez in Mexico" and "With Pizarro in Peru."

"The Châtelaine of la Trinité" is a companion volume to "The Chevalier of Il Pensieri-Vani," by Henry B. Fuller ("Stanton Page"), being, like the latter volume, a pleasing melange of thoughts about various timely topics given in the form of a story. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "Characteristics" naturally follows here, discussing as it does also almost every topic besides the story it professes to set forth. "San Salvador," by Mary Agnes Tincker, pictures life as the author thinks it ought to be and might be, through a story of a Utopian community situated in Italy. Hamlin Garland added to his reputation by four new stories, strictly American in character and motive and all having a distinct purpose: "Jason Edwards, an Average Man," being a sympathetic presentation of the wrongs of the laborer; "A Spoil of Office," treating of the corruption in our political life; "A Member of the Third House," dealing with the power of the press and the selfish aims of corporations, and "A Little Norsk, or, Ol' Pap's Flaxen," which first appeared in the Century Magazine, being a pretty, poetical story of Western life. Robert Grant in "The Reflections of a Married Man" is delightfully humorous in picturing the domestic woes of the "much-married" man. "Moonblight," by Dan Beard, takes up the oft-discussed questions of labor and capital. A new writer, John Seymour Wood, in the early part of the year betrayed an intimate acquaintance with the vices and follies of New York fashionable life in "Gramercy Park;" this novel was followed recently by "A Daughter of Venice," which is rich in romance and picturesque incident. "The Fate of Fenella" is a literary novelty, its twenty-four chapters being the work of twenty-four different authors, American and English. Harold Frederic is deliciously humorous in "The Return of the O'Mahony;" H. H. Boyesen revives a familiar subject in "The Golden Calf;" "Miss Bagg's Secretary," by Clara Louise Burnham, is a romance of West Point; Marion Harland carries the reader back a century and a half ago in a story of Virginia—"His Great Self;" James M. Ludlow, the author of "The Captain of the Janizaries," immortalizes the trained nurse in "That Angelic Woman;" and Edward Everett Hale says many things complimentary to American life in "Sybil Knox, or, home again."

Other American novels of the past year that cannot go unmentioned are: "Quabbin," the story of a small New England town, by Francis H. Underwood; "Tatters," by Fanny D. Bates; "The Other House," by Kate Jordan; "The Preacher's Daughter" and "Love for an Hour Is Love Forever," by Mrs. Amelia E. Barr; "An Artist in Crime," by Rodrigues Ottolengui; "Mona Maclean, Medical Student," by Graham Travers; "A Princess of Fiji," by William Churchill; "An American Nobleman," by William Armstrong; "Muriel Howe," by Angelina Teal; "Monica, the Mesa," by Mrs. Evelyn Raymond; "Scarabæus," by the Marquise Clara Lanza and James Clarence Harvey; "An Earthly Paragon," by Eva Wilder McGlasson; "Buffeting," by Jeannette Pemberton; "Cortlandt Laster, Capitalist," by Harley Deene; "Other Things Being Equal," by Emma Wolf; "A Son of Esau" and "The Woman Who Stood Between," by Minnie Gilmore; "From Dusk to Dawn," by Mrs. Katharine Pearson; "Kin-dashon's Wife," by Mrs. Eugene S. Willard; "On the Rack," by W. C. Hudson; "Gold or Pleasure," by George Parsons Lathrop; "The Golden Bottle," by Ignatius Donnelly; "A Maiden of Mars," by F. M. Clarke; "Messages from Mars," by Robert D. Braine; and three works by Mrs. Harriet Lewis, entitled "Neva's Three Lovers," "Beatrix Rohan" and "Cecil Rosse."

The volumes of short stories by American writers represent some of our most famous names in fiction. Nine sketches by F. Hopkinson Smith under the title of "A Day at Laguerre's and Other Days," make a charming little volume of picturesque description of scenes from all parts of the world, starting from a well-known French restaurant on the Bronx River, N. Y. "The Lesson of the Master," novelettes of English life and character, by Henry James, testify that there is no falling off from the author's old incisive style and keen satire. "Van Bibber and Others," by Richard Harding Davis, introduces again the author's favorite hero in a new series of romantic and amusing adventures. "Young Lucretia, and Other Stories," and "The Pot of Gold, and Other Stories," both by Mary E. Wilkins, border on juvenile literature, but they are such delightful reading, in the author's most characteristic vein, that we cannot omit them in our summary. The first volume is made up of studies of New England characters. In the same line are "A New England Cactus, and Other Tales," by Frank Pope Humphrey, and "David Alden's Daughter, and Other Stories of Colonial Times," by Mrs. Jane G. Austin. The negro of the extreme South is characterized in Joel Chandler Harris' "Uncle Remus and His Friends," a collection of plantation stories, songs and ballads and character sketches. Other tales of the South, Louisiana chiefly, are offered in Grace King's "Tales of a Time and Place;" Mrs. Burton Harrison is the author of two volumes of tales, also of Louisiana and other Southern States, called "A Daughter of the South" and "Belhaven Tales;" Tennessee and North Carolina life are the subjects of "Silhouettes of American Life," by Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis; "The Blue-Grass Region of Kentucky" is graphically described in a series of sketches and tales by James Lane Allen; Richard Malcolm Johnston embraces new studies of Georgia life and character in "Mr. Billy Downs and His Likes" and in "Mr. Fortner's Marital Claims." The extreme West is celebrated in several volumes, namely: "The Jonah of Lucky Valley," by Howard Seely; "The Average Woman," by Wolcott Balestier; "A Crown of Thorns" and "Santos' Brother," by Flora Haines Loughhead; "Colonel Starbottle's Client, and Some Other People," by Bret Harte, and "In Beaver Cove and Elsewhere," by Matt Crim.

To this long list may be added "Old Ways and New," short stories by Viola Roseboro which attracted considerable attention; George A. Hibbard's "The Governor, and Other Stories;" "My Friend Pasquale, and Other Short Stories," by James Selwin Tait; Mark Twain's "Merry Tales;" Julian Sturgis' "After Twenty Years," short stories of English life by an American writer who resides in England; F. D. Millet's "A Capillary Crime, and Other Stories;" Edward Shippen's "A Christmas at Sea;" Robert Barr's "In a Steamer Chair;" "Far from To-Day," by Gertrude Hall; "A Charge for France, and Other Stories," by John Heard, Jr.; "The Bull Calf, and Other Tales," by A. B. Frost; and "Don Finimondone," a collection of picturesque Calabrian sketches by Elizabeth Cavazza.

English FICTION, as we made its acquaintance through the medium of American reprints, appeared exceptionally rich in notable additions, while a number of works of more than average merit may be pointed out. We think it will be generally acknowledged that Mrs. W. K. Clifford's "Aunt Anne" was the most brilliant and original English novel of 1892, and the one which achieved the greatest popular success. It seemed to fulfil all the requisites of fiction; it was fresh and unconventional in subject; true to life; therefore both amusing and pathetic and at the same time well constructed and vivaciously written. Two other novels which made a strong impression, but which appealed to a more thoughtful and necessarily a more restricted class of readers, were Mrs. T. Humphry Ward's "History of David Grieve," and Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." The stories, although not at all alike, are both characterized by a strange power and a wonderful insight into the causes of human actions. "David Grieve," like "Robert Elsmere," discusses current ethical and religious and social problems, but it shows a finer literary quality than that book, and is superior merely as a story. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" is a painfully true picture of an unfortunate woman, set in an artistic frame of scenes from the dairy district of rural England. A granddaughter of Charles Dickens, Mary Angela Dickens, made quite a success with her first novel, "Cross-Currents." London's artistic and theatrical life is carefully depicted in it, as if studied at first hand. Walter Besant wrote "The Ivory Gate" and put his name as editor on a work called "Dorothy Wallis," said to be an autobiography of a real young woman who tried to earn a living in London in many capacities. The first novel, "The Ivory Gate," deals with socialism and has the rather hackneyed device of a character unconsciously living a dual life. "His Grace" was the only work from the pen of W. E. Norris; it displayed his usual keen perception of human nature's foibles. "The Slave of the Lamp" is a clever novel of London journalistic life by H. Seton Merriman. The author of "A Village Tragedy," Margaret L. Woods, added "Esther Vanhomrigh" to her first success—a romance founded upon facts in the career of Dean Swift. To Miss Braddon must be credited "The Venetians;" to Matilda Betham Edwards "The Romance of a French Parsonage" and "A North Country Comedy;" to Dorothea Gerard "Etelka's Vow," a story of Austria and Hungary, and "A Queen of Curds and Cream," with its scene in Austria and England; to Hamilton Aidé "A Voyage of Discovery," which represents American society as fairly as it can be seen through an Englishman's eyes. "The Wrecker," written by Robert L. Stevenson, in collaboration with an American, Lloyd Osbourne, is full of incident and mystery, relating the amusing experiences of a man who purchased a wreck. James Payn contributed to fiction "A Stumble on the Threshold" and "A Modern Dick Whittington;" Frank Barrett "Out of the Jaws of Death;" Paul Cushing "The Blacksmith of Voe."

A Dutch gentleman, J. Van der Poorsen Schwartz, who writes under the pseudonym of "Maarten Maartens" and who has had all his works published in England, being no prophet in his own country, produced one of the notable books of the year—"God's Fool;" a commercial town of Holland is the scene of the novel, the leading character being a deaf, dumb and blind man of great physical beauty. The author also wrote an amusing novelette, "A Question of Taste." Adeline Sergeant, who is always deeply interesting and full of mystery, gave to the world "Sir Anthony's Secret" and "The Story of a Penitent Soul." The charm of "Mrs. Alexander's" novels is potent with all readers; in "Mammion," "For His Sake" and "The Snare of the Fowler" are offered three of her best examples of stories of English high life. Mrs. Oliphant's year's work is embraced in "The Cuckoo in the Nest" and "Diana," both exhibiting all her old-time fascination. Rudyard Kipling and Wolcott Balestier, the young American writer whose untimely death occurred near the end of 1891, had written together "The Naulahka," an exciting tale of adventure and love which shifts from Colorado to India and in which each writer's pen may be plainly traced. Louise de la Rame ("Ouida") did not desert her favorite Italy in "The Tower of Taddeo," her most recent story, the scene of which is laid in Florence; and Rider H. Haggard went back to Africa, the scene of his earlier triumphs, in "Nada the Lily." Australian life and character are celebrated in two clever novels of "Tasma's," called "The White Feather" and "The Penance of Portia James." One of the Islands of Arran on the Irish coast, not hitherto invaded by the romance writers, afforded fresh and attractive material for a novel from the Hon. Emily Lawless, called "Grania." Religious questions take a prominent part in "The Story of Philip Methuen," and "Passing the Love of Women," by Mrs. J. H. Needell—novels evincing talent of no mean order. A. Conan Doyle was weird and sad in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" and "The Great Shadow," the first a study of crime, the second dealing with Napoleon and his wars. "Squire Kate" is a charming pastoral by Robert Buchanan; "The Secret of Narcisse" is a story of art and France in the sixteenth century by Edmund Gosse; "Under Pressure," by the Marchesa Lily Theodoli, is a Roman story of twenty-five years ago; a new writer, whose style and whose material resemble the efforts of Rudyard Kipling and who is only known as "An Idle Exile," wrote a good story of India, "By a Himalayan Lake." Queen Victoria's warm approval of Marie Corelli's works evoked reprints of a number of her novels, namely, "A Romance of Two Worlds," "Ardath," "Thelma," "The Soul of Lilith," and "Morial the Mahatma." They almost all deal with questions of life and death and the world to come as viewed by the theosophists.

There are always a number of bright, readable English love-stories which cannot be overlooked, such as the following group: "Jean de Kerdren," by Jeanne Schultz; "The One Good Guest," by Mrs. L. B. Walford; "T'other Dear Charmer," by Helen Mathers; "A Younger Sister," by Margaret Roberts; "Amethyst," by Christabel R. Coleridge; "Mr. Witt's Widow," by Anthony Hope; "Love-Letters of a Violinist," by Eric Mackay; "That Wild Wheel," by Mrs.

Frances Eleanor Trollope; "Mrs. Bligh," by Rhoda Broughton; "Through Pain to Peace," by Sarah Doudney; "Sir Godfrey's Granddaughters," by Rosa N. Carey; "A Family Likeness," by B. M. Croker; "The Princes of Peele," by W. Westall; "Half Brothers," by Hesba Stretton; "The Ides of March," by G. M. Robins; "Old Dacre's Darling," by Annie Thomas; "His Life's Magnet," by Theodora Elmslie; "A Big Stake," by Mrs. Robert Jocelyn; four novels by Mrs. Hungerford ("The Duchess") called "A Conquering Heroine," "Lady Patty," "The O'Connors of Ballinahinch," and "Nor Wife nor Maid;" "John Strange Winter's (Mrs. H. E. V. Stannard) "Experiences of a Lady Help," "Those Girls," "Only Human" and "Confessions of a Publisher."

So many English novels were reprinted of a high character that we find our space too brief to enumerate them all, so conclude this classification with the following selection: "Allen Grant's "Duchess of Powysland" includes scenes in England and America, and a sensational marriage and a murder trial; a brilliant character study of a Russian woman of rank may be found in Joseph Hatton's "The Princess Mazaroff;" both pathos and humor are the distinguishing qualities of "The Talking Horse," by F. Anstey Guthrie; love, mystery and crime appear in equal quantities in five novels by Fergus Hume, called "The Fever of Life," "Aladdin in London," "A Creature of the Night," "When I Lived in Bohemia," and "The Island of Fantasy;" the wild coast of the Isle of Man is the scene of Hall Calne's humorous "Manx yarn," entitled "Cap'n Davy's Honeymoon" (Hall Calne also wrote "The Last Confession"); the four novels on whose title-pages W. Clark Russell's name appeared were all tales of the sea in his usual style; they are named "A Strange Elopement," "A Marriage at Sea," "Alone on a Wide, Wide Sea," and "Mrs. Dine's Jewels;" "The Mate of the Vancouver," by Morley Roberts, is also a sea-tale, which ends in Australia; "Sea Mew Abbey," by Florence Warden, deals with smugglers and smuggling on the rocky coast of Yorkshire; "Ralph Ryder of Brent," from the same pen, is a clever puzzle of mistaken identity; Baring-Gould's "In the Roar of the Sea" is a tale of smuggling on the Cornish coast in the time of the Georges; Florence Marryat attracted many readers with "The Nobler Sex" and "A Fatal Silence;" Mrs. Otto Booth ("Rita") was unusually interesting in "Asenath of the Ford" and "The Man in Possession;" to Mrs. E. Lovett Cameron belongs "A Loyal Lover," "A Sister's Sin" and "A Daughter's Heart;" to L. T. Meade, "Out of the Fashion," "A Ring of Rubies" and "The Medicine Lady;" to May Crommelin, "For the Sake of the Family;" "The Head of the Firm," by Mrs. J. H. Riddell, is in the writer's best vein, with a touching love episode and a lovely heroine; love is also the theme of Mrs. Campbell Praed's "December Roses"—but with a middle-aged couple as leading characters; and Mrs. Louisa Parr's "The Squire" is an ideal English country romance; in line with these are Ada Cambridge's "Not all in Vain" and "My Guardian;" "A Member of Tattersall's" is built upon a sporting episode in Hawley Smart's usual vein; I. Zangwill wrote a notable book on the Jews of the East End of London under the title of "Children of the Ghetto," and is also the author of a bright, witty volume, "The Old Maids' Club."

We were indebted to English sources for quite a number of volumes of short stories during 1892. Among the most delicious collections were those from the author of "Aunt Anne"—Mrs. W. K. Clifford; her "Love-Letters of a Worldly Woman" are imbued with a charming cynicism and betray a most graceful power of satire; "The Last Touches, and Other Stories," also bearing her name, are additional proof of how well she knows her world. J. M. Barrie, the author of "The Little Minister," gathered some sketches and papers together under the title of "A Holiday in Bed." Barry Pain's "Playthings and Parodies" and "Stories and Interludes" are strikingly fresh and original. Violet Paget ("Lee Vernon") aimed some polite sarcasm at fashionable woman in three stories named "Vanitas." Belonging also to this group are: "I Saw Three Ships, and Other Winter Tales," by Arthur T. Quiller-Couch; "The Reputation of George Saxon," by Morley Roberts; "Margery of Quether," by S. Baring-Gould; "The History of a Failure," by E. Chilton; "Verbena Camellia Stephanotis, and Other Stories," by Walter Besant; "The Doings of Raffles Haw," by A. Conan Doyle; and "In Tent and Bungalow" and "Indian Idyls," both by "An Idle Exile."

Handsome new library editions were offered of a number of standard English works. Jane Austen's novels were issued in two different and equally dainty editions. Charles Reade's greatest novel, "The Cloister and the Hearth," was published in four elegant volumes; Anthony Trollope's "Chronicles of Barsetshire" in thirteen volumes; Bulwer-Lytton's "Novels and Romances" began to be issued with "The Caxtons" (2 v.), the remaining thirty-eight volumes being promised for 1893; there were also reprints of the Baroness Tautpheus' "Initials." Charles Dickens the Younger's edition of his father's works was continued, and an excellent new edition begun of Sir Walter Scott, called the Dryburgh Edition. William Black's works were also continued in the new Library Edition.

The translations from French FICTION were not so numerous as in 1891. Among the more important works was an effective translation by Mrs. J. Simpson of a very charming picture of French rustic life by Jules de Glouvet, "The Woodman," known in French as Le Forestier. The author, who has always written under his pseudonym of "Guernay de Beaurepaire," is the distinguished Procureur-General of France, his novel being accepted as one of the first attempts at reaction against the literary methods of Zola and his followers. Émile Zola's most recent work, "The Downfall" (La Débâcle) is considered among his best. It paints the horrors of war with a master hand, finding its material in the thrilling drama of the Franco-German campaign with the downfall of Louis Napoleon at Sedan. A second series of "Pastels of Men," translated by Miss Wormeley from the French of Paul Bourget, met with as great a success as the first series. Miss Wormeley's new translations from Honoré de Balzac, were "Pierrette," "Albert Savarus" and "The Chouans," the latter being a wonderfully graphic history of the civil war in Brittany in 1779. To prove divorce a failure Alphonse Daudet embodied his theories in a story of the France of to-day, entitled "Rose and Ninette;" a translation was also made of his La Lutte as "The Battle of Love." French country life, with its delightful fêtes champêtres and hunting parties, is the picturesque background of "Nimrod & Co.," by Georges Ohnet. A collection of French tales is enclosed in Pierre Loti's volume, "The Book of Pity and of Death;" "The Mother of a Marquise" and "The Aunt's Stratagem," issued under one cover, are two of Edmond About's characteristic novelettes. The three latter novels were included in Cassell's Sunshine Series, other numbers of the series, being Émile Souvestre's "Man and Money," "War under Water," by a new French writer who recalls Jules Verne's methods, but who withholds his name, and "Renée and Colette," by Debut Laforest. In Worthington's International Library the following translations from the French appeared: "The Heiress," by Henry Gréville; "Conscience," by Hector Malot and "Four Destinies," by Théophile Gautier. Other French novels seen in translations were: "A Young Girl's Love," by Madame E. Caro; "Georgette," by Th. Bentzon; "Nameless Love," by C. Lomon; "Romance of Trouville," by Alfred de Bréhat; "A Young Man of the Period," by André Theuriet; "Aurette's Husband," by Henri Gréville; "Tlo-mané," by Jacques Vincent; "L'Ombra," by A. Gennevraye; "Stronger than Death," by Emile Richebourg; "Little Man" (Petit homme), by Adolph Belot; Camille Flammarion's "Lumen" and "Hermine's Triumphs," by Madame C. Colomb.

From the German, Ebers' "A Thorny Path" (Per Aspera), translated by Clara Bell, was one of the most notable novels. The scene is Alexandria during the visit of the Emperor Caracalla, A.D. 214; the story is rich in historical detail painted with much power. Eckstein's "Hertha," unlike his former works, is a romance of modern times. Maurus Jókai, a Hungarian novelist, had two of his works translated from the German, "Pretty Michal" and "The Nameless Castle;" the first relates to Hungary in the 17th century, the second to Hungary of a more recent date and to Napoleon's Austrian campaigns. "Ossip Schubin's" novels were "Felix Lanzberg's Expiation" and "The Hand of Destiny." In Worthington's International Library were included the Baroness Nataly von Eschstruth's "Wild Rose of Gross-Staufen" and "The Erl Queen;" Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach's "Beyond Atone-ment" and "The Household Idol," by Marie Bernhard. Romances of German home life are represented by "Dear Elsie," by J. von Dewall; "Hanging Moss," by Paul Lindau, "Prince and Musician," by Max Ring; and "True Daughter of Hartenstein," by E. Vely. "The Monk and the Hangman's Daughter," by Ambrose Bierce and Gustave A. Danziger, is a seventeenth century story full of the weird and horrible. "Ground Arms," by Baroness Bertha von Suttner, is a strong plea against the suffering war brings to the individual, presented in the guise of fiction. "The Hungarian Girl" relates to the Hungarian revolution of 1848. Mariam Tenger is the author.

The Holland Fiction Series, begun during the past year, aims to include the best novels by young Dutch writers of the new school. So far it has only presented two works, from the pen of Louis Couperus. They both show the influence of the English school of fiction. One, "Footsteps of Fate," has its scene in England; the other "Eline Vere," is a story of domestic life at the Hague, and both are painful psychological studies. From the Spanish came "The Child of the Ball," by Pedro A. de Alarcón; "The Angular Stone," by Emilia Pardo Bazán; "Faith," by Don Armando Palacio; "Don Braulio," by Juan Valera; and a new translation of Galdós' "Marianela." Only two novels can be mentioned as having been taken from the Russian: "Prince Serebryani," an historical novel of the times of Ivan the Terrible and of the conquest of Siberia, by Count Alexis Tolstol, a brother of the Tolstol, and "The General's Daughter," by N. H. Potapchko.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

Speculative works, as well as religious, are gathered together under this heading, and some philosophical and ethical works. The numbers in this department fall slightly behind those of 1891, and the notable works are in comparison much smaller. The seventh volume was finished in Dr. Philip Schaff's great work, the "History of the Christian Church." It forms one of the most important religious works by an American writer issued in 1892. It is the second volume of the "History of the Reformation," its subject being "Modern Christianity—the Swiss Reformation." It follows the Protestant movement in German, Italian and French Switzerland to the close of the sixteenth century. Several new volumes were also added to Dr. Schaff's great gathering together of the writings of "The Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers." Dr. Charles A. Briggs sets forth more fully in "The Bible, the Church and the Reason"—a series of lectures—the views expressed in his inaugural address on the "Authority of Holy Scripture." The volume is specially timely and interesting. The International Theological Library, of which the first volume was issued in 1891, received two additions last year—one from an American source and the other from an English writer—but for convenience we name them together. "Christian Ethics" was the theme of the Rev. Dr. Newman Smyth's volume, a scientific and complete account of the ethics of the Christian consciousness and life; "Apologetics, or Christianity Defensively Stated," was discussed in the third volume of this series by Dr. Alexander Balmain Bruce, who is professor of apologetics and New Testament exegesis in Free Church College, Glasgow. The third volume, "Christian Scriptures," of Bartlett and Peters' "Scriptures, Hebrew and Christian," was published. This work was begun in 1886 and has proved very useful in the study of the Bible, being carefully arranged and edited for that purpose.

The last eight discourses of the great Unitarian, the late Rev. James Freeman Clarke, are embraced under the title of "The Lord's Prayer." Dr. Frank F. Ellinwood's "Oriental Religions and Christianity" was the course of lectures delivered by him on the Ely Foundation before the students of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1891. The rector of Calvary Church, Pittsburg, the Rev. George Hodges, published twenty-one sermons on every-day questions with the title "Christianity Between Sundays." "Stirring the Eagle's Nest" is a volume of sermons by Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler of the Lafayette Avenue Church, Brooklyn. "Ready, Ay, Ready!" contains sermons by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage. "Personality" embraces eighteen discourses by Mr. S. R. Fuller, rector of St. Paul's Church in Malden, Mass.; the sermons all teach a personal God and display a special literary quality. The "Sermons on the International Sunday-School Lessons for 1893," by the Monday Club, possess the same valuable features as their numerous predecessors. "West Roxbury Sermons" are sermons preached by Theodore Parker in West Roxbury from 1837 to 1848, and are printed from unpublished manuscripts. "A Plea for the Gospel" comes from Dr. G. D. Herron, being four excellent sermons delivered before ecclesiastical associations. Also for members of the ministry or divinity students is the work of the Rev. Arthur T. Pierson on "The Divine Art of Preaching." Dr. Pierson filled Spurgeon's pulpit during his last illness and after his death, preaching the above sermons at the Pastor's College connected with the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London. The Rev. H. W. Little, of Holy Trinity Church, Sussex, New Brunswick, prepared a volume under the title "Arrows for the King's Archers," containing analytic outline addresses upon religious, temperance and social topics, which speakers generally will find very useful. Other sermons are Dr. C. Cuthbert Hall's "Into His Marvellous Light"—the author being minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. J. Dawson's "The Church of To-Morrow"—meaning Methodism—consisting of addresses delivered in the United States and Canada during the autumn of 1891; "The Making of a Man," by the Rev. Dr. Lee, of Atlanta, Ga.; and "Natural Religion in Sermons," by James Vila Blake. Missionary work in the East, with its needs and possibilities, is fully treated in several volumes. "An American Missionary in Japan," by the Rev. M. L. Gordon, is rich in information gained at first hand. "The Bishop's Conversion," by Ellen Blackmar Maxwell, was written to refute the false impressions of missionary life that exist in England and America, and treats of native life in India. "Korea from Its Capital," with chapters on missionary work, also includes information in a popular form that all missionaries are seeking. It is written by the Rev. G. W. Gilmore. "The Story of Uganda and the Victoria Nyanza Mission" was written by Sarah Geraldine Stock.

The doctrinal teachings of the Apostle Paul are made the subject of a scholarly volume "The Pauline Theology," by George B. Stevens, professor of New Testament criticism at Yale University. In "Indications of the Second Book of Moses, called Exodus," Edward B. Latch applied the same system of interpretation made familiar in his previous works on the books of the Bible. "The Revisers' Greek Text," by the Rev. S. W. Whitney, is the result of many years' painstaking labor and research being a critical examination of certain readings, textual and marginal, in the original Greek of the New Testament, adopted by the late Anglo-American revisers. It should be in the hands of all students of the original text. The Charlotte Wood Slocum lectures for 1892 were on "The Chaldean Degree." The lecturer was Dr. John Fulton. This lectureship was established as a memorial to Bishop Harris, of Michigan. "Credo and Credulity" is an exposition of the "Apostles' Creed" by an anonymous author who signs himself "a believer." "Gloria Patri" talks about the Trinity, by James Morris Whiton, is for thoughtful laymen. Robert Shiells in a little volume gives the interesting "Story of the Token," a custom once used in the Scotch Presbyterian Church and belonging to the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The influences and effects of paganism on Christianity are treated in Dr. Abram Herbert Lewis' work, "Paganism: Surviving in Christianity." That the Sabbath was made for man is the point of view from which the Rev. J. Q. Bittinger wrote "A Plea for the Sabbath and for Man."

Other works to be mentioned in this classification are: "Systematic Theology" (v. 1), by Dr. J. Miley; "Religion for the Times," by Dr. Lucien Clark, who is assistant editor of the Christian Advocate; "The Organic Union of American Methodism," by Bishop S. M. Merrill, which considers the consolidation of all the dis-severed branches of Methodism in the United States under one government; "Evolution of Love," by Dr. Emory Miller, which teaches that individual perfection may be attained through lessons taught by an ideal love; "The Every Day of Life," by the Rev. J. R. Miller, dedicated "to those who want to grow better;" "God's Image in Man" by Henry Wood, the author of "Natural Law in the Business World," consisting of graphic pictures of advanced religious thought; "The Human and its Relation to the Divine," by Theodore F. Wright; "The Love of the World," a book of religious meditation, by Mary Emily Case; "The Sources of Consolation in Human Life," by W. Rounseville Alger; "The Life Beyond," by George Hepworth, which offers a sure hope that immortality is a part of the divine plan; "The Unseen Friend," by Lucy Larcom, full of spiritual help and suggestion; "The Gospel of the Holy Spirit," by S. W. Pratt, written as a devotional help for the church at large, and "A Book of Prayer," from the public administrations of Henry Ward Beecher, compiled from unpublished reports by T. J. Ellenwood, mostly taken from Mr. Beecher's lecture-room talks.

Myron Adams in the "Creation of the Bible" seeks to co-ordinate the results of the higher criticism into a systematic account of the evolution of the Christian Scriptures. In harmony with this is "The Evolution of Christianity," by the Rev. Lyman Abbott. Two literary studies of Biblical characters, "Ezekiel" and "Jeremiah," by William G. Ballantine, president of the Oberlin College, make these two figures very real and instructive. A valuable and interesting work is represented in the Rev. John Wright's "Early Bibles of America," which gives a graphic account, both bibliographic and biographic, of first editions of the Bibles printed in the United States. "Ethical Teachings in Old English Literature" discusses old English books and authors from a religious standpoint; Prof. T. W. Hunt finds in their teachings an influence that worked strongly in favor of the great Reformation. "The Rationale of Mesmerism," by A. P. Sinnett, a speculative work which is too subtle in thought to be easily classified, may be mentioned here; also "Faith-Healing, Christian Science and Kindred Phenomena," by Dr. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, which takes a common-sense view of all these subjects and abounds in many curious anecdotes.

Religious and theological works from English or foreign authors were quite limited in numbers and in importance. The Expositor's Bible Series received the following additions: "Epistles to the Thessalonians," by the Rev. J. Denney; "Book of Job," by the Rev. R. A. Watson; "Epistles to the Ephesians," by the Rev. G. G. Findlay; the second volume of "The Gospel of St. John," by the Rev. M. Dods; and the second volume of "Acts of the Apostles," by the Rev. G. T. Stokes. This is the fifth yearly series of this important publication, which has been found an indispensable one with all students. "The Sermon Bible," a kindred work well known and liked by busy divines, containing as it does the best homiletic literature of this generation, was increased by two new volumes, the one covering "John iv. to Acts vi.," the other running from "Acts vii. to 1 Corinthians xvi." "The People's Bible," by Joseph Parker, had volumes sixteenth and seventeenth added to it. They embrace discourses on Jeremiah, Daniel and Hosea-Malachi. Another great homiletical work that has been years in preparation in London has just been presented to American readers through a reprint of the first volume. The work is comprised in twenty volumes the other volumes being promised as rapidly as they can be brought out. They all refer to the Old Testament, are by various authors, and include a sermon outline on every paragraph or verse of the Old Testament. The first volume received bears the title "Homiletical Commentary on the Book of Genesis, Chapters I. to VIII. and Chapters IX. to L." The authors are the Rev. J. S. Exell and the Rev. T. H. Leale. Julian's "Dictionary of Hymnology" is a work of reference that should be in the library of every divine and every scholar. The information it contains is something wonderful and never before brought together under the same cover; it relates to the origin and history of Christian hymns of all ages and nations, with biographical notices of their authors, translators, etc., etc.

The principal of Pusey House, Charles Gore, who was much criticised several years ago for an article on "The Holy Spirit and Inspiration" which appeared in "Lux Mundi," delivered four lectures in June, 1892, in the Cathedral Church of St. Asaph in North Wales, which have been collected in book form under the title "The Mission of the Church;" copious notes define points of doctrine. An expository and homiletic work on "The Miracles of our Lord" was written by the Rev. John Laidlaw; "Notes of Lessons on the Church in the New Testament," by the Rev. E. L. Cutts; the Ten Commandments suggested fifteen practical sermons by Canon Farrar, called "The Voice from Sinai;" the Baird lecture for 1889, delivered by Dr. James Robertson, and only last year put into book form, had for its subject "The Early Religion of Israel;" "The Hope of the Gospel" represents twelve sermons by George MacDonald; Christina G. Rossetti is the author of "The Face of the Deep," a devotional commentary on the Apocalypse.

Limited editions were imported from England of the works which follow: "Sermons Preached in Lincoln's Inn Chapel," by F. Denison Maurice; "Verbum Crucis," ten sermons on the mystery and words of the cross, by Bishop W. Alexander; "Dissertations on the Apostolic Age," by Bishop J. B. Lightfoot; "Present Position of Catholics in England" and "Discourses to Mixed Congregations," by Cardinal Newman. "Light and Peace," sermons by Dr. H. Robert Reynolds; "The Anglican Career of Cardinal Newman," by Edwin A. Abbott (2 v.); "The Natural History of Immortality," by the Rev. Jos. W. Reynolds; "Short Sermons," by the Rev. Stopford A. Brooke; "Growth in Grace, and Other Sermons," and "Christ the Light of all Scripture," by Archbishop W. Magee; "Sermons," by H. Scott Holland; and "From Advent to Advent," sermons preached at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, by Aubrey L. Moore.

From the German came sermons and a memoir of "Theodor Christlieb, D.D. of Bonn," who died in 1889, and who for twenty-one years occupied the chair of pastoral theology in the University of Bonn, and was one of its ablest professors and most eloquent preachers, and "History of the Christian Church, 1600," by W. Moeller. A translation from the Latin of Thomas à Kempis' "Meditations on the Life of Christ" made known to the world a work of which it had been hitherto ignorant, though its author is believed to have counted it a proper sequel and companion to his "Imitation."

BIOGRAPHY.

The books published under the heading of BIOGRAPHY, which includes also MEMOIRS and CORRESPONDENCE, although they did not number quite half as many as those published under RELIGION AND THEOLOGY, far exceed the latter in notable works. The first interest in American BIOGRAPHY centres naturally in works relating to Columbus. These are mostly popular in style, not, with a few exceptions, being remarkable for exhaustiveness of treatment or pronounced literary qualities. Prof. Charles Kendall Adams' "Christopher Columbus," in the Makers of America Series, is conceived in the spirit of modern criticism and shows research and care. "Story of the Discovery of the New World by Columbus" is a brief but accurate compilation of the facts in Columbus' whole career, compiled by the scholarly librarian of the Astor Library, New York City, Mr. Frederick Saunders. "Columbus and His Discovery of America," orations and addresses by Prof. Herbert B. Adams and Prof. Henry Wood, of the Johns Hopkins University, besides being eloquent and enthusiastic, embrace valuable bibliographies. All these volumes are set in a framework of history, as many biographies are; in works where history seemed to predominate we have mentioned them under HISTORY. "The Story of Columbus," as told by Elizabeth Eggleston Seelye, formed the initial volume of the Delights of History Series, a new series edited by Edward Eggleston, which will tell the stories of other great lives and picturesquely present the coloring and details of the times and environments of their subjects. Author, editor and artist united to make this volume attractive and popular. "The True Story of Christopher Columbus" also began a new series, to be called Children's Lives of Great Men. The author is the popular writer Elbridge S. Brooks, who possesses a most pleasing method of rendering dry facts palatable. Both this work and that of Mrs. Seelye were written professedly for children, but they are among the best biographies of the great discoverer for readers of any age. Letters of Christopher Columbus written to Ferdinand and Isabella, and others of that time, were gathered together by Paul Leicester Ford and edited, with an introduction, as one of the little volumes of the Fiction, Fact and Fancy Series. It may be asked for under the title of "Writings of Christopher Columbus," and will be found to contain, besides graphic descriptions of the voyage of discovery, many views and opinions which prove their writer to have been a brave man and advanced thinker. Other works of a rather ephemeral character are Franc B. Wilkie's "Life of Christopher Columbus;" "Life and Adventures of Christopher Columbus," by Alexander Innes; "Christopher Columbus and His Monument, Columbia," a compilation by J. M. Dickey of choice tributes to the great Genoese from upwards of six hundred writers. Charles Elton's "Career of Columbus" is a careful study of all the known biographies of Columbus and a comparison of the value of their statements. Mr. Elton is a Member of Parliament. It will not be out of place to mention here an interesting story written for young readers on Columbus' career, which has the advantage of being both true and romantic, called "Diego Pinzon," by J. Russell Coryell.

Charles Haddon Spurgeon, the great popular preacher of London, whose death occurred in January of 1892, inspired a number of memorial volumes, namely: "From the Usher's Desk to the Tabernacle Pulpit," by the Rev. Robert Shindler, and its sequel, "From the Pulpit to the Palm-Branch," by Dr. A. T. Pierson; "Charles Haddon Spurgeon, Preacher, Author, Philanthropist," by G. Holden Pike; "Spurgeon," anecdotes and reminiscences compiled by Thomas W. Handford; "Charles Haddon Spurgeon, the Puritan Preacher of the 19th Century," a monograph by G. C. Lorimer; "Charles H. Spurgeon, His Faith and Works," by H. L. Wayland, and Dr. Justin D. Fulton's "Charles H. Spurgeon, Our Ally."

Hubert Howe Bancroft's "Chronicles of the Builders of the Commonwealth," historical character studies supplementing his great work, "History of the Pacific States," had volumes 3, 4, 6 and 7 issued, making the series continuous with the volumes published in 1891. Besides giving biographies and portraits of all the leading men of the early days of the Pacific coast, the author includes in these volumes accounts of mines and mining, manufactures, agricultural developments, with which these men were connected; a history of surveys, routes and transportation promoted by them, and an account of the rise of commercial towns on Puget's Sound. The second and third volumes of W. Wirt Henry's picturesque life of "Patrick Henry," published during the year, completed this valuable work. A new revised and enlarged edition of Herndon and Weik's "Abraham Lincoln" called attention anew to one of the most intimate studies ever published of our greatest President; "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln," by Henry C. Whitney, and Charles Carleton Coffin's "Abraham Lincoln" are rich in new material on the same subject, as is also McClure's "Abraham Lincoln and Men of War Times."

The Makers of America Series was enriched by a number of new volumes as follows: "Most Reverend John Hughes," by Dr. Henry Brann; "Jean Baptiste Le Moyne, Sieur de Bienville," the first governor of the State of Louisiana, by Grace King, the author of "Monsieur Motte;" "Robert Morris," the great financier, by William Graham Sumner; "The Life and Times of Bishop White," by Julius H. Ward; "Charles Sumner," by Anna Laurens Dawes; and "Christopher Columbus," by Charles Kendall Adams, already mentioned above. "Life of Charles Sumner," by Archibald H. Grimke, belongs to the American Reformers Series; "William Gilmore Simms" to the American Men of Letters Series, this prolific romancer of the South being sympathetically treated by Prof. W. P. Trent, of the University of the South; the new subject considered in the American Religious Leaders Series were "Mark Hopkins," by Franklin Carter, and "Henry Boynton Smith," by Dr. L. F. Stearns. The Great Commander Series to include biographies of the great American commanders on land and water from Washington to the present day, opened auspiciously with a life of "Admiral Farragut," capitably put together by A. T. Mahon; it fixed itself even more firmly in public favor with its second issue, "General Taylor," by Oliver Otis Howard. General Benjamin F. Butler's recent death points out for special reading his "Autobiography and Personal Reminiscences;" few of our public men had so much to relate of historical and personal matters of a picturesque character, and few had the ability to present them in the attractive guise that was one of his many gifts. A melancholy interest also attaches to a work called "An American Statesman: The Works and Words of James G. Blaine." "Life of George Mason," by Kate Mason Rowland, has for its central figure the intimate friend of Washington, and one of the strongest and most far-seeing men of the Revolution; the work includes Mr. Mason's speeches, public papers and correspondence. The hero of Ticonderoga and the leader of the "Green Mountain boys" is celebrated in Henry Hall's "Ethan Allen, the Robin Hood of Vermont."

In literary biography Katharine Prescott Wormeley's "Memoir of Honoré de Balzac" takes a prominent place; it is largely based upon the narrative of Balzac's childhood and youth by his sister, Madame Surville. "Monsieur Henri" is the portrait of a man whose tragic history was full of romance—La Rochejaquelein—who was involved in the French Revolution; Louise Imogen Guiney paints his character with much grace and poetical appreciation of her material. American art finds its representation in "The Life and Letters of Washington Allston," by Jared B. Flagg; a carefully digested volume on the personality and art-work of a great painter. A historical study was made of one of the most illustrious Christian teachers and representatives of monasticism in the middle ages—"Bernard of Clairvaux," by Dr. R. S. Storrs. Moncure D. Conway's "Life of Thomas Paine" is a dignified tribute to a great man and a profound thinker. Three prominent public and business men told in their lives interesting portions of local and general history: "The First International Railway" describes, through the life and writings of John Alfred Poor, the initiation and completion of the great railroads of Maine; "Men and Events of Forty Years" includes the reminiscences of Josiah Busnell Grinnell, a pioneer settler of Iowa, from 1850 to 1890; the "Life of Joshua R. Giddings" is a valuable contribution to the literature of the anti-slavery movement. Two remarkable women are celebrated in "Memorials of Sarah Childress Polk," wife of the eleventh President, and in "A Military Genius," the life of Anna Ella Carroll, of Maryland, known as "the great unrecognized member of Lincoln's cabinet." Paul Leicester Ford began with the issue of the first volume his compilation of the "Writings of Thomas Jefferson." This great work, when completed, will include ten volumes and will offer rich material for the future biographer.

Men and women noted or famous in many ranks of life and in many professions are included in the remaining titles: "Autobiography of Dr. S. D. Gross;" "Life of Colonel Paul Revere," by Elbridge H. Goss (v. 1); "Memories of the Professional and Social Life of John E. Owens;" "The Moral Crusader, William Lloyd Garrison," by Goldwin Smith; "A Life of Grover Cleveland," by George F. Parker; Walt Whitman's "Autobiographia;" "Mark Twain—His Life and Work;" "Henry Jackson Van Dyke," a memorial volume; "The Story of Mary Washington," by Marion Harland; "Life and Death of Jay Gould;" "Biography of Ignatius Donnelly," by Dr. Everett W. Fish; "The Life and Times of Cotton Mather, D.D.," by Rev. Abijah P. Marvin; "Preacher and Teacher," a sketch of the life of Thomas Rambant, D.D.; "The Early Days of My Episcopate," by Bishop W. Ingraham Kip, of California; a new enlarged edition of the "Life and Times of Frederick Douglass;" "Some American Churchmen," by F. Cook Moorehouse; "Representative Women of Methodism," by Dr. Charles Wesley Buoy; and "Famous Types of Womanhood," by Mrs. Sarah Knowles Bolton; "Alcuin and the Rise of the Christian Schools," by Andrew Fleming West, professor in Princeton College, is a notable volume in the Great Education Series, giving permanent form to the facts in the life of a distinguished English prelate of the ninth century. The "National Cyclopædia of American Biography" was a great work begun in 1892, to be completed in twelve octavo volumes, being the history of the United States as illustrated in the lives of the founders, builders and defenders of the Republic.

A work in English Biography that created many discussions as to the author's identity was "An Englishman in Paris," purporting to be the reminiscences of an Englishman who resided in Paris from the time of Louis Philippe to the period of the Commune. Although no longer claimed, as first reported, to be the work of Sir Richard Wallace, but credited by the Athenæum as coming from the fertile pen and brail of Albert D. Vandam, a Dutch Jew residing in Paris, the work has not lost its interest. "Records of Tennyson, Ruskin, Browning," by Mrs. Anne Thackeray Ritchie, abounds in interesting and friendly gossip of the personalities of these famous people. One of the greatest biographies of the year was "The Life of Michelangelo Buonarroti," in two volumes, by John Addington Symonds, rich in new information and delightfully written. Ferdinand Praeger wrote of "Wagner as I Knew Him." A volume of selected letters of "Lady Mary Wortley Montagu," by Arthur R. Ropes, gives a brief narrative of this famous Englishwoman's checkered life. "An Edinburgh Eleven" stands for eleven pen-portraits of eleven of J. M. Barrie's college contemporaries who became famous. "Letters of Jane Austen," compiled by Sarah Chauncey Woolsey, formed a volume in the new American edition of her novels. "The Life and Adventures of Peg Woffington" (2 v.) and Charles Santley's "Student and Singer" recall names famous in music and dramatic art. The additions made to the Heroes of the Nations Series were "John Wyclif," by Louis Sergeant, and "Julius Cæsar," by W. Warde Fowler. A literary curiosity was a reissue of a work generally credited to John Forster as "Robert Browning's Prose Life of Strafford;" Browning, it is now claimed, wrote the work for Forster during an illness of the latter. The English Men of Letters Series was enriched by John Nichol's "Thomas Carlyle," based on a careful study of Carlyle's writings and various personal impressions and reminiscences. Lives of "Florence Nightingale" and "Michael Faraday" were included in the World's Benefactors Series. Other biographical works worth mentioning were: "James Gilmour, of Mongolia;" Zindorf's "Some Jewish Women;" George Smith's "Henry Martyn, Saint and Scholar;" "Lady Augusta Stanley," being a brief memorial by Mrs. Elizabeth Charles of Dean Stanley's wife; and "A Protestant Poor Friar," the life-story of Travers Madge among the Manchester poor.

A number of English works in this classification of great interest came to us only through limited imported editions. The following group names the majority of them: A. K. H. Boyd's ("The Country Parson") "Twenty-Five Years of St. Andrews" (2 v.); "Memories of Dean Hole;" "My Three Years in Manipur," by Mrs. Frank Grimwood; "Vernon Heath's Recollections;" "English Pen Artists of To-Day," by Charles G. Harper; "Recollections of Marshal Macdonald, Duke Tarentum" (2 v.); "Memoirs of Charles Lamb," by Percy Fitzgerald; "Memoirs of Marguerite de Valois, Queen of Navarre;" "John William Burgon, Late Dean of Chichester," by Dr. E. Meyrick Goulburn (2 v.); "Life and Letters of Samuel Palmer, Painter and Etcher;" "A French Ambassador at the Court of Charles the Second, Le Comte de Cominges," by J. J. Jusserand; "John Leech, His Life and Work," by W. P. Frith (2 v.); Bishop Christopher Wordsworth's "Annals of My Early Life, 1806-1846;" West's "Half-Hours with the Millionaires;" Marianne North's "Recollections of a Happy Life" (2 v.); "Life and Works of John Arbuthnot, M.D.," by G. A. Aitken; "Selections from the Letters of Geraldine Endor Jewsbury to Jane Welsh Carlyle," edited by Mrs. Alexander Ireland; George Jacob Holyoake's "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life" (2 v.); Wright's "Life of William Cowper;" "Edward Burne-Jones," by Malcom Bell; "Autobiographical Notes of the Life of William Bell Scott" (2 v.); "The Table Talk of John Selden;" "Life and Letters of Charles Samuel Keene, of Punch," by G. S. Layard; "Frederic Chopin," by Charles Willeby. In the Queen's Prime Ministers Series were "Viscount Palmerston, K.G.," by the Marquis of Lorne; "The Earl of Derby," by George Saintsbury; "Pitt," by Lord Rosebery, and "Queen Elizabeth," by E. S. Beasley, in the Twelve English Statesmen Series; "Montrose," by Mowbray Morris, in the English Men of Action Series; "Albuquerque," "Lord Lawrence" and "Ranjit Singh" in Rulers of India Series; "Cardinal Manning" in the Religious Leaders Series; "David Livingstone" in Men with a Mission Series; and Ellis' "Charles Haddon Spurgeon" in Lives that Speak Series; "Life and Letters of Joseph Severn," by William Sharp; Moriarty's "Dean Swift." New volumes were added to Sidney Lee's great "Dictionary of National Biography."

The series known as Famous Women of the French Court, translated from the French of Imbert de Saint-Amand, seemed to increase in interest in its recent additions—probably because they brought us nearer our own times; the new volumes were entitled "The Youth of the Duchess of Angoulême," "The Duchess of Angoulême and the Two Restorations," "The Duchess of Berry and the Court of Louis XVIII." and "The Duchess of Berry and the Court of Charles X.;" in the two latter works the Princess Marie Caroline of Naples, who married the Duke of Berry, is the central figure, her fascinating personality and picturesque history deeply impressing the reader. A beautiful and talented woman of two previous centuries, Madame de Staal-Delaunay, was both witty and instructive in her two dainty volumes of "Memoirs." "Memoirs of Baron de Marbot" (2 v.) relate the adventures of a soldier of fortune who began soldier life under Napoleon and was present at the battle of Waterloo. "The Youth of Frederick the Great," from the French of Ernest Lavisse, was ably translated by Mary Bushnell Coleman; "Recollections and Letters" completes Ernest Rénan's "Souvenirs." "Richard Wagner, His Life and Works," was an édition de luxe of Adolphe Jullien's splendid artwork. The "Talleyrand Memoirs" was completed with the fifth volume. Taken from the German were "Moltke, His Life and Character," and "Letters of Field-Marshal Count Helmuth von Moltke," throwing new light on this great general's character; "A Hanoverian-English Officer a Hundred Years Ago," being the memoirs of Baron Christian v. Ompteda, colonel in the King's German Legion, 1765 to 1815; and "Life of Christian Daniel Rauch," the great sculptor of Berlin, Germany.

HISTORY.

The most important historical work of 1892 in Columbian literature by an American writer is John Fiske's "Discovery of America," with some account of ancient America and the Spanish conquest. The two handsome volumes of this work, while giving a graphic account of the work of Columbus and his successors, contains also valuable information of various kinds relating to our early history, taken from original sources. It is only the beginning of a magnificent and comprehensive work on the history of America which Mr. Fiske has planned. This, with Justin Winsor's "Christopher Columbus," published in 1891, furnish exceptionally rich material for students of Columbian history. Prof. George Park Fisher's recent volume in the American History Series, the first of a series of four on "The Colonial Era," deals chiefly with the "old French war;" the succeeding volumes, however, will go back to the discovery. An English writer, Edward John Payne, Fellow of University College, Oxford, begins a most ambitious work in "History of the New World Called America." The first volume, the only one so far issued, does not get further than the discovery of America. It is well written, thoughtful and philosophical, and worthy of careful study. "The Admiral's Last Voyages," a sequel to "With the Admiral of the Ocean Sea," describes the last voyages of Columbus. It is the work of Charles Paul Mackie. "Four Hundred Years of American History," by Jacob Harris Patton, in a new enlarged and revised form, fills a place between the school histories and large elaborate works. "The Memorial Story of America," by Hamilton W. Mable and Marshal H. Bright, covers four hundred years of history from 1492 to 1892. "America, Its Geographical History, 1492-1892," consists of six lectures delivered to graduate students of the Johns Hopkins University by Walter B. Scaife. "The Memorial History of the City of New York from Its First Settlement to 1892," of which volume two was published, is a kindred publication to the foregoing, as is also the "History of the Centennial Celebration of the Inauguration of George Washington as First President of the United States."

An introduction to American history and a work of rare interest will be found in Douglas Campbell's "Puritan in Holland, England and America." The author enters a new field in his researches, his design being to show the nature of the influences which shaped the character of the Puritans of Holland and England when the early settlers of America left their homes, to trace the origin of the ideas and institutions which these settlers brought with them across the ocean, and to explain the mode in which they have worked into our present constitutional system. John Bach McMaster brought out the third volume of his comprehensive "History of the People of the United States from the Revolution to the Civil War." It treats largely of the Louisiana purchase and of the Burr conspiracy, a concluding chapter, "Drifting into War," giving a graphic description of the progress of the people from 1784 to the War of 1812. Eleven years fraught with many exciting events are comprised in the two volumes of James Ford Rhodes' "History of the United States from the Compromise of 1850;" the story is carried down to 1860 with the election of Abraham Lincoln, tracing previously the progress of slavery with its many consequences. Governor Robinson's work on "The Kansas Conflict" may be quoted here as supplementing the story of the previous work. "A Half Century of Conflict" forms part six of the series called "France and England in North America," taking up the narrative at the close of the author's "Count Frontenac and New France under Louis XIV.," which is part five and fills the gap between that work and "Montcalm and Wolfe," part seven; the series now covers the years from 1700 and 1748 and completes Francis Parkman's much-admired work. A valuable contribution to Washingtoniana is the compilation by W. S. Baker from Washington's papers of the "Itinerary of General Washington, from June 15, 1775, to December 23, 1783." "Fort Pitt and Letters from the Frontier" belongs to a period a little anterior to the Revolution. "Diary of George Mifflin Dallas while United States Minister to Russia and to England" is full of interesting historical facts as well as gossip of courts. "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," by Charles Francis Adams, deals with the settlement of Boston Bay, the Antinomian controversy, and includes a study of church and town government. "History of the Fifty-fourth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, 1863-1865," and of the 159th Regiment Infantry, New York State Volunteers, 1862-1865," are rich in war pictures; the work first mentioned chronicles the deeds of "Colonel Shaw's Black Regiment." "The Army of Northern Virginia in 1862," by William Allan, colonel in the Confederate army, appeals to the imagination of those who wore the blue as well as those who wore the gray. "The Assassination of Lincoln," by T. M. Harris, reviews the history of the great conspiracy and the trial of the conspirators. "The Behring Sea Controversy" was put into popular form by Stephen B. Stanton, and "The Southern Empire" was the title given to three essays on historical subjects by Oliver T. Morton, the son of the "war governor" of Indiana. "Two Republics," by Alonzo T. Jones, appeals to the nation to oppose any movement "to commit the United States government to a course of religious legislation." "Vermont, a Study of Independence," is the year's volume added to the American Commonwealths Series. It was written by Rowland G. Robinson, an honored son of Vermont. The Story of the States Series embraced two new works, "The Story of New Mexico," by Horatio O. Ladd, and "Story of Massachusetts," by Edward E. Hale. Three American writers made researches in French history. James Breck Perkins is the author of a picturesque monograph, "France Under the Regency." Edward J. Lowell of "The Eve of the French Revolution," one of the most engrossing periods of modern history, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer of "France in the Nineteenth Century, 1830-1890," strikingly vivid and dramatic in treatment.

Belonging also to this department are O. A. Howland's "The New Empire," referring to Canada of the present generation; "The Rise of the Swiss Republic," by W. D. McCracken; "England and Its Rulers," by H. P. Brewster and G. H. Humphrey; "Warriors of the Crescent," by W. H. Davenport Adams; "Cæsar," by Theodore A. Dodge, being a history of the art of war among the Romans down to the end of the Roman Empire; "Primitive Man in Ohio," by Warren K. Moorehead; "A History of Peru," by Clements R. Markham; "A Footnote to History," an American book by the English writer Robert L. Stevenson, offering a resume of eight years of the political troubles in Samoa; "The German Emperor and His Eastern Neighbors," by Poultney Bigelow, is a pleasant mingling of history and biography.

From English sources were obtained the last two volumes of the Story of the Nations Series; the first one, "The Story of Sicily—Phœnician, Greek and Roman," was one of the last works of the late Edward A. Freeman; the second was Oman's "Byzantine Empire." The new illustrated edition of Green's "Short History of the English People" was among the pleasant things of the holiday season. It is being edited by Mrs. Green, who has been very fortunate in obtaining many appropriate illustrations and very happy in her selection; only the first volume has so far been completed. "The Refounding of the German Empire," by G. B. Malleson, deals with a period of German history of twenty-three years' duration, from 1848 to 1871. "The Battles of Frederick the Great" is edited from Carlyle's "Frederick the Great" by Cyril Ransome; James Anthony Froude unfolded a fresh page of history in "The Story of the Armada, and Other Essays." Part second was published of Evelyn Abbott's "History of Greece." The doomed line of the Cæsars furnishes the central figures for the Rev. A. J. Church's "Pictures from Roman Life and Story;" M. Betham-Edwards' "France of To-Day" is a survey, comparative and retrospective; "Outlines of Ancient Egyptian History" is by A. Mariette. Imported editions were in the market of Lady Inglis' "Siege of Lucknow," and a new American edition was made of Strickland's "Queens of England." From the French we obtained "Manners and Monuments of Prehistoric Peoples," by the Marquise de Nadaillac.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

Among works of travel by American writers the account of the two voyages of the Kite in connection with the Peary Expedition, entitled "In Arctic Seas," is a thrilling chapter in a story of new discoveries in the Arctic region made in 1891-2. The work is written by Dr. Robert N. Keely, Jr., and Dr. G. G. Davis, and includes a resume of Lieut. Peary's explorations after the return of the Kite from its first voyage. Mrs. French Sheldon adds a chapter to African explorations in "Sultan to Sultan," which tells how she successfully led a caravan through the Masai country, being the first woman to attempt such a thing. "A Tour Around New York," by J. Flavel Mines ("Felix Oldboy"), charmingly describes and illustrates the romantic aspects of New York City in its life and scenery fifty years ago. The author of "I Go a-Fishing," Dr. W. C. Prime, was reminiscent of life forty years ago in our Eastern States in "Along New England Roads," which shows the author to be both a keen observer and a humorist. C. F. Lummis made "A Tramp Across the Continent," a breezy, amusing story, as he calls it, "of joy on legs." Robert L. Stevenson, one of our adopted citizens, included some of his old memories and sketches under the name of "Across the Plains." Richard Harding Davis saw "The West from a Car-Window," delighting many readers with his vivid impressions.

Three countries were the subject of Alice W. Rollins' "From Palm to Glacier—Brazil, Bermuda and Alaska." South America and its adjacent islands are described in Maturin M. Ballou's "Equatorial America." "Under Summer Skies" carries the reader through a widely diversified district—Europe, the East and our own West; Clinton Scollard is the author.

Works possessing exceptional literary qualities are embraced in Rodolfo Lanciani's "Pagan and Christian Rome," describing the transformation of Rome from a Pagan to a Christian city; "In and Out of Three Normandy Inns," a charming chronicle of a summer holiday on the coast of France, by Mrs. Anna Bowman Dodd; "Play in Provence," by Mr. and Mrs. Pennell devoted to describing the games and religious festivals of the Provençals; "Paddles and Politics Down the Danube," by Poultney Bigelow, an account of a cruise made in an American sailing canoe in the summer of 1891, and a companion volume by F. D. Millet, "The Danube," telling of a somewhat similar cruise made by the author, Alfred Parsons, and an expert canoeist, from the Black Forest to the Black Sea, in the summer of 1890; the editor of the New York Observer, Charles A. Stoddard, gives his impressions of Spain in "Spanish Cities;" W. D. Howells made "A Little Swiss Sojourn," which he described with all his well-known pictorial powers in a dainty little volume; "Afloat and Ashore on the Mediterranean" is an account of the systems of prison labor in Europe and the condition of the workingman, with many amusing travelling experiences, by Lee Meriwether; "The Great Streets of the World" contained articles originally published in Scribner's Magazine by Richard Harding Davis, Andrew Lang and others—Broadway, Piccadilly, the Boulevards of Paris and other famous thoroughfares are brought vividly before us with pen and pencil. A new edition was brought out of Charles Warren Stoddard's "South Sea Idyls," long out of print. Theodore Child's "Praise of Paris" sums up the literary, artistic and social delights of that beautiful city. The work was published here, though the author is an Englishman; Mr. Child's name must also be added to the long list of literary lights that went out in 1892.

New departures made from the beaten path by women travellers are recorded in the following works: "A Girl's Winter in India," by Mary Thorn Carpenter; "To Nuremberg and Back," a girl's holiday, by Amy Neally; "A Too Short Vacation," the story of a three months' tour in Europe by two Philadelphia girls, Lucy Langdon Williams and Emma V. McLoughlin; and "A Family Canoe Trip" through the canals and lakes of New York State, written by Florence Walters Snedeker.

Travellers of the other sex were also slightly unconventional; "To England and Back" is a winter vacation recorded by Canon J. H. Knowles, of one of the Trinity parishes of New York City; "From the Pyramids to the Acropolis" is descriptive of places in the Holy Land visited by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage; "The Cruise of a Land Yacht" is from Sylvester Baxter.

A series of descriptions of the peculiarities and attractions of Chicago and of the more novel features of the Exposition is to be found in Julian Ralph's "Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair;" from the same graphic pen we received "On Canada's Frontier," sketches of history, sport and adventure and of the Indian fur traders, etc., of Western Canada. "The Mediterranean Shores of America," by Dr. P. C. Remondino, is for the information of the seeker after a climate for health. "The Chinese, Their Present and Future," by Dr. Robert Coltman, Jr., is medical, political and social. "Sweden and the Swedes," by W. W. Thomas, Jr., concludes the works of note of this description by American writers.

From English pens reprints of extensive works of travel were not numerous. Walter Besant's "London" presents pictures of London streets and people from age to age. Whympers' "Travels Amongst the Great Andes of the Equator" records new discoveries in almost every branch of science, besides offering thrilling and daring stories of adventure. Richard Jefferies' "The Toilers of the Field," papers and sketches picturing the laborer's daily life in England and some of the charms of nature, are characteristic specimens of the author's poetic style. "The Great World's Farm," by Selina Gaye, also deals enthusiastically with nature and its products. Goldwin Smith made "A Trip to England;" Lord Randolph Churchill's "Men, Mines and Animals in South Africa" is valuable and amusing; Miss Margaret Thomas' "Scamper Through Spain and Tangles" is devoted chiefly to art and artists; "A Mad Tour" led through the Black Forest and the adjacent country, Mrs. J. H. Riddell being the author; "Folly and Fresh Air," by Eden Philpotts, tells with "American humor" of a young Londoner's fishing experience in Devonshire. "Ten Years' Digging in Egypt, 1881-1891," by W. M. F. Petrie, is for the archaeologists; "The Real Japan," by an English journalist, Henry Norman, is a study of contemporary Japanese manners, morals and politics. The hairy aborigines of Japan are described in the Rev. J. Batchelor's "The Ainu of Japan."

Importations were shown of R. F. Clarke's "A Pilgrimage to the Holy Coat of Treves;" "Two Happy Years in Ceylon," by C. F. Gordon Cumming (2 v.); "Egypt," by Martin

Brimmer; "Seven Years in the Soudan," by Romolo Gessi; "The Ruined Cities of Mashonaland," by J. Theodore Bent; "To the Snows of Tibet Through China," by A. E. Pratt; "Argentina and the Argentines," by T. A. Turner; "Dark Days in Chili," by Maurice H. Hervey; "With Axe and Rope in the New Zealand Alps," by C. E. Mannering; "Journeys in Persia and Kurdistan," by Mrs. Isabella Bird Bishop (2 v.); "About Ceylon and Borneo," by Walter J. Clutterbuck; and "Old Touraine," by Theodore Andrea Cook (2 v.).

Max O'Rell's (Paul Blouët) "English Phari-sees, French Crocodiles and Other Anglo-French and Typical Characters," though from a French writer, was, we believe, written in English. "Life in Ancient Egypt and Assyria" is from the French of the famous French Egyptologist G. Maspero. "American Life" is the impressions of an enthusiastic Frenchman, Paul de Rousiers; "Impressions of Italy," by Paul Bourget, was taken from the French by Mary J. Serrano.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

The Questions of the Day Series embraces some of the best monographs by American writers on timely subjects in politics and government. Recent issues of the series are Louis R. Ehrich's "The Question of Silver," which comprises a brief summary of silver legislation in the United States; J. Howard Cowperthwait's "Money, Silver and Finance," advocating a repeal of the law for the purchase of silver; "Who Pays Your Taxes?" papers which consider the question of taxation, written by David A. Wells, G. H. Andrews, T. G. Shearman and others, and gathered into one volume and edited by Bolton Hall; "The Farmers' Tariff Manual," historical facts and statistics by a farmer, Daniel Strange; and "The Economy of High Wages," by J. Schoenhof, an inquiry into the cause of high wages and their effect on methods and cost of production; this latter work is the result of careful investigation made by Mr. Schoenhof in the industrial centres of Europe, and goes to prove that "the cheapest labor is the labor that is most productive," and is a most valuable contribution to the subject, illustrated by many figures. In line with these works are Edward Atkinson's "Taxation and Work," a series of treatises on the tariff and the currency; W. H. Springer's "Tariff Reform;" "Equitable Taxation," six essays by Walter E. Weyl, Robert Luce and others on new measures for a more equal distribution of the burden of national, State and municipal taxation, and "State Papers and Speeches on the Tariff," reprinted from the works of five great Americans of the past—Hamilton, Gallatin, Walker, Clay and Webster.

"A Perplexed Philosopher" is an examination of Herbert Spencer's various utterances on the land question, by Henry George. "The Free-Trade Struggle in England," by M. M. Trumbull ("Wheelbarrow"), appeared in a new enlarged revised edition, which brings it abreast of the present debate on the questions of free trade and protection in the United States. "Socialism from Genesis to Revelation" traces the movement known as Socialism in the United States from its origin and history to "its outlook and prophecy;" the author, who is a divine, the Rev. F. M. Sprague, aims to take a fair and conservative view of the subject, as he is convinced that some form of "Christian Socialism" affords the only basis of peace between the hostile forces of society. Augustus Jacobson embodied his favorite theories of remedial measures, such as a succession tax, manual training schools, etc., in three works, "An Ounce of Prevention," "The Next Step Forward" and "The Crisis of a Party;" the latter is an arraignment of the Republican party, and a prophecy that the many great fortunes of the present are the chief menace of the future of the Republic. "Sinking Funds," by E. A. Ross, is a publication of the "American Economic Association;" "School Savings Banks," by Sara Louisa Oberholtzer, and "Cabinet Government in the United States," by Freeman Snow, are issues of the "American Academy of Political and Social Science." Careful papers included in the "Johns Hopkins University Studies" of 1892 were "The Old English Manor," by C. McLean Andrews, "An Introduction to the Study of the Constitution," by Morris M. Cohn, "The Bishop Hill Colony," a religious communistic settlement in Henry County, Illinois, whose story was told by Michael A. Mikkelsen, and "Maryland's Attitude in the Struggle for Canada," by J. W. Black.

The same subject claimed the attention of two writers—James W. Sullivan's paper being called "Direct Legislation by the Citizenship," and Nathan Cree's "Direct Legislation by the People." Papers that originally appeared in the Century Magazine on "Cheap-Money Experiments" were made into a volume with this title. Private ownership in railways is upheld in Marshall M. Kirkman's "Railway Rates and Government Control;" the author shows a thorough knowledge of the many questions involved, and has produced a work of great importance. Willbur Aldrich aims to improve the condition of the farmer by a project outlined in "Farming Corporations." A service was rendered to students by Paul Leicester Ford, who gathered together and published a number of papers only found in rare collections, under the title "Essays on the Constitution of the United States Published During its Discussion by the People, 1787-1778."

T. Nelson Page discussed social as well as political questions in "The Old South." H. W. Hilliard, a Southern gentleman, gave graphic pictures of public events witnessed by him before and after the war in "Politics and Pen Pictures at Home and Abroad." Henry Cabot Lodge's "Historical and Political Essays" treat of many timely questions. The Hebrew in Europe attracted the attention of both Harold Frederic and Joseph Pennell; the one in "The New Exodus" made a study of the persecution of the Jews in Russia, and the other in "The Jew at Home" wrote a series of descriptions of the Jew in Austria and Hungary, in Austrian Poland and in Russia. To be mentioned also are Jacob A. Riis' "Children of the Poor," rich in facts and figures about the New York City poor; "Darkness and Daylight," a woman's story of the dark side of New York life; "First Days Amongst the Contrabands," reminiscences of a teacher, Elizabeth Hyde Botume, among the freed slaves of South Carolina; "The Gilded Fly," a political satire by Harold Payne; "The Coming Climax in the Destinies of America," by Lester C. C. Hubbard; and "The American Peasant," a timely allegory by T. H. Tibbles and "another." "The Armies of To-Day" is a description of the armies of the leading nations at the present time, which, with G. W. Hale's "Police and Prison Cyclopædia," offers in detail information of a special kind. The United States has been issuing through the Bureau of American Republics a series of handbooks which abound in political, commercial, historical and geographical facts in tabulated form which make them very useful. So far the volumes published have been on "Costa Rica," "Venezuela," "Colombia," and "Guatemala." Handbooks for voters and politicians are included in the following works: Brown and Strauss' "Dictionary of American Politics," rev. to July, 1892; the 3d rev. ed. of Stanwood's "History of Presidential Elections," McPherson's "Handbook of Politics for 1892;" Knox's "Republican Party and Its Leaders;" Chandos Fulton's "History of the Democratic Party" and Hewes and McKinley's "What Are the Facts? Protection and Reciprocity Illustrated." "Speeches of Benjamin Harrison" represents the public utterances of the twenty-third president of the United States, from February, 1888, to February, 1892; the president-elect's opinions on many subjects relating to government may be found in "Writings and Speeches of Grover Cleveland" and "Principles and Purposes of Our Form of Government as Set Forth in the Public Papers of Grover Cleveland."

A number of interesting books on social matters naturally fall in here, such as Mrs. H. O. Ward's "Social Ethics and Social Duties," Eliza Chester's "The Unmarried Woman," Oscar Fay Adams' "The Presumption of Sex" (caustic strictures upon the manners of American women), Grace H. Dodge's "Thoughts of Busy Girls" and Dr. F. E. Clark's "Looking Out on Life." Two books written specially for mothers are Mrs. Auretta Roys Aldrich's "Children, Their Models and Critics," and Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin's "Children's Rights."

Reprinted from English sources there was only one work of note, J. E. Thorold Rogers' lectures on the "Industrial and Commercial History of England." Editions were imported of Wilmot's "Development of Navies During the Last Half Century;" Massingham's "London Daily Press;" J. Bowles Daly's "Dawn of Radicalism;" Arnold White's "The Destitute Alien in Great Britain;" "The Irish Peasant;" "Illegitimacy and the Influence of Climate on Conduct," by Albert Leffingwell; "The Impossibility of Social Democracy," by Dr. A. Schäffle; "The Trade Policy of Imperial Federation," by Maurice H. Hervey; "Distributing Co-Operative Societies," by L. Pizamiglio; "The Fallacy of Saving," by J. M. Robertson; "Villeinage in England," by Paul Vinogradoff; "Social Life in England from the Restoration to the Revolution, 1660-1690," by W. Connor Sydney; "History of the English Parliament," by G. Barnett Smith (2 v.); "Life and History of the Famous Châteaux of France," by Theodore Andrea Cook (2 v.); "Fifty Years in the Making of Australian History," by Sir Henry Parkes; and "History of the English Landed Interest," by Russell M. Garnier. "General View of the Political History of Europe" was taken from the French of Ernest Lavisse and "An Essay on the Duties of Man" from the Italian of Mazzini, and from the German the 7th volume of Von Holst's "Constitutional and Political History of the United States."

LITERARY MISCELLANY.

IN LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY "The Nature and Elements of Poetry," by Edmund Clarence Stedman, is one of the most carefully prepared works by an American author; it represents a series of lectures delivered in 1891 at Johns Hopkins University. Half a dozen pleasant essays on the "oddities and curiosities of books" as exemplified in the author's library make up the pretty work "From the Books of Laurence Hutton," by Laurence Hutton. "The Golden Guess" consists of essays on poetry and the poets, by John Vance Cheney. "Let Him First be a Man" and other essays chiefly relating to education and culture come from W. H. Venable; "Essays in Literary Interpretation," from Hamilton Wright Mable. "The Old English Dramatists" consists of six lectures delivered at the Lowell Institute in Boston in 1887 by James Russell Lowell. "Under the Evening Lamp" discusses some of the "unfortunates" of literature in Richard Henry Stoddard's happest vein. "Barbara Fritchie" is a study of Whittier's poem or at least the facts of which it sings. "Prose Idyls" is full of delicate and engaging fancies from the pen of John Albee. Wit and fancy are characteristics of Agnes Repplier's "Essays in Miniature." "Amor in Society" is a piquant study from life, supposed to be written by Love, personified by Julia Duhring. T. Wentworth Higginson expressed himself "Concerning All of Us" briefly and amusingly and James Brander Matthews discoursed learnedly upon "Americanisms and Briticisms." George William Curtis' address on "James Russell Lowell" was put into Harper's Black and White Series. Boyesen's "Essays on German Literature" are delightful in style and full of new material. "Germanic Origins" is a study of the sources of language, literature and institutions of the English-speaking race by Francis B. Gummere, of Haverford College. "Philadelphia Magazines and Their Contributors, 1741-1850," is the subject of an interesting volume by Albert H. Smyth. Collectors of fine works will eagerly read Daniel M. Tredwell's "Monograph on Privately Illustrated Books" and Henri Pène Du Bois' "Four Private Libraries of New York," which describes and illustrates many beautiful bindings. The Baconian theory of the authorship of the Shakespearian plays was fortified by three additional contributions—two by W. F. C. Wigston called "The Columbus of Literature" and "Francis Bacon, Poet, Prophet, Philosopher, versus Phantom Captain Shakespeare," and "Francis Bacon and His Secret Society," by Mrs. H. Pott. A novel literary venture—prose narratives of the poems of ten great Victorian poets—comes from Harrison S. Morris under the name of "Tales from Ten Poets." Charles Morris' "Tales from the Dramatists" are entertaining stories taken from celebrated dramatic authors. Other literary efforts are "Martyrdoms of Literature," by Robert H. Vickers; "Phases of Thought and Criticism," by Brother Azarias; "The Technique of Rest," by Anna C. Brackett; "Social and Literary Papers," by C. Chauncey Shackford; "Walter Savage Landor," a critical study by E. Waterman Evans, Jr.

Works of reference for constant consultation published during 1892 were the "Annual American Catalogue, 1891;" Henry Matson's "References for Literary Workers;" W. S. Walsh's "Handy-Book of Literary Curiosities;" Mary Alice Caller's "Literary Guide for Home and School;" Griswold's "Descriptive List of Novels and Tales Dealing with Life in Germany," and others dealing with life in France, Russia and Italy, and calling attention to many delightful novels that should still find many readers; Horace F. Teall's "English Compound Words and Phrases," treating a phase of language that is a continual source of annoyance; the 4th series of "The Best Reading," edited by Lynds E. Jones, and George E. Hardy's "Five Hundred Books for the Young," lists of books carefully selected and classified; a new revised and enlarged edition of Soule's "Synonyms;" Nichols' "Indexing;" Fletcher's "Co-operative Index to Periodicals, 1891;" part four, completing the "American Catalogue" for 1884-1890; a volume in "Sabin's Bibliotheca Americana," carrying the work down to Smith; and volume nine in "Chambers's Encyclopædia;" and from the English the 8th and 9th volumes of Morley's "English Writers;" and "The English Catalogue of Books," covering ten years from January, 1881, to December, 1889. The 13th volume was issued of the "Index Catalogue of the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office," and T. Lindsley Bradford's valuable "Homœopathic Bibliography of the United States from 1825 to 1891, Inclusive." Booksellers and librarians are recommended a little volume by A. Growoll, "A Bookseller's Library," which is made up of rare information about catalogues, trade journals, etc., and is a most useful manual.

Other works by English writers coming under this department are W. Blades' "Books in Chains and Other Bibliographical Papers" and "Books Condemned to be Burnt," by James Anson Farrer, both in the Book-Lover's Library; in line with these and a perfect treasure-house of odds and ends of rare information is the fifth series of "The Bookworm." William Hazlitt's "Lectures on the English Poets" was included in the Giunta Series and "Best Letters of Charles Lamb" in the Laurel-Crowned Letters Series, two collections of finely made classics. The University Extension Manuals had added to them "The Literature of France," by H. G. Keene, which gives an excellent conception as a whole of French literature. The author of "Obliter Dicta" was again unique in titles, naming his most recent essays "Res Judicatæ"—"matters already settled;" he is now known to be Augustine Birrell, and some of his essays appeared in the American magazines as well as the English. Besides these there were W. G. Collingwood's "Art of Teaching of John Ruskin;" "Wells of English," by I. Bassett Choate; "Cameos from Ruskin," selected passages from Mr. Ruskin's works; Carlyle's "Lectures on the History of Literature" delivered April to July, 1838; Huxley's "Essays upon Some Controverted Questions;" S. Ramsey's "The English Language and English Grammar," a historical study of the sources, development and analogies of the language and of the principles governing its usages, and Edmund Gosse's "Gossip in a Library;" and imported editions of "Browning Cyclopædia," by E. Berdoe; "Four Lectures on Henrik Ibsen," by Phillip H. Wicksteed; "Cigarette Papers," by Joseph Hatton; and "A Primer on Browning," by F. Mary Wilson. From the German may be noted Zimmer's "Irish Element in Mediæval Culture."

POETRY.

John Greenleaf Whittier's "At Sundown" is invested with an especially sad interest as the last work of one of the few remaining members of the older group of American poets. It is a beautiful memorial volume containing all the poems Whittier wrote after the publication of "St. Gregory's Guest" in 1886. Arthur Stedman brought together a little collection of Walt Whitman's most conventional poems for the Fiction, Fact and Fancy Series. The volume is called "Selected Poems," and will remain one of the most popular editions of the late poet's effusions. Mementoes of other poets who have recently joined the "great majority" are offered in "Songs About Life, Love and Death," by Anne Reeve Aldrich; "At the Beautiful Gate, and Other Songs of Faith," by Lucy Larcom; "The Dead Nymph, and Other Poems," by C. H. Lüders, and "Lyrics," by Cora Fabbri.

"The Song of the Ancient People," by Edna Dean Proctor, represents the passionate utterances of the Pueblos over their past and present wrongs, and displays a most careful study of the history and customs of this ancient tribe. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell wrote "Francis Drake," a tragedy of the sea, and "The Mother, and Other Poems." Miss Harriet Monroe, who was distinguished by being selected to write the opening ode for the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, gave fresh specimens of her talents in "Valeria, and Other Poems"—"Valeria" being a tragedy with its scene in Italy. Francis S. Saltus' warm imagination is represented by "Dreams After Sunset" and "Flasks and Flagons, Pastels and Profiles." "The Song of America and Columbus," by Kinahan Cornwallis, is a history in verse of Columbus' early voyages. "Alaskana" is a description of Alaska in a series of legendary poems by Dr. B. W. James.

To complete the history of the past year the following contributions to poetry must not be overlooked; they are graceful, musical collections of verse by our leading authors: "Rings and Love-Knots," by S. Minturn Peck; Frank Dempster Sherman's "Little-Folks Lyrics," intended chiefly for the delight of children; "With Trumpet and Drum," by Eugene Field; H. C. Bunner's "Rowen, 'Second Crop' Songs;" Maurice Francis Egan's "Songs and Sonnets;" "Souvenirs of Occasions," by Sarah Louisa Oberholtzer; "The Wings of Icarus," by Susan Marr Spalding; "Told in the Gate," by Arlo Bates; "Dreams and Days," by George Parsons

Lathrop; "Poems," by Maurice Thompson; "Poems of Gun and Rod," by Ernest McGaffey; "Summer-Fallow," by C. Buxton Going; "The Merrimack River," by B. W. Ball; and "Songs of Sunrise Lands," by Clinton Scollard.

"The Lover's Year-Book of Poetry," edited by Horace Parker Chandler, had the second volume completed, offering a love-poem for every day of the last six months of the year. "Poetry of the Gathered Years" voices content and resignation at approaching old age from many American poets. "Tributes to Shakespeare," compiled by Mary R. Silsby, and "From Hearts Content," by Clara Doty Bates, are collections of special interest. Dr. Holland's "Katrina" and "Bitter-Sweet" were honored with the new and beautiful dress of the Cameo Edition, which attracted fresh attention to their many merits.

The death during 1892 of England's Laureate, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, is recalled with profound regret in reviewing the last words we shall ever have from his pen. "The Foresters," published in the early part of the year, was a charmingly dainty and idyllic play of Sherwood Forest and Robin Hood and Maid Marian, whose many lovely pictures will long delight the reading world; "The Death of Ceneone," his final offering, is quite worthy of the great poet's genius and contains many fine lines. To turn from these volumes to Rudyard Kipling's "Ballads and Barrack-Room Ballads" argues a catholicity of taste that is rare—yet Kipling's genius is unique in its way, and is characterized in this volume by a dash and ring that capture the fancy at once. "The Sisters," a tragedy, by Algernon C. Swinburne, and Owen Meredith's (Lord Lytton) "Marah" did not add to the reputation of either of these great English poets. "The Song of the Sword," by W. E. Henley, is a succession of "impressionist" pictures of London vice and misery that are painted by an artist. This poet also did some successful dramatic work in connection with R. L. Stevenson in "Three Plays." William Sharp offers the poems which he looks upon as his representative work in "Flower o' the Vine." In the glowing imagery of the Orient Sir Edwin Arnold relates the story of "Potiphar's Wife." A new complete edition of "The Collected Poems" of Philip Bourke Marston will be welcome, also a collection of the later poems of William Morris designated "Poems by the Way." Austin Dobson delighted his admirers with "Ballad of Beau Brocade" and "Eighteenth Century Vignettes." William Watson's "Poems" sing of English rural life and show the influence of Wordsworth and Matthew Arnold—he is one of the most gifted of the younger group of English poets; "Lyric Love" also bears Mr. Watson's name as editor; it is a volume of the Golden Treasury Series.

ART-BOOKS AND WORKS ON ART.

Elaborately illustrated works were not a feature of 1892, their place being almost entirely taken by fine editions of old and favorite authors. "Old Italian Masters," by W. J. Stillman, is a unique work in many ways, being one of the finest American art-works ever produced in this country. The reproductions of chef-d'œuvres of old Italian masters through the medium of wood-engraving by Timothy Cole have an artistic perfection, softness and beauty never equalled by any similar work. "American Illustrators," by F. Hopkinson Smith, was not only a delight to the eye but a picture-gallery of the best efforts of our famous designers. Excellent original work was shown in "Prue and I" by Albert E. Sterner and by Harry W. McVickar in "Daisy Miller." George William Curtis' recent death added to the interest excited by the former volume and largely increased its sale. Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "English Cathedrals" had a delightful subject, which materialized beautifully under Mr. Joseph Pennell's talented pen. Other works that attracted attention were Koehler's "American Etchings," "Good Things of Life," in its ninth series, "Poems by Dobson, Locker and Praed," with fac-similes of water-color paintings, Irene E. Jerome's "Sun Prints in Sky Tints," "Masterpieces by Fra Angelico," "Recent International Art," "Parisian Photogravures," the reproductions by photogravure of drawings by Weir, Church, Dielman and others made for Mrs. Toland's "Atkins," "Dorothy Q.," illustrated by Howard Pyle, and FredERIC Remington's spirited designs for a new edition of "The Oregon Trail;" Clifton Johnson's "New England Country;" "Genoa, the Superb," by Virginia W. Johnson, illustrated from photographs taken in "the City of Columbus," struck a popular chord. New holiday editions, illustrated mostly in photogravure, of old favorites that met with appreciation were Warner's "In the Levant," Irving's "Conquest of Granada," Sheridan's "School for Scandal," Thomas Nelson Page's "Marse Chan," Mrs. Lothrop's "Old Concord," Longfellow's "Hyperion" and Ware's "Zenobia."

All phases of the fascinating pursuit of china collecting are treated in Mrs. Alice Morse Earle's lovely work on "China Collecting in America," illustrating both its artistic and amusing sides. Some of the best examples of architectural art in this country are described and illustrated in Montgomery Schuyler's studies in a handsome volume entitled "American Architecture," Theodore Child's "The Desire of Beauty" is rich in art criticism and suggestions; the Rev. J. A. Zahm sent us from the West a scholarly and scientific work on "Sound and Music."

But few art-works came from English artists. There was the usual volume of the Pen and Pencil Series, devoted this year to "Welsh Pictures," and a handsome new illustrated edition of Dean Stanley's "Historical Memorials of Canterbury." Walter Crane's "The Claims of Decorative Art" regard art not only in its relation to use and materials, but also in its connection with common life and social conditions and in its attitude to the handicrafts. French classic and contemporary painting and sculpture are considered in W. C. Brownell's "French Art." Somewhat in line with this is Philip Gilbert Hamerton's "The Present State of the Fine Arts in France;" Hamerton's "Man in Art" was one of the magnificent imported art books of the year. Hubert Herkomer's lectures delivered at Oxford, "Etching and Mezzotint Engraving," were issued in book form. Louis F. Day wrote on the subject of "Nature in Ornament" and James Ward on the "Elementary Principles of Ornament."

Japanese art claimed the attention of two French writers. Félix Régamey was practical and entertaining in "Japan in Art and Industry," and Louis Gousse offered information of a varied kind in "Japanese Art" on Japanese sculpture, painting, architecture, etc. "History of Art in Persia," by Georges Perrot and Charles Chipiez, is a work evincing rare research and industry. "The Paris Salon of 1892" shows in photogravure the finest works of art in the last Paris Salons. To the German we are indebted for three works on music, "How to Play Chopin," by J. Kleczynski, "The Beautiful in Music," by E. Hanslick, and "A Conversation on Music," by Anton Rubinstein.

SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS.

The works by American writers in this class are not numerous. Twenty-four papers on "American Game Fishes," their habits, habitat and peculiarities, by many well-known anglers, make up a work that commends itself to all sportsmen. Kit Clarke's "Practical Angler" is a description of American game fish caught with hook and line. Lovers of the canine species should study Dr. Wesley Mills' "The Dog in Health and in Disease" and "How to Keep a Dog in the City," and for those who prefer the horse we call attention to Dinah Sharpe's "My Horse, My Love," containing most valuable information on the subject. "The American Cricket Annual for 1892" was quite up to date. "Wheels and Wheeling," by Luther H. Porter, records all that has been accomplished in cycling. For card-players "The Gentleman's Handbook on Poker," by the late W. J. Florence, comedian, gives the rules of this game succinctly and intelligently. "Hospitality in Town and Country" and Mrs. Sherwood's "Art of Entertaining" are for the perusal of the hostess full of pleasant intentions for her guests.

The great popularity of athletics among women and the present rage for physical development have brought out a number of books on these and kindred topics. We give them together. Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller's "Physical Beauty" teaches women both how to obtain it and how to preserve it; so does "The Truth about Beauty," by Annie Wolf. "Handbook of School Gymnastics of the Swedish System," Emily M. Bishop's "Americanized Delsarte Culture," Milo's "Notes on Beauty, Vigor and Development," "Beauty of Form and Grace of Vesture," by F. M. Steele and E. L. S. Adams, Mary S. Thomson's "Rhythmical Gymnastics" are all aids to the development of female beauty. Thornton's "Training for Health, Strength, Speed and Agility" in a new edition is more for the stronger sex, but contains suggestions for women too.

The favorite English Badminton Library was enriched by a volume on "Mountaineering," the contributions of many famous climbers. "On Seats and Saddles, Bits and Bitting," by Francis Dwyer, covers a variety of information. Berkeley's "Card Tricks and Puzzles" contains many evenings' amusement. Hertefeld's "Game of Skat," taken from the German, is the best authority on this game.

SCIENCE.

No great or exhaustive works are to be recorded under Science. The works by American writers belong chiefly to mental and moral science or physical science, the latter being mostly delightful literary studies of nature, half scientific, half imaginary, or are useful manuals for practical workers. "The Silva of North America," by C. Sprague Sargent, is an exceptional work, thorough and exhaustive, and written for scientists; it is planned to be comprised in twelve volumes; three only so far have been completed. It is a very full description of the trees which grow naturally in North America, exclusive of Mexico. "Trees of the Northern United States" is not so ambitious, being designed by Austin C. Apgar for schools and private students. Charming impressionist pictures of nature in "the serene and yellow leaf" are sketched in Thoreau's "Autumn," in Bradford Torrey's "The Foot-Path Way," and in Martha McCulloch's "Field-Farings," a vagrant chronicle of earth and sky. Arabella B. Buckley's "Moral Teachings of Science" draws many sound lessons from animal and plant life. "Little Brothers of the Air" is a new volume on birds in Mrs. Miller's "taking" style. "A Song of Life" is a popular study by Margaret Warner Morley in biology and embryology. "Recent Rambles" comes from Dr. C. C. Abbott, the author of "A Naturalist's Rambles About Home," and is a charming study of nature and its inhabitants near the Delaware River. A novel and interesting research was made by Simeon Pease Cheney regarding bird music, the result of which is offered in "Wood-Notes Wild," with notations of the various sounds made by the little feathered vocalists.

English writers produced kindred studies. We received "The Oak," a popular introduction to forest botany, by H. Marshall Ward; "The Beauties of Nature," by Sir S. Lubbock, a companion volume to his "Pleasures of Life;" J. Lockwood Kipling's "Beast and Man in India," and the Rev. H. W. Hutchinson's "Extinct Monsters" and "The Story of the Hills." V. I of "The Principles of Ethics," in Herbert Spencer's "System of Synthetic Philosophy," was issued in this country in 1892, and an abridged and revised edition of "Social Statics," first published in 1850. Mental and moral philosophy were studied by two American writers. Dr. James McCosh gave a brief system of ethics in a work entitled "Our Moral Nature," and Prof. Borden P. Bowne in "The Principles of Ethics." J. H. Muirhead's "Elements of Ethics," being an introduction to moral philosophy, was from an English source, the author being lecturer in mental and moral science, Royal Holloway College, Egham, England. The work is one of the University Extension Manuals. "Spirit of Modern Philosophy," by Josiah Royce, and "A History of Modern Philosophy," by B. C. Burt, are both popular expositions of the views of modern thinkers in this field by American authors. "Evolution in Science, Philosophy and Art" comprises popular lectures and discussions before the Brooklyn Ethical Association. "Humanity in Its Origin and Early Growth," by E. Calbert, follows the progress of mankind from its lowest and earliest development. Another volume of the University Extension Manuals was Hugh Robert Mill's "The Realm of Nature," an outline description of the facts regarding the structure of the universe. R. L. Garner's researches into "The Speech of Monkeys" was in an entirely new field. "Marriage and Disease," by Dr. S. A. K. Strahan, is a study of heredity; "Darwin and After Darwin" is an exposition of the Darwinian theory and a discussion of Post-

Darwinian questions by G. J. Romanes; Tyn-dall's "New Fragments" are articles of a varied character, mostly, however, scientific. The International Scientific Series had a volume on "Man and the Glacial Period," by Dr. G. F. Wright, added to it. Modern Science Series was increased by "Ethnology in Folklore," by G. L. Gomme, and "The Horse," a study of natural history, by W. H. Flower. The new volumes of the International Education Series were "Psychology Applied to the Art of Teaching," by Joseph Baldwin; "The Moral Instruction of Children," by Felix Adler; "Education from a National Standpoint," from the French of Alfred Fouillée; "English Education in the Elementary and Secondary Schools," by Dr. Isaac Sharpless, President of Haverford College, Pennsylvania. Great Educators Series embraced Thomas Davidson's "Aristotle and Educational Ideals" and the Rev. T. Hughes' "Loyola and the Educational System of the Jesuits."

Handbooks for electricians are Crosby and Bell's "Electric Railway in Theory and Practice;" Merrill's "Electric Lighting Specifications;" Caryl D. Haskins' "Transformers;" Verity's "Electricity Up to Date for Light, Power and Traction;" volume two of Fleming's "Alternate-Current Transformer," and Trévert's "Practical Directions for Armature and Field-Magnet Winding." #### FAILURES OF THE PAST YEAR.

Bradstreet's report for the past year gives evidence of unusual commercial prosperity in the United States. It says:

"The number of business failures in the United States during the calendar year 1892, with the exception of South Dakota (where a State law renders it unlawful to report such information except under prohibitory conditions), is 10,270, a smaller total than has been reported to Bradstreet's since 1882, ten years ago, with the single exception of 1887, when the like aggregate was 9740. This is not the only astonishing part of the exhibit, for the grand total of liabilities of failing traders in the United States in 1892 appears to be only $108,500,000, a total also smaller than in any year since 1882, without any exception. A similar comparison may be made as to assets, the total of which is $54,700,000. The total 'business population' of the United States in 1883 was 855,000 commercial and industrial concerns, individuals, firms and corporations of sufficient standing and permanence to be of record, and the number of failures in that year amounted to 10,299, the first time the aggregate had passed the 10,000 mark. Yet in 1892, nine years later, with a 'business population' of 1,035,000, a gain of 21 per cent., the number of business failures is only 10,270, or about the same as it was nine years ago, and the debts of failing traders are 40 per cent. smaller now than then. This is the most striking feature of the year's exhibit with respect to the commercial deaths."

I.

By J. H. Slater in the London Athenæum.

... It seemed at one time as though the last year might have witnessed the dispersion of at least part of the famous Althorp Library, now in prison at Manchester; but fate decreed otherwise, to the great disgust of many estimable collectors, who, indeed, seem to think that they have been robbed in this matter. Perhaps it is as well that the books which Dibdin sighed over should rest permanently in peace. The John Rylands Library, though remote, is secure, for the most enthusiastic bookworm can hardly charm a Caxton out of that, charm he never so wisely. The year's sales look dead without it, and the first book of note to catch the eye—Buck's "Antiquities and Venerable Remains," 5 vols. folio, 1721-74—is a venerable fraud in comparison with what might have been. It realized 5*l.* 15*s.* on January 7 at Puttick & Simpson's, who also sold, the same day, a fourth folio Shakspeare (title and portrait mounted) for 13*l.* 10*s.* A few days later Messrs. Sotheby disposed of Anselme's "Histoire générale," 9 vols. folio, 1726-33, for 12*l.* 15*s.*, an extremely close price; Dallaway's "Rape of Chichester," 2 vols., 1815, "Rape of Arundel," 1832, and Cartwright's "Rape of Bramber," 1830, all in one lot, for 35*l.* (half calf, uncut); and a large-paper copy of Walton's "Angler"—Major's edition of 1823—for 5*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* On the 21st of January Lycett's "Views in Australia," etc., with 50 colored plates, 1824, realized 12*l.*; 21 parts of the Palæographical Society's publications, 1874-83, 11*l.* 10*s.*; and a copy of Turner's "Picturesque Views in England and Wales," in 2 vols. atlas folio, 1832, 30*l.* This work was on the largest paper and had the plates in two states. In February the library of the late Dr. Joly, of Dublin, came to the inevitable hammer at Sotheby's. Dr. Joly was, perhaps, the most extensive collector of "Hogarth literature" in the three kingdoms, and one lot, consisting of 158 drawings and 6097 prints, realized the handsome sum of 500*l.* No two prints in exactly the same state were included in this collection. Boydell's complete edition of 1790, including the suppressed plates, sold for 10*l.* odd; but none of the other lots brought very much. Hogarth seems to be losing caste just at present—perhaps because the spirit of the age is against realism in rags and the flaunting of vice in open day.

Early in March a copy of Boccaccio's "Decameron," in 5 vols. 8vo, 1757, the plates by Gravelot and Elsen, brought 16*l.*; Bishop Burnet's "History of His Own Time," 5 vols. folio, 1814, illustrated with 460 portraits, views, etc., 26*l.*; William Combe's "English Dance of Death," 2 vols., 1816, and "Dance of Life," 1817, in one lot, 12*l.* 15*s.* (calf extra); Detaille's "L'Armée française," 2 vols. folio, 1885-89, colored plates, 16*l.* 16*s.*; a very fine copy of the "Pickwick Papers," 1837, with many extra plates by Palithorpe and others, extended to 4 vols., 17*l.* 10*s.*; David Garrick's "Private Correspondence," extensively illustrated with mezzotint and other portraits, 2 v., 1831-32, 24*l.* 5*s.*; Sir John Hayward's "Sanctuary of a Troubled Soul," 2 vols. in 1, containing portrait by Cecil, 1632-36, 8vo, 14*l.* 10*s.*; La Fontaine's "Contes et Nouvelles en vers," 2 vols., 1762, the Fermiers Généraux edition, 17*l.* (morocco extra, two plates decolorées); the same author's "Fables choisies," 4 vols. folio, 1755-59, with Oudry's plates, 23*l.*; Lipscomb's "History and Antiquities of the County of Buckingham," 4 vols. 4to, 1847, 14*l.* 10*s.* (morocco extra); Manning and Bray's "Surrey," 3 vols. folio, 1804-14, 22*l.* 10*s.*; and there were other desirable books, including Westmacott's "English Spy," first edition, 2 vols. 8vo, 1825-26, 14*l.* (calf gilt, rebacked). All these volumes came from the splendid library of the late Joshua H. Hutchinson, which, although only comprising some 800 lots, realized more than 2300*l.*

In this same month of March, Christie, Manson & Woods disposed of a miscellaneous collection, among which may be noted 15 vols. of the Badminton Library, all on large paper, 51*l.*; a set of catalogues of the exhibitions at the British Institution, 1813-52, 12*l.* 10*s.*; Dibdin's "Bibliographical Decameron," 3 vols., 1817, 8vo, 14*l.*; the Abbottsford Edition of Sir Walter Scott's works, in calf extra, 12 vols., 1842, 13*l.* 10*s.*; and Johnson and Steevens' edition of Shakspeare's Plays, 10 vols. in 20, 1803-5, 17*l.* 10*s.* This last-named book was of great interest to the Shakspearean collector, as it is the only copy of Shakspeare's plays ever printed on vellum. The same book once appeared in the auction-room before—viz., at Thomas Astle's sale in 1816. On the 30th of March a complete set of the "Archæologia Cambrensis," from the commencement in 1846 to 1890, with two supplements, in all 47 vols. 8vo, realized 18*l.* (half calf); Daniell's "Picturesque Voyage Round Great Britain," 8 vols. in 4, imperial 4to, 1814-25, 9*l.* 15*s.*; Gould's "Birds of Great Britain," 5 vols. folio, 1873, 50*l.*; Hasted's "Kent," 4 vols., 1778-99, folio, 20*l.* (calf gilt); and Pelletier's "Nobiliaire, ou Armorial général de la Lorraine et du Barrois," 1758, folio, 10*l.* The "Armorial" was never completed, and only the first volume is met with. The particular copy had all the coats-of-arms contemporaneously colored by hand.

On April 4, 5 and 6 the fine library of the late John Wingfield Larking excited considerable competition at Sotheby's. The books were of all kinds, for Mr. Larking appears to have been a general lover. "The World Encompassed by Sir Francis Drake, carefully collected out of the Notes of Master Francis Fletcher," second edition on large paper, 1635, sold for 11*l.* 10*s.*; and "Sir Francis Drake Revived," also on large paper and quite uncut, 1626, for 31*l.* The first-named book had one sheet "made up" from a small-paper copy, and was somewhat wormed. One of the best books of the year appeared at this sale—Audubon's "Birds of America," in 4 vols., double elephant folio, with 435 colored plates of birds the size of life, 1827-38. This magnificent specimen of natural history literature realized 345*l.*; while the next lot, Audubon and Bachman's "Viviparous Quadrupeds," in 3 vols. folio, 1845-48, with 150 colored plates, sold for 107*l.* Later on, at the same sale, a set of Curtis' Botanical Magazine, with its continuation by Sims, and the Indices, 80 vols. in all, 1793-1845, brought 69*l.* (half morocco extra); Gallezio's "Pomona Italiana," 6 vols. folio, 1817-39, with 162 colored plates of fruit, 13*l.* 15*s.*; Gould's "Birds of the Himalayas," 1832, 22*l.* 10*s.*; "Birds of Europe," 5 vols., 1837, 81*l.*; "Icones Avium," 2 parts, 1837-38, 17*l.*; "Birds of Australia," 8 vols., 1848-69, 205*l.*; "Birds of Asia," 35 parts, 1850-83, 71*l.*; "The Trochilidae," 5 vols., 1880-87, 40*l.*; "Mammals of Australia," 3 vols., 1863, 29*l.*; "Birds of Great Britain," 5 vols., 1873, 66*l.*; and "Birds of New Guinea," 25 parts, 1875-88, 41*l.* The ornithological works of the French savant Le Vaillant also sold well his "Histoire naturelle des Oiseaux de Paradis," on large-t paper, 3 vols., 1806-7, bringing 27/. The whole of Mr. Larking's library, comprising some 946 lots, realized 3925/. 13s.

BOOK BOOMING.

By W. J. Lampton in Printers' Ink.

I AM reminded by a recent article in Printers' Ink on the advertising of books, that our vaunted Yankee ingenuity has to a large extent left uncultivated a field of gain, which does not speak well for our Yankee thrift, if so be our Yankee thrift is in all respects what tradition would have us believe it is. I refer now to the booming of books. Possibly the term is new; the practice is not altogether so, though as yet it has never been systematized.

To begin with, then, a book is as worthy to be advertised as a patent medicine or a piece of calico is. A book meets a want just as any other material matter does, although it may not be applied in quite so material a manner. As we now have it, books are advertised only in certain publications, and to reach a certain class. Hundreds of good readable books in every department of literature never reach more than a merely nominal sale, and they are left to die on the shelves. We have sixty-five millions of people in this country, thirty millions of whom, we may say, can read a book. They do not, however; at least, not the same book. If an author can sell 20,000 volumes he is doing wonders, and if his sales reach a hundred thousand he is a phenomenon in literature. Yet there are millions of copies of newspapers sold every week. With this state of affairs before us, why is there not good business in the organization of a firm with say a million dollars capital, whose sole object shall be to boom such books as it may own outright or have on royalty?

To be more explicit: Let such a firm buy a good strong readable book suitable to all classes—"Ben Hur," for instance—and begin a systematic and widespread advertising of it in every newspaper in the country and on the walls and billboards if necessary. Let us use catch-phrases: "Good morning! Have you read 'Ben Hur'?" or something of that sort. Advertise it exactly as any other useful article is advertised and as copiously. Get people to talking about it. Let them know there is such a book. Spend money in displaying its merits; print the book in cheap and expensive styles to meet all purses and whoop it up from Maine to California. It may shock the æsthetic ideas painfully, and make the author tired; but business is business and his wounds will find a panacea in the pay he gets. There is no reason why a good book of fiction, by a standard author, alike interesting to all, should not sell a million copies. Even at this date Scott, Bulwer, Dickens, Cooper and others equally as old could be boomed in this way and made to sell everywhere, for it is safe to say that nine-tenths of our people have not read these authors, but would if they had the opportunity thrust upon them. The thing must be done in a purely business way, however, and persisted in as any business is that finds its success in the liberal application of printers' ink. Trusting to the people to grab a good thing when they see it will not do. Experience has shown they will not do it. It must be rubbed in on them, and shoved at them from every nook and corner. The outlay, except for advertising, would be comparatively small, as well-known books past the copyright age would be the best to begin with, and new books could follow, say at the rate of one a year. Too many books is not good either. A man who advertises and booms a patent medicine has but one, as a rule, and gives that his entire attention. So with books to a large extent.

Of course this suggestion is largely a theory; but it occurs to me that a theory which works out well in practice in one line should at least be fairly successful in another, and there is somehow a power in printers' ink which gives confidence in all things, and a success almost if not equally great.

In any event I present the suggestion, and with a prediction that the time will come, if it is not now at hand, when this method of booming a book will be the vogue, and will result in money to the boomer as well as to the author.

COLLECTION OF BOOK-PLATES.

From the London Morning Post.

THE collecting of book-plates is no longer confined to a few people with a taste for heraldry. Both in England and on the Continent we have societies specially devoted to the study of book-plates, and their artistic merits are beginning to receive very general notice. To begin with, the word book-plate, which dates from an early part of the present century, is not altogether a happily chosen one, though most people now understand that it refers to a mark of ownership fastened into a book. For want of better, we will use it here; and, at any rate, it is more appropriate than the two words ex libris applied by our French neighbors to similar marks—words taken from the commencement of the inscriptions on these marks, when given in Latin, ex libris So-and-So. The expression ex libris in such cases is certainly not intended as a declaration by the mark itself, when taken out of the book in which it was fastened, that it came out of a book belonging to such and such a person. It is a declaration by the mark that the volume in which it rested was from the books of a particular library, and, without some note to the contrary, ought to go back there.

Now this being so, and as the use of book-plates is decidedly ancient, following, probably, hard on the heels of the invention of printing, it is pretty evident that the professional book-borrower is no invention of recent times. Indeed, it seems that it is to him we owe the existence of book-plates, as witness the numerous verses which appear upon them in condemnation of the man who borrows and does not return. The simple quotation from the Psalms, "The ungodly borroweth, and payeth not again," was supposed by many English library owners of the last century to be sufficient to work upon the feelings of a would-be book-stealer, but the old German ecclesiastics of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries liked a longer and more expressive collection of words to denote their disapproval of the man who compiled a library by "borrowing." What the English library owner of a similar period would have put upon his book-plate we know not, for unfortunately the use of such things did not come into use in our country till the latter half of the seventeenth century, and was not frequent till the beginning of the eighteenth.

How it is that English men of letters, known to be the possessors of large libraries, did not follow a fashion so prevalent on the Continent, and so obviously useful, we cannot explain.

Let us speak for a moment about the book-plate which Dürer designed and executed for his friend Billibald Pirckheimer, because it may probably be found in a good many English libraries, and for this reason: Thomas, Earl of Arundel, who died in 1645, possessed a very large number of books acquired abroad; part, says Horace Walpole, which had belonged to the kings of Hungary, was purchased from a certain "Perkeymerus." A portion of this library was afterwards bestowed by Henry, Duke of Norfolk, on the Royal Society, and when, some years back, that learned body parted with some of its duplicates, many books with the Pirckheimer plate got into the English market. After giving a description of this notable plate extracted from Warren, the writer goes on to speak of the beautiful "Holles" plate, and mentions the names of Bewick, Bartolozzi and other engravers and designers of past days who have executed book-plates.

It would be out of place here to speak of modern book-plates at any length. Suffice it to say that the taste for collecting them has certainly stimulated some of the best artists of to-day to design them, and, as a consequence, we have some very charming productions amongst the book-plates engraved during the last ten years. One word in conclusion to the ardent collector. Remember that a "specimen" looks quite as nice, and is ten times more interesting, if left in the volume. Second-hand books of the present day too often show signs of a ruthless "removal" of the book-plate by a past owner.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death of the Bishop of Massachusetts, the Rt. Rev. Phillips Brooks, on the morning of January 23 was a great shock to the community. It was unknown beyond the circle of his personal friends that he had been suffering for some days from slight indisposition and sore throat, which unexpectedly showed diphtheritic symptoms. The immediate cause of death was heart-failure, to which the great preacher succumbed during a fit of coughing. Bishop Brooks is an irreparable loss to the diocese of Massachusetts, and the Christian church throughout all the world has lost one of its ablest and most cultivated preachers, and a truly great man. Phillips Brooks was born on December 13, 1835, in the city of Boston. He entered Harvard and graduated in the class of 1855. Finally he pursued a course of study at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va. He was ordained in 1859. When only thirty-four years of age he was called to be rector of Trinity Church, Boston, one of the most important Protestant Episcopal churches of America, and there he worked until made Bishop of Massachusetts in 1891. Bishop Brooks was so active in his great work among his fellow-men that he had but little time to devote to study and reading. It was his personality and his wonderful eloquence that gave him his high place among men of all shades of opinion. Among his published works are: "Alexander Hamilton Vinton," a memorial sermon; "Candle of the Lord, and Other Sermons;" "Influence of Jesus;" "Lectures on Preaching," delivered before the Divinity School of Yale College; "Sermons Preached in English Churches;" "O Little Town of Bethlehem;" "Easter Carols" and several volumes of collected sermons.

THE death is announced of Hawley Smart, the novelist, author of "Bound to Win," etc., at the age of sixty, from paralysis.

THOMAS J. BRYANT, who for a number of years had conducted a business college in St. Joseph, Mo., and who was one of the authors of the Bryant and Stratton text-book on book-keeping, died in that city on the 21st inst. He was a cripple, and a conspicuous figure as he moved about in a little go-cart.

REV. DR. ANDREW A. BONAR, minister of Fineston Free Church, Glasgow, has just died. He was in his eighty-third year. Two of Dr. Bonar's brothers were eminent clergymen of Scotland, Rev. Dr. John Bonar and Dr. Horatius Bonar. Among Dr. Bonar's chief works were the "Memoir and Remains of the Rev. Robert Murray M'Cheyne," a "Commentary on Leviticus," and a "Commentary on the Book of Psalms." He also wrote a great many articles for religious periodicals.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Eugene F. Endicott, of Chelsea, has succeeded Charles Caverly as agent of the Universalist Publishing House.

NEW YORK CITY.—Joseph J. Little on the 26th inst. was appointed receiver for the Worthington Company, on the application of Elizabeth Sproule, Richard Worthington and Frank Dorman, the trustees. The company was unable to meet maturing obligations, and notes to the amount of $20,000 went to protest. The sheriff took possession of the store before the receiver was appointed, on an attachment for $2200 obtained by Joseph A. Arnold, attorney for the Waverly Company. The total liabilities are reported to be $167,600, of which $133,395 are direct, $14,205 contingent indorsements on notes, and $20,000 capital stock. The actual assets are $94,247, composed of the following: Stock, nominal value, $149,229, actual value, $74,614; book accounts, nominal value, $35,630; actual value, $19,633. The capital stock of $20,000 was held by Elizabeth Sproule, Richard Worthington, Margaret Worthington and Frank Dorman. The company was incorporated in June, 1885, succeeding to the business of Richard Worthington, who made an assignment on Jan. 1, 1885. He was the treasurer and general manager of the company.

NEW YORK CITY.—Several of the creditors of the United States Book Co. have become anxious about the money that is due them, and fearing that others might get ahead of them have begun legal proceedings against the company and its branches—the National Book Co., Hovendon Co., Seaside Publishing Co., Lovell, Coryell & Co., International Book Co., and the Empire Publishing Co. The plaintiffs are the Manufacturers' National Bank of Troy, the Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Co., whose claim alone amounts to considerably over $200,000, Erastus N. Root, Walter J. Carter and Bulkley, Dunton & Co. Altogether the claims pressed now represent an amount of about $310,408. It is said that the United States Book Co.

will have no difficulty in raising the money to settle the suits, as its assets were over $5,000,000. The mortgage recently given and now held by the Manhattan Trust Company was to secure debenture bonds which had been issued to the amount of $1,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Behm & Gerhart, booksellers, have dissolved partnership. J. C. Gerhart continues.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The S. Carson Co., booksellers and stationers, have removed from 208 Post St. to 731 Market St., opposite Grant Ave., in the Bijou Theatre Building, now known as the Christian Union Mission, in the same block with Sanborn, Vail & Co., The American Tract Society, and immediately adjoining The Bancroft Co.'s Building. Their specialty will be medical books, high-school text-books, blank-books, stationery and printing.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. J. SCHULTE & Co. announce for early publication a new book by Hamlin Garland entitled "Prairie Folks." It consists of nine characteristic stories bound together by bits of original verse and a continuity of scene and character, and is intended as a companion volume to "Main-Travelled Roads."

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. will publish early this spring "Men, Women and Emotions," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. This book is likely to prove as great a sensation as the author's "Poems of Passion" did when first issued. The publishers state that the sales of her poems last year increased 100 per cent. over the previous year.

TAIT, SONS & COMPANY announce that they have been negotiating with the French publishers, and will publish on February 1 a masterly translation of Bourget's "Cosmopolis," the novel which it is claimed has all the power of Zola with none of the elements which, to some, are obnoxious in the writings of the great French realist.

HARPER & BROTHERS have nearly ready several works of fiction which will commend themselves to all novel-readers. Among them are William Black's new novel, "Wolfenberg," a volume of short stories of Southern life, entitled "A Golden Wedding, and Other Stories," by Ruth McEnery Stuart; "Katharine North," by Maria Louise Pool, author of "Roweny in Boston;" a new tale by David Christie Murray, entitled "Time's Revenges;" and "From One Generation to Another," by Henry Seton Merriman.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation a volume on "Socialism and the American Spirit," by N. P. Gilman, whose work on "Profit-sharing Between Employer and Employee" has had much success; a work on Lincoln by that accomplished writer John T. Morse, which will form two volumes of the American Statesmen Series; and two new volumes in the American Men of Letters Series—one a biography of James Russell Lowell, by George E. Woodberry, the other a biography of George William Curtis, by Edward Cary.

RICHMOND, CROSCUP & Co., New York, will publish shortly a volume of "Personal Reminiscences, 1840-1890," of L. E. Chittenden, register of the Treasury during Lincoln's administration, whose work entitled "Recollections of President Lincoln and His Administration" was so interesting that its many readers will no doubt hail further contributions from his pen. The forthcoming book promises to be of rare interest, as Mr. Chittenden's acquaintance with public men and participation in events of national importance during this most interesting period of our national history, as indicated in the title, appeals to a wide circle of readers.

THE PRICE-MCGILL COMPANY announces for early publication two works of fiction—"John Holden, Unionist," a romance of the days of destruction and reconstruction by T. C. De Leon, the well-known Southern novelist; and "Six Cent Sam's," a collection of stories by Julian Hawthorne. Both will be illustrated, the former with twelve full-page cuts, and the latter with over 60 sketches by J. H. Garnsey. In paper bindings, the same company announces "John Applegate, Surgeon," a story of hospital life, by Mary Harriott Norris; "Belle-Plante and Cornelius," by Claude Tillier, author of "My Uncle Benjamin;" "Juny, or Only One Octoroon's Story," by T. C. De Leon; "The Roupell Mystery," a thrilling detective story by Austyn Granville, cousin to Rider Haggard; "Mammon," a study of the times, by Maude Howe; "Major Matter-son, of Kentucky," a stirring romance by St. George Rathborne.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce for publication on February 3 the tenth volume of the new "Chambers's Encyclopædia," completing the edition. Begun in 1888, the work has been going steadily forward at the average rate of two volumes each year. When the immense amount of labor connected with publishing a comprehensive encyclopædia of this character is taken into consideration, the time that has intervened between the appearance of the volumes has been remarkably short. Each book averages between eight and nine hundred pages reset from new type. Every article has been thoroughly revised or rewritten, and a large number of entirely new ones have been prepared, embracing recent events in history, biography, etc., and the advancements in geographical, scientific and other similar departments of knowledge. The illustrations, specially engraved, are of superior excellence, while the maps have been prepared according to the latest geographical surveys and represent all the countries on the globe, including maps of all the States and Territories of the United States. Articles on American topics written by American authors are liberally inserted, and the edition is thoroughly up to date.

LITERARY BLUNDERS.

A Chapter in the History of Human Error, by HENRY B. WHEATLEY, author of "How to Form a Library," etc., etc. Cloth, uncut edges, $1.25.

The "History of Literary Blunders" is a wide subject, and necessarily covers many centuries and countries. Mr. Wheatley has here brought together an interesting collection of instances of literary blundering—gleaned from many fields and different times. Thus, starting with "Blunders in General," he gives many instances of the long life which a literary blunder enjoys. He then takes up the "Blunders of Authors" in particular, giving examples from the writings of well-known literary men and newspaper critics. "Amusing Blunders in Translation" are also illustrated. Numerous cases are given of "Bibliographical Blunders," of defects in classification, and other weaknesses in well-known works. "Lists of Errata" are made to yield a curious chapter of human fallibility, etc., etc.

II. New Book by Rev. J. R. Macduff, D.D.

THE PILLAR IN THE NIGHT.

By the author of "Bow in the Cloud," "Morning and Night Watches," etc., etc. 18mo, neatly bound in cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

This book is intended as a companion to the author's "Bow in the Cloud," though purposely in a more extended shape.

III. THE 10th VOLUME OF THE SERMON BIBLE.

2d Corinthians—Philippians. Bound in half buckram, crown 8vo, $1.50.

"We are bound to say that the object announced by the editors is on the way to be realized, and here is given the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation."—London Literary Churchman.

When a Man's Single.

By J. M. BARRIE. New fifty-cent edition, on good paper, in unique paper cover, in imitation of cloth.

"The word 'racy' is a well-worn and often misused critical term, but it has no synonym that could so fittingly be applied to Barrie's story, 'When a Man's Single.' The book is a budget of quaint conceits, witty epigrams and Barrie's own peculiar humor."—New York World.

A Masterpiece.

After Many Days.

AN AMERICAN NOVEL BY TWO AMERICANS. By THEODORA B. WILSON and JAMES CLARENCE HARVEY. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"After Many Days" is a thoroughly American novel, and not only in its local color, but in its dialogue and character drawing as well as a correct portrayal of country life in a provincial town. There is no attempt to set the stage elaborately for the drama which unfolds in its pages—the authors have been content to faithfully depict the probable thoughts and deeds of certain characters under given surroundings.

The Princess Mazaroff.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAY. By JOSEPH HATTON, author of "By Order of the Czar," "Clytie," "John Needham's Double," etc. Paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"The tale is one which commands the close attention of the reader, and one cannot fail easily to discern its moral."—Boston Advertiser.

"There are many charming pictures in the story, and the plot is well laid and carried out in very good style."—St. Louis Republic.

By L. E. CHITTENDEN,

Register of the Treasury under President Lincoln, and

author, extra cloth, gilt top, $2.00.

"If the opinion of a large body of correspondents is reliable, the reading public have derived some pleasure from my 'Recollections of President Lincoln.' The present volume is written in the same spirit and on the same plan. I sincerely hope that each subject will be found to possess an interest which will justify its publication. I can guarantee its accuracy. I shall feel greatly disappointed if there is a sentence in it which shall pain any reader, or lead him to wish that the volume had not been written."—From Author's Preface.

"Mr. Chittenden is a capital story-teller, and whatever he writes is vivid and valuable."—The Independent.

"The observations of such a man as Mr. Chittenden, fortified by full notes taken at the time, possess a high historical value, and his literary skill is of so marked a character that all he writes is invested with uncommon interest."—The Tribune.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Seedlings.

By Sir JOHN LUBBOCK, Bart., F.R.S., etc., author of "Ants, Bees and Wasps," "Origin of Civilization," etc., and editor of the "Modern Science Series." With 684 illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, $10.00.

These volumes contain the results of most extensive observations at Kew and elsewhere with a view to solving some of the many interesting problems connected with the germination of plants. The numerous illustrations will be found of the greatest value to botanists in elucidating the text.

The Great Enigma.

By WILLIAM SAMUEL LILLY. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

"An important contribution to the apologetics of theism. . . . This great argument, which involves a critical examination of some of the main currents of modern speculative thought, is presented with rare dialectical skill. A powerful book."—London Times.

Dictionary of Every-Day German and English.

By MARTIN KRUMMACHER, Ph.D. In Two Parts: GERMAN-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-GERMAN. 16mo, 356 pages, cloth, $1.75.

In addition to the Dictionaries proper, this volume contains lists of the most important technical terms, proper names spelled differently in the two languages, a sound-notation, an outline of grammar and several pages of "travel talk" in parallel columns.

A Comedy of Elopement.

By CHRISTIAN REID, author of "Valerie Aylmer," "Morton House," etc. No. 108, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

An Englishman in Paris.

The Naturalist on the River Amazons.

By HENRY WALTER BATES, F.R.S., late Assistant Secretary of the Royal Geographical Society. With a memoir of the author, by Edward Clodd. With map and numerous illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

In company with Alfred Russel Wallace, the author in 1848, began an exploration of the Amazons region for the collection of objects of natural history. This volume records the adventures of an eleven years' sojourn, during which specimens of nearly fifteen thousand species were obtained, and includes descriptions of habits of animals, sketches of Brazilian and Indian life, and various aspects of nature under the equator.

Charles Darwin:

HIS LIFE TOLD IN AN AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL CHAPTER, AND IN SELECTIONS FROM HIS LETTERS. By his son, FRANCIS DARWIN, F.R.S., Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge. With portrait. One volume, 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"A delightful volume to every reader interested in the most famous man, scientifically speaking of the century, or in the details of a life which in the midst of the most profound scientific problems and labors, and under a storm of obloquy as bitter as orthodoxy could pour out, preserved its loving, simple humanity, its cheerful attitude toward all mankind."—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Rousseau's Émile;

OR, TREATISE ON EDUCATION. Abridged, translated and annotated by WILLIAM H. PAYN, Ph.D., LL.D., Chancellor of the University of Nashville, and President of the Peabody Normal College. The twentieth volume in the International Education Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Rousseau's "Émile" may be regarded as the source of social, political and educational ideas that advocate a return to nature. It is the most radical work of the kind ever written, and not only gave the primary impulse to Pestalozzi and Basedow, but set on fire all Europe, and probably did more than any other book to bring about the French Revolution. No book is more helpful than this to provoke original thought in regard to the grounds of educational theories.

D. APPLETON & CO., NEW YORK

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. will publish shortly "A Winter in North China," by Rev. T. M. Morris; and "An Introduction to the Books of Ezra, Nehemiah and Esther," by Prof. Sayce, which will be of especial value at this time to students of the International Sunday-School Lessons.

TAIT, SONS & Co., Agents, have heard by letter from Paris in confirmation of the numerous cables received from the Paris publisher of "Cosmopolis," and in that letter M. Alphonse Lemerre states "the right to publish the translation for America (of 'Cosmopolis'), it is well understood, is exclusive to your firm."

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish shortly the delightful series of out-door sketches by Isa Carington Cabell in their Black and White Series; "Catherine," a love-story by Mrs. Frances M. Peard, the scene of which is laid in Devonshire and Plymouth, Eng., during the time of the Napoleonic wars; a volume of short stories by Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, entitled "A Golden Wedding, and other tales;" a new novel by Henry Seton Merriman, entitled "From One Generation to Another;" and D. Christie Murray's latest work, "Time's Revenges," a tale of English and Australian life.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish on February 7 F. Marion Crawford's new novel, "The Children of the King." It is a story of Italian life and has never appeared in serial form. They will issue at once the first volume of a new revised and enlarged edition of Bryce's "American Commonwealth." Several additional chapters have been added to this edition. A collected edition of the poems of William Watson is now ready, and is to be had also in a limited large-paper edition of 100 copies.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have ready for the Easter season two charmingly illustrated booklets entitled respectively "An Easter Carol" and "Easter Angels," by the late Bishop Phillips Brooks. They are printed in Ernest Nister's best style and daintily gotten up. Other Easter remembrances also printed by Nister are "An Easter Hymn," by Archdeacon Farrar, a booklet with the text in colors and gold interspersed with symbolical illustrations; "Jesus Our Hope," a booklet with pictures of groups of children; "Joy Cometh in the Morning," a booklet remarkable for its exquisite pictures of flowers; "The Cross of Jesus," "The King of Love" and "He Is Risen," three dainty little four-page booklets, each with one miniature photogravure; and two shape-books—"An Easter Blossom," in the shape of a pansy, and "Divine Love," a little book in the shape of a cross containing appropriate verses on one side of the page and an illustration on the other. They will publish at once under the title of "The Good Wine at the Feast's End" a sermon on the gains of growing old, by the late Bishop Phillips Brooks.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will add shortly to the popular series of Famous Women of the French Court, a volume entitled "The Duchess of Berry and the Revolution of July, 1830," which will be the third and last volume on the career of the charming duchess. In the Great Educators Series they have just ready a volume on "Froebel and the Kindergarten Movement in Education," by H. Courthope Bowen. They have also issued two new volumes by George Bird Grinnell, entitled "Pawnee Hero Stories and Folk-Tales," and "Blackfoot Lodge Tales;" a reissue in a revised edition from new plates of "The Story of the Atlantic Telegraph," by Dr. Henry M. Field; "In Three Zones," three short stories by F. J. Stimson; a cheap edition of Mitchell's "Reveries" and "Dream Life;" and the Hibbert Lectures for 1892—"The Origin and Growth of Religion," by C. G. Montefiore. They announce the second volume of the American History Series, entitled "The French War and the Revolution," by Prof. W. M. Sloane, of Princeton University.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: P. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (same: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (same: 15 cm.); Th. (same: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Allen, Grant. Blood royal. N. Y., Cassell Publishing Co., [1893.] c. '92. 8+276 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 132.) pap., 50 c.

A bookseller's assistant in a small English town believes himself of royal descent. His father, now a worthless drunkard and the dancing-master of the town, had once been a literary light of some brilliancy, and had educated his children in the error which he had ignorantly and innocently imbibed, that he was a lineal descendant of the Plantagenets. His son, Richard Plantagenet, obtains a scholarship at Oxford, and leaves the book-store for more congenial surroundings. Richard's career is the leading narrative in the book; his love, his discovery that he is not of royal blood, but the heir to a fortune that has long waited a claimant, are told with much graphic power.

*Andrews, Edmund, M.D., and E: Wyllis. Rectal and anal surgery; with a full description of the secret methods of the itinerant specialists. 8d ed. rev. and enl.; with il. and formulary. Chic., W. T. Keener, 1892, [1893.] 18-164 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Arnold, Sir Edwin. Adzuma; or, the Japanese wife: a play in four acts. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 6+170 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Sir Edwin Arnold tells the romantic story of Adzuma, the faithful Nippon wife who preferred death to dishonor, in graceful, melodious verse, interspersed with prose passages. The drama not only portrays an ideal of womanhood but illustrates the oriental belief in reincarnation, progressive expiation and the interweaving of individual fates.

Balzac, Honoré de. Lost illusions; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 6+416 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

Illusions Perdus is in the original in three parts, of which the first and third (Les deux poètes and Eve et David) given in this volume belong consecutively together; the second part, Un grand homme de province à Paris being comparatively an independent history, will be published in another volume. David Séchard, a young printer, struggling to make a living out of the old-fashioned printing "plant" of his father, and Lucien Chardon, his proof-reader, with Lucien's sister Eve, are the principal characters. David loves Eve and is hoping to make a fortune out of an invention for manufacturing paper out of something cheaper than linen rags. Lucien imagines himself a great poet, and is in love with a married woman many years his senior. The avarice and duplicity of the small business man of the province and the social gossip and scandal are depicted with Balzac's usual cynicism.

Beet, Jos. Agar, D.D. Through Christ to God: a study in scientific theology. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. 19+378 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A series of thirty-nine lectures delivered to theological students, forming the first volume of four planned to cover the Gospel of Christ and his teaching about himself and God, the Gospel as a power working in and transforming the heart of man, the Church of Christ, the collective spiritual life of the servants of Christ and a volume on "The last things," the final and glorious consummation of the spiritual work. By the author of "Holiness as understood by the writers of the Bible" and "Credentials of the Gospel."

Briggs, C: A; D.D. The higher criticism of the Hexateuch. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92, '93. 9+259 p. D. cl., $1.75.

Ten years ago the author undertook to write a little book upon the Higher Criticism of the Hexateuch, but finally turned aside from it, believing the times were not yet ripe for it. The circumstances in which Prof. Briggs is now placed make it necessary for him, he thinks, to define his opinion on the Hexateuch; for this reason he presents to the public the results of his studies so far as they have gone. His conclusions as to the composition and authorship of the books are too lengthy for us to quote, but they correspond in the main with the opinions which have been formed independently by leading Biblical scholars in all parts of the world. The work has been written for the general public.

Campbell, Mrs. Helen. In foreign kitchens; with choice recipes from England, France, Germany, Italy, and the North. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. '92. 2+116 p. D. cl., 50 c.

These recipes were prepared originally for The Epicure, a Boston magazine. So many requests have come for them in more permanent shape that they are now gathered in the hope that they will help to vary the monotony of the ordinary menu.

Carlyle, T: The diamond necklace; ed. with introd. and notes by W. F. Mozier. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] c. '92. 5+170 p. 8. (Students' ser. of English classics.) cl., 42 c.

This essay was selected for annotation in preference to the more commonly read essays of Carlyle because it presents specimens of all of his varied styles—essays, narrative, dramatic and descriptive. There is

Chambers, C. Haddon. Thumb-nail sketches of Australasian life. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 5-268 p. D. (Holyrood ser.) cl., $1.; pap., 50 c.

Twenty-one short stories dealing with exciting incidents in the wilds of Australia and with the peculiar conditions of business in its cities. Some of these stories are rather horrifying, but the greater number are interesting, and all are told with spirit. By the author of the two successful plays, "Captain Swift" and "The Idler."

*Champneys, A. C. History of English: a sketch of the origin and development of the English language; with examples down to the present day. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 16+414 p. 12", cl., $1.25.

Clarke, Jos. I. C. Målmörda: a metrical romance. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. '92. 3+92 p. D. cl., 75 c.

The events of the poem took place toward the end of the first half of the ninth century, when the Viking invaders from Norway and Denmark were repulsed bravely and often by the Irish, who were fighting for their homes and liberties. The Irish king is supposed to fall in love with Torcala, the Norse war-god's daughter. Copious notes make clear the historic foundation of this love-poem. "Målmörda" was the king of Erin.

Cobbleigh, Tom, (pseud.) Gentleman Upcott's daughter. N. Y., Cassell Publishing Co., [1893.] c. 2+188 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 20.) cl., 50 c.

The rumor that Ebenezer Upcott Yeoman was related to the Upcotts of Exeter gained him the name of "Gentleman" Upcott. The interest of the novel centres in the quaint courtship of his daughter Ruth and George Biddlecome, and their odd way of adjusting difficulties.

Corelli, Marie. Wormwood: a drama of Paris. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] 10+421 p. D. (Belmore ser., no. 12.) pap., 50 c.

A young, prosperous banker of Paris is informed by his fiancée that she has been seduced by his friend, an unusually gifted man studying for orders in the Roman Catholic Church. In the first moment of despair he meets a wild artist friend, who leads him to drown his trouble with absinthe. The rest of this powerful story full of tragedy is a study of the life of a man given to indulgence in absinthe, which the author thinks the curse and sure to be the ultimate ruin of the French nation.

Coventry, John, (pseud. for John Williamson Palmer.) After his kind. [New issue.] N. Y., G. Munro, [United States Book Co., 1893.] 6+324 p. D. (Seaside lib., no. 2057.) pap., 25 c.

Originally published in Holt's Lecture hour ser. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., January 16, 1893, [729.]

*Dickens, C. The personal history and experience of David Copperfield the younger: a reprint of the 1st ed.; with the illustrations, and an introd., biographical and bibliographical, by C. Dickens the younger. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 27+819 p. 12", cl., $1.

Dodel, Arnold. Moses or Darwin? A school problem for all friends of truth and progress; from the 3d German ed.; with preface for the American ed. and a disquisition on school reform in the west by F. W. Dodel. N. Y., Commonwealth Co., [1893.] c. '91. 8-326 p. D. (Commonwealth lib., no. 4.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Whether school-children shall be taught the Mosaic account of the creation or the scientific conception of gradual and slow evolution of matter is the subject discussed. These lectures were first addressed by the author, who is professor of botany at the University of Zurich, Switzerland, to an audience of workmen in Zurich and in St. Gall in the winter of 1890. The attention of teachers in our public schools is now directed to them.

Duffy, Bella. The Tuscan republics (Florence, Siena, Pisa and Lucca) with Genoa. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 14+456 p. por, map. il. D. (Story of the nations ser., no. 35.) cl., $1.50.

No history of the Italian communes could be considered complete which disregarded the recent researches of German historians into the origin of these little republics; hence the views of Hagel, Fawinski and Ficker are embodied with much succinctness in the introductory chapter. Other chapters have for their subjects: The uprising of Pisa and Genoa; Lucca and Pisa; Genoa; How the communes grew; The origin of Florence; The Tuscan communes and Genoa in the time of Barbarossa; The expansion of Florence, and the detailed histories of all the communes in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, etc.; chronological table of events.

Dumas, Alex. L'évasion du Duc de Beaufort; ed. with notes by D. B. Kitchen. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1892 [1893.] 95 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 30 c.

Ellsworth, Mrs. L. C. Furono amati: a romance. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., 1893. c. '92. 3-164 p. D. cl., $1.

Furono amati is the Italian for "they were loved." The hero is introduced as an Italian boot-black nine years old, dozing under a bench in Madison square, New York City. Into his squalid tenement home comes a whole-souled German, possessor of an Amati violin, with which he charms the musical soul of the boy. In a fit of passion, because he cannot make the Amati sing for him the boy destroys the valuable instrument. Later he becomes the fashion and marries a girl of good family. He discovers that she loves his music more than himself and he destroys her as he had done the violin, because she would not sing for him. But "they were both loved."

*Fairbanks, Rev. H. I. A visit to Europe and the Holy land. 3d ed. N. Y., The Catholic Pub. Soc. Co., 1893. 468 p. il. 12", cl., price raised to $1.50.

Fisher, Frances C., ["Christian Reid." pseud.] A comedy of elopement. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. '92. 2+261 p. S. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 108.) pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.

In St. Augustine, Florida, an elopement is planned. At the last moment the girl reconsiders and sends her young cousin, a girl of fifteen, to tell her lover of her change of mind. She is seen and her generosity and courageous silence lead to many complications. Six years after the story shifts to Venice, where the same characters unexpectedly meet. The devoted cousin has become rich and is jealously guarded by her step-brother, who wants her hand and fortune. To marry the man of her choice she is finally obliged to elope, and a story of true love is brought to a smooth conclusion.

Fletcher, W. I., comp. The A. L. A. index; an index to general literature: biographical, historical and literary essays and sketches, reports and publications of boards and societies dealing with education, health, labor, charities and corrections, etc., by W. I. Fletcher, with the co-operation of many librarians; issued by the publishing section of the American Library Assoc. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. '92. 6+329 p. Q. cl., net, $5; hf. mor. net, $6.50.

The "A. L. A." (American Library Association) Index is intended to make available for use the great mass of papers, essays, sketches, etc., contained in collections where their individual character does not appear, just as "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature" has brought into ready use the stores of valuable material contained in the magazines and reviews. Every library, even the smallest, contains many volumes of the character indicated above, which are little used because there is no ready key to their contents. The essays of Carlyle, Macaulay, Lowell, Emerson, Whipple and others belong to this class, as well as the "Collections" of historical and literary societies and the publications of various boards and societies, and many works of history, travel and general literature, whose individual chapters furnish a monographic treatment of special persons, places, events or topics. It will be found one of the most useful helps in every public library, and in the larger private ones, and a good book to have in the house to indicate what books should be got from the library to furnish the best brief treatment of any subject.

Gilliat, J. R. V. The loyalty of Langstreth: a novel. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 278 p. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 31.) pap., 50 c.

The "smart" set of New York City, it is claimed, furnished the types from which the author studied his characters. It is the familiar story of a woman who prefers wealth to honest love, and permits her heart after marriage to return to her former lover.

Gratry, A. Guide to the knowledge of God: a study of the chief theodicies: tr. by Abby Langdon Alger; with an introd. by W. Rounseville Alger. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 10+469 p. O. cl., $3.

The author was born 1806 and died in 1872. He was a priest and professor of moral theology at Sorbonne. This work of Christian philosophy was crowned by the French Academy, of which Gratry was elected a member in 1867. To bring the contents of the original two volumes into one the superfluous appendices and some of the footnotes containing texts have been omitted; also the prefaces to the first three editions, abounding in personal and local references and the long polemical introduction. The author condenses the wisdom of twenty-five centuries and gathers up the treasures for his readers. His key-note is that "the demonstration of the existence of God is the supreme achievement of the reason."

*Haeckel, Ernst. The history of creation; or, the development of the earth and its inhabitants by the action of natural causes. New ed., rev. by E. Ray Lankester. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 2 v., il. 12", cl., $5.

Harte, Fs. Bret. Susy: a story of the plains. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. '92. 2+264 p. D. cl., $1.25.

In a former story, by Bret Harte, called "A waif of the plains," "Susy," the heroine of the present story, first appears. There she and a little boy, Clarence Brant, were the only ones saved from Indians who attacked an emigrant train crossing the plains. In the present story "Susy" is the adopted daughter of Judge Peyton, and again comes in contact with Clarence Brant, who is a rich man. The unconventional scenes of love, murder and revenge which follow could only have occurred in the unconventional life of California of thirty years ago.

Hatton, Jos. Princess Mazaroff: a romance of to-day. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 357 p. D. (Belmore ser., no. 13.) pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., February 6, 1892, [1045.]

Heine, H. The family life of Heinrich Heine: one hundred and twenty-two family letters of the poet, hitherto unpublished, from his college days to his death, by his nephew, Baron Ludwig von Embden; from the German, by C. De Kay. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 18+356 p. pors. D. cl., $1.50.

The family life of Heinrich Heine has been so often falsely depicted in many ways, and his relations to his nearest kindred so woefully twisted that his nephew, at his mother's request, published this series of letters, which she had long preserved as a precious legacy of her beloved brother. They are not literary at all. They simply reflect the hopes and needs of the man, his attitude of mind towards money, his wife, household, publishers, friends, enemies and relatives.

Hiram Golf's religion; or, the shoemaker by the grace of God. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1892. c. 3+127 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

The minister with whom Hiram had often discussed his sermons and their usefulness summed up his character in these words: "I gave him little, he gave me much. He was a priest without the robes of office, a humble laborer in the vineyard, an honest creature, a true friend. His life was incarnate Christianity. His death—well, my dear boy, such as he never die. He is of the few who enjoy two immortalities—one there, one here." This simple shoemaker's conversations are full of wise thoughts and practical advice.

Jones, H. Arthur. The crusaders: an original comedy of modern London life, produced at the Avenue Theatre, London, on the 2d of November, 1891. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. '92. 18+115 p. D. cl., 75 c.

A satire upon the impracticable schemes of would-be reformers, by the author of "The dancing girl," etc.; the incidents are rather fantastic and belong to the future of Mr. Bellamy rather than to the present, but they serve to present with a mingling of humor and seriousness a number of a clety types of such as often engage in reform work, through other motives than philanthropy, and others who are hypocrites in the guise of religion, and others again who are sincere and enthusiastic, although aiming at an unattainable ideal.

*Keasbey, E. Quinton. The law of electric wires in streets and highways. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1892. c. 11+190 p. O. sbp., net, $3.50.

Kennedy, W. Sloane. John Greenleaf Whittier; his life, genius and writings. Rev. and enl. ed.; introd. by Rev. S. F. Smith, D. D. N. Y., Derby & Miller, [1893.] c. '92. 3-879 p. por. il. O. cl., $1.50; hf. rus., $2.

Originally published by S. E. Cassino in 1882. Republished by D. Lothrop Co. in 1884. Revised and published in the American reformers series by Funk & Wagnalls; see notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., June 18, 1892, [1064]. Contains a bibliography of Whittier covering 5 pages.

Kufferath, Maurice. The Parsifal of Richard Wagner; from the French. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., 1893. c. '92. 6+300 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The writer traces the legend of Parsifal through the history and poetry of all lands and peoples. He then describes the drama of Parsifal, "nothing else than a magnificent hymn of pity, love and pardon." The remaining chapters are devoted to the score, the performance and general remarks about the work in which Richard Wagner "has really attained the supreme grandeur of the dream of man." Both literary and musical readers will realize the great work the author has put into this volume. Dedicated to Anton Seidl in recognition of his efforts to make clear the genius of Richard Wagner.

Lehman, R. C., ed. Mr. Punch's prize novels. New series; with il. from Punch. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., 1893. c. '92. 4-239 p. D. cl., $1.

Twenty humorous stories dedicated to F. C. Burnand. These stories are supposed to have been sent to Punch to win prizes. Every story points out the peculiarities of some well-known author. Among the writers parodied are Mrs. Humphry Ward, Stevenson, Rudyard Kipling, George Meredith, Rider Haggard, Hall Caine, Marie Corelli, Olive Schreiner, Black, Blackmore, Hardy, Barrie, Jerome K. Jerome, William Clarke Russell, Walter Besant, etc., etc.

*Lilly, W. S. The great enigma: a contribution to the apologetics of theism. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 8°, cl., $4.

A series of chapters embracing practical advice regarding the reading of books, and pointing out the best books in certain classifications most worthy of study and remembrance; also contains criticisms and literary anecdotes.

Loring, Caleb W. Nullification, secession; Webster's argument and the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions considered in reference to the constitution and historically. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 11+171 p. D. cl., $1.

The question discussed is "whether a national union was established by the states, or a confederacy of independent nations formed with the right of each to decide upon the validity of the acts of the general government and leave at its pleasure." Mr. Loring's conclusions, fortified by many quotations from Webster's speeches and other men of national repute, and also from the constitution, are that it was the intent of those who made our government to establish a nation or union that should be indissoluble, that it was their full belief that they had done so, and that, historically, there has been no contention as to this.

Marshall, Mrs. Emma. New relations; a story for girls. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1893.] 4+363 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is Stoneleigh, England. Randall Barrington's excited announcement of the arrival of his grandfather from India with his wife and daughters is received in the Barrington household with some consternation and a great deal of joy. The cause of these diverse sentiments is explained in a story of romantic consequences.

Maxwell, W. H. The text books of Comenius. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1893. 4-241 p. O. (School bulletin publications.) pap., 25 c.

An address delivered before the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association at Brooklyn, 1892; with reproductions of the stereopticon illustrations taken from Comenius' book that were used to make the lecture more clear.

Containing colored county maps of all states and territories in the United States and the provinces of the Dominion of Canada; with descriptive, statistical and historical matter pertaining to each and indexed lists of their counties giving area and population. Also colored skeleton maps of the continents, showing all countries of the world, accompanied by statistical matter regarding the countries and their principal cities.

Ropes, J. Codman. The campaign of Waterloo: a military history. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1892, [1893.] c. '92. 42+401 p. map, O. cl., $2.50.

The task the author set himself in preparing this volume was to collect and co-ordinate in a spirit of impartiality the mass of facts in existence from many writers and authorities about the campaign of Waterloo, the narrative and discussions being confined to purely military affairs. Napoleon is the central figure. As the author says "The campaign was his campaign, planned and executed by him, frustrated by his opponents;" hence the endeavor has been to get at "his intentions, his expectations, his views from day to day of the facts of the case." The general method adopted by Mr. Ropes is that of Colonel Chesney in his "Waterloo lectures;" that is, the chapters first contain a statement or narrative and afterwards notes in which are examined most of the controversies concerning the campaign. A partial list of works relating to the campaign is included; it covers ten pages; also maps of the theatre of war in Belgium, and of the field of Waterloo.

Rousseau, J. Jacques. Rousseau's Émile; or, treatise on education: abridged, tr. and annotated by W. H. Payne. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. '92. 45+355 p. D. (International education ser., no. 20.) cl., $1.50.

Rousseau's "Émile" may be regarded as the source of social, political and educational ideas that advocate a return to nature. It is the most radical work of the kind ever written, and not only gave the primary impulse to Pestalozzi and Basedow, but set on fire all Europe, and probably did more than any other book to bring about the French Revolution. No book is more helpful than this to provoke original thought in regard to the grounds of educational theories.

*Samson-Himmelstierna, H. v. Russia under Alexander III. and in the preceding period; from the German, by J. Morrison; ed. with explanatory notes and an introd. by Felix Volkhovsky. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 36+306 p. 8°, cl., $3.

Sand, George, [pseud. for Mme. A. L. A. D. Dudevant.] La mare au diable; ed. and annotated by F. C. de Sumichrast. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. 7+117 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 30 c.

This masterpiece of George Sand is given with some excisions in two or three places, in no way altering the continuity or impairing the beauty of the work. In an introduction is given a brief biography of George Sand with a list of her principal works.

Sermon Bible (The); II. Corinthians—Philippians. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1893. 8+367 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The tenth volume of this series which gives in convenient form the essence of the best homiletical literature of this generation, compiled from manuscript reports and fugitive periodical sources, as well as from books. A full prospectus of the plan was given in noticing the first volume of the series in "Weekly Record," P. W., September 8, 1888, [1897.]

Shaler, Nathaniel Southgate. The interpretation of nature. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 9+305 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Contents: The appreciation of nature; Critical points in the continuity of natural phenomena; The place of organic life in nature; The march of the generations; The bond of the generations; The natural history of sympathy; The immortality of the soul from the point of view of natural science. In these seven chapters Prof. Shaler discusses several important questions related to both natural history and theology. He writes as a scientific student, and confines himself strictly to the evidence which science furnishes, but he writes in no narrow spirit.

Sociology: popular lectures and discussions before the Brooklyn Ethical Association. [New issue.] Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1893. c. '90. 10+403 p. D. cl., $2.

Published first by James H. West, Boston, 1890. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 6, 1890, [1894.]

*Stevens, A. A., M.D. Manual of the practice of medicine; prepared especially for students. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1893. 18+17-501 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Sykes, J. F. J. Public health problems. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1892, [1893.] 9+370 p. D. (Contemporary science ser., no. 22.) cl., $1.25.

The author is medical officer of health for St. Pancras, London. His work is divided into four parts: 1. Internal and external influences upon health. 2. Communicable diseases. 3. Defensive measures against communicable diseases. 4. The urban dwelling. It is an attempt to bring to a focus some of the essential points in evolution, environment, parasitism, prophylaxis and sanitation bearing upon the preservation of public health. The scope of the subject is necessarily wide, but the central point around which its treatment has gathered is the aspect presented to a health officer in reviewing the influences operating around him.

Thayer, W. Roscoe. The dawn of Italian independence: Italy from the Congress of Vienna, 1814 to the fall of Venice, 1849. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 92. 2 v., 2+453; 8+446 p. maps. D. cl., $4.

A period in Italian history that heretofore had not been the subject of much study or research is treated with sympathy and intelligence. Introductory to it we are given in book 1, in a series of chapters entitled "The inheritance," the story of Rome from the first to the end of the eighteenth century, when she was in a state of almost mediæval ignorance and priestly servitude. Book 2, "The doom of tyranny," covers the period from the Congress of Vienna, 1815, to the revolution of 1831. The three following books narrate in a rapid, brilliant style the many thrilling events that prepared the way for the final unification of Italy. Mazzini, Garibaldi and Charles Albert of Savoy figure in these scenes, a potent factor in their history being Mazzini's secret society of "Young Italy," with its avowed purposes of education and revolution; the Carbonari plottings, the many unsuccessful revolutions in many parts of Italy, the flight of Pope Pius the Ninth from Rome, the siege of Rome, and also the siege and capitulation of Venice, belong to this period.

Thierry, Gilbert Augustin. Mysteries of the Court of Napoleon III. from the French, by E. I. R. and M. A. B. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1892. c. 5-319 p. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 56.) pap., 50 c.

An Italian street-singer, whose father had been shot by French soldiers in the time of the first Napoleon, devotes her life to vengeance and is the heroine of a sensational story of intrigue and crime, said to be based on fact. The principal characters have very little to do with "the court of Napoleon III."

*Tucker, F. de L. Booth. The life of Catherine Booth, the mother of the Salvation Army, with marginal notes and index. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 2 v., 1355 p. il. 8°, cl., net, $3.50.

Under King Constantine. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1893.] c. 129 p. O. cl., $1.50.

King Constantine belonged to the post-Arthurian days of English chivalry; of his court were the three noble knights, "Sanpaur," "Kathanaal" and "Christalan," of whose heroic deeds and exalted thoughts and impulses a new poet sings in three charming idylls bearing these names. Two of the idylls illustrate the strength and beauty of a pure, unselfish love; the third tells how the knightly boy, "Christalan," being crippled and so deprived of knighthood, saved the life of King Constantine to his own deadly hurt, and dying was made a knight "valiant and true." The author's style is graceful and refined and polished. The book is printed on fine linen paper, with wide margins, and bound in white vellum cloth.

The writer is among those of liberal thought who perceive the defects of conventional Christianity as it is practised to-day, and who look forward to a time when a more enlightened faith, "the coming religion" shall transform the world. The religion of Jesus or the Gospel of love; the religion of science or the Gospel of evolution; the religion of humanity or the Gospel of socialism, the three religions now battling for supremacy, are examined critically. The author concludes: "Each religion, when it contributes its best helps make the universal religion which is slowly struggling into form and which is destined to be the religion of the civilized world."

*Vogel, E. Practical pocket-book of photography: a short guide to the practice of all the usual photographic processes for professionals and amateurs; tr. by E. C. Conrad from the 2d German ed.; with copious index. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 10+202 p. 16°, cl., $1.

Ward, Herbert D. A republic without a president; and other stories. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 2-271 p. D. cl., $1.

Six short stories which skilfully and humorously point out the weak spots in our boasted American strength and mechanical progress. The "Republic without a president" and its continuation, "Colonel Odminton," show the weakness of our coast defences; "The lost city" deals with the dangers of electricity; "A terrible evening" makes clear the dangers of alcoholism fostered by club-life; "Scud" tells of the wrongs of fishermen, and "The romance of a mortgage" shows up legal quibbles in real-estate transactions.

Warden, Florence. [pseud. for Florence Alice Price, now Mrs. G. E. James.] A shock to society. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 3-157 p. S. (Shandon ser., no. 2.) pap., 25 c.

The scene is Wales. The story turns upon an unconventional act of Decima Wyatstone, the niece of the Earl of Llangarren, who loves a young farmer who is quite her equal excepting in the matter of rank.

Weber, Alice. The clock on the stairs. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1893.] 6-190 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The old clock on the stairs of Glenbarrow House in Scotland was the improvised post-office of Uncle Max's little nephew and nieces; here they deposit letters full of their trouble and asking for advice, to a young lady, a friend of Uncle Max, whom they call the "Fairy Trouble Taker;" their chief trouble, the fear of a stepmother, is dissipated in a clever and unexpected manner.

The son of a dissenting minister, who is being brought up to follow in his father's footsteps, has an inborn passion for the stage, which he cannot conquer; he steals away from his guardian's house one night and witnesses "King Lear," with Edmund Kean in the leading part; although he repents this escapade for a time his heart goes back to the profession, and when sent up to London to finish his studies for the ministry adopts the stage as a career, and becomes a great actor. His love-story and sad ending are very pathetic.

Wicks, F. The veiled hand: a novel of the sixties, the seventies and the eighties. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 4+316 p. D. (Harper's Franklin Sq. lib., new ser., no. 780.) pap., 50 c.

The action takes place in London. A wholly unscrupulous younger son of an old family goes through a mock marriage with a devoted girl. He deserts her with three children and marries money. His selfishness is offset by the wholly unselfish and powerful man who marries the deserted mother and gives the children his name and protection.

Williams, Montagu. Round London, down east and up west. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12+244 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A collection of some twenty-six sketches of various aspects of London life; about half of them, and the most interesting half, are studies taken from life of the desperately poor and vicious inhabitants of the eastern quarter of London, in which region the author was for some time a magistrate. The other sketches describe places, phases of life, or are historical reminiscences, or relate to the numerous scandals of the past ten years in so-called high society—matrimonial, gambling, turf and other—that the press has brought before the public. The sketches originally appeared in Household Words.

Wolle, Rev. Francis. Deamids of the United States and list of American pedestals; il. with col. pl. New and enl. ed. Bethlehem, Pa. Moravian Publication Office, Edwin G. Klose, manager, 1892, [1893.] 162 p. por. O. cl., $6 50.

First published in 1884. This new edition is a complete reprint of the original work, with the addition of eleven plates, some of which appeared in "Fresh-water algae;" others represent still later discoveries. The sixty-four plates are all tinted by hand in imitation of nature. The work consists of a brief account of algae in general; a fuller one of deamids in particular—directions how to find, collect, preserve and examine them.

The twelve months of the year are the dividing lines of "an old woman's outlook." Beginning with January, she notes the aspects of the sky and earth, and trees; the snow, the curious birds, and other points of interest in an English landscape; with February and March and on to the end of the year, the reader is given a succession of beautiful pictures of nature, with occasional sketches of the living figures which are part of it.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

THE affairs of the United States Book Company have commanded the attention of the trade and a portion of the public for a little over a week, and have been the subject of much gossip and more speculation. In fact, at the present moment it is extremely difficult to separate fact from guess-work, both of which have been hopelessly mixed in the reports which have thus far appeared in print.

The state of affairs, as nearly as we have been able to gather from those who may speak with authority, is as follows:

After the action of the attorneys for the various concerns, which we noted in our last week's issue, the board of directors of the United States Book Company, in a meeting held in Jersey City on the 27th ult., voted Mr. John W. Lovell out of the vice-presidency of the company and dismissed him from his place as manager. John M. Forbes was elected to his place. It was also decided that a receiver should be applied for to straighten out the affairs of the company.

The petition for a receiver was made in the name of E. T. C. Young, President of the First National Bank of Jersey City, in whose suit the following defendants are named: Horace K. Thurber, John W. Lovell, Edward Lange, J. Selwin Tait, Thomas H. Wentworth, Jr.; James D. Safford, John M. Forbes, Leonidas M. Lawson, George L. Montague and James A. Taylor. Mr. Young's papers recited that he had been appointed receiver of the company, which is a New Jersey corporation, by Chancellor McGill, of New Jersey, at the request of J. Selwin Tait, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the United States Book Company, who was moved to take this step on account of the absence of Mr. Lovell, who was the general manager of the concern, and ignorance as to the disposition of $250,000 worth of securities which Mr. Lovell had in his possession.

Mr. Young, through his attorneys, Bedle, Muirhead & McGee, asked Judge Patterson to make Charles W. Gould receiver of the company's New York property, comprising about 90 per cent. of its total assets. Mr. Gould as assignee, straightened out the affairs of "Deacon" S. V. White when the latter failed for $1,000,000; he was also appointed by the courts to take charge of the business of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co. when that firm became insolvent, and as he had conducted both these involved matters in the most satisfactory manner, Judge Patterson had not the slightest hesitation in appointing him, particularly as Evarts, Choate & Beaman, counsel for the United States Book Company, stated that their clients were entirely in favor of the proposed receiver. Mr. Gould's bond was fixed at $75,000.

For the information of the court it was stated that at the time of the increase of the capitalization of the company about a year ago, the assets were said to be $5,350,000. Mr. Young estimates that the company has an indebtedness of upward of $500,000 on accounts payable, on notes which it has endorsed, and on its own notes. Besides this amount there is a bonded indebtedness of $1,000,000, secured by a chattel mortgage held by the Manhattan Trust Company. The assets are now valued at $2,500,000 and upward, largely dependent on the property being kept together. The property is in four States—New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Illinois. The company had branches in Boston and Chicago, but 90 per cent. of the assets, it was said, are in New York City. These assets include stereotype and electrotype plates and plant, copyrights, stock of books and paper, accounts and bills receivable.

Erastus N. Root against the United States Book Company, $5,637.36 on notes.

Carter, Hughes & Kellogg against the United States Book Company, $5,022.59 for legal services.

Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company against the United States Book Company, $200,349.39 for merchandise, work done and loans.

Erastus N. Root against the United States Book Company and Lovell, Coryell & Co., $3,603.50.

Erastus N. Root against the United States Book Company and the Seaside Publishing Company, $6,503.85.

Erastus N. Root against the United States Book Company and the National Book Company, $3,651.41.

Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company against the National Book Company, $6,168.68.

Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company against the Hovendon Company, $6,808.73.

Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company against the International Book Company, $1,641.25.

Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company against Lovell, Coryell & Co., $12,230.67.

S. I. Fernberg and Leopold Jankelson against the Industrial Printing and Binding Company, $1,799.30.

John Howard Latham against the United States Book Company, $32,605.47, on a note given to the American Loan and Trust Company for advances.

Caxton Bookbinding Company against the United States Book Company, $1,850.81, for binding.

On January 28 James A. Taylor, secretary of the company, made the following statement in behalf of the concern:

The suspension of payment by the company and appointment of receivers of its property were precipitated by the course of its late vice-president, John W. Lovell, who has been the manager of the company's business. Mr. Lovell has absented himself from all recent meetings of the board, refused to meet the directors or to give them information which it was necessary they should have concerning the company's business.

Mr. Lovell also has failed to cause proper entries to be made in the books concerning recent financial transactions made by him in behalf of the company, and he has not yet informed the company as to the whereabouts of securities of large amount belonging to the company which have been entrusted to him in connection with its business, and which are supposed to have been used for the company's purposes.

For these reasons the board of directors, at a meeting held on Friday, removed him from office as vice-president and discharged him from the company's employ, and measures will at once be taken to compel a prompt accounting by him concerning all his transactions as an officer of the company.

In the absence of the securities which Mr. Lovell had received, consisting of promissory notes of various parties amounting to $250,000 or more, and as to the disposition of which Mr. Lovell has not thus far rendered his account, the company found itself without the ordinary means of raising money to meet its maturing obligations.

Various debts were past due, and one creditor, the Manufacturers' National Bank of Troy, levied an attachment on the company's property in New York to recover a debt of about $12,000.

Others immediately began to follow this course, and the board of directors felt that the only way to preserve the property pending a readjustment of the company's affairs lay through the immediate appointment of receivers.

Creditors who had obtained attachments prior to the appointment of the receivers are understood to be willing to assent to any fair plan of settlement which shall secure equal rights to all, and no doubt is felt about a speedy readjustment of the company's affairs upon a sound basis, and of course under different management.

As soon as detailed information can be obtained as to the company's condition, it will doubtless be found entirely solvent. It has a splendid plant and a great earning power, which will not be permitted to be lost. Its principal indebtedness is represented by an issue of bonds amounting to $1,000,000, secured by mortgage upon electrotype and stereotype plates, the actual cost of which was nearly three times that amount. The other indebtedness is mainly held by banks and others, who will doubtless assist a proper reorganization.

An examination into the company's affairs is now in progress, its officers are learning its exact condition, and a strong committee composed of gentlemen of unquestionable standing is being formed, who will present a plan for the reorganization of the company at an early day.

During these occurrences Mr. John W. Lovell was out of town and did not return until some time on Sunday, January 29. On Monday the following statement signed by John W. Lovell was given to the press by one of his brothers:

The malicious and unfounded statements in regard to my connection with the United States Book Company call for absolute and prompt denial on my part.

The business of the company has required my almost continuous absence from the city during the last eight months. On Friday last the directors were informed that I was in Troy to have the attachment of the Manufacturers' National Bank withdrawn, and made an arrangement to have that done, which if carried out by the directors would have avoided all subsequent complications. On Saturday, the 28th inst., I was in Boston on the business of the company and there first learned through the New York papers of the other attachments and the unwarranted and unjust action of the directors regarding myself.

I at once returned to New York City, and shall now take such steps as I believe best for the protection of the stockholders and creditors of the company and compel redress for the wrong done myself.

Mr. Lovell, however, did not report to the company or any of its recognized representatives until February 1, when he appeared at a meeting of the board of directors held at the offices of the company. All the directors were present and Mr. Lovell was subjected to many severe and searching questions. Mr. Lovell promised to present a statement of the company's affairs as soon as possible. The following committee on reorganization has been appointed: John I. Waterbury, president of the Manhattan Trust Company; Schuyler Quackenbush, of Edward Sweet & Co., and Franklin W. Hopkins. This committee has gone actively to work. We are reliably informed that the gentlemen comprising the committee are confident that there are abundant assets, if judiciously administered, to pay all creditors in full and leave a sufficient surplus to enable them to continue business. They believe that the total indebtedness, outside of bonded debt, is not more than $500,000 to $600,000, and that the assets are of far greater amount. The committee expects to issue a statement to the creditors and others concerned at an early day.

The United States Book Company, it will be remembered, was organized in 1890 under the laws of New Jersey. Horace K. Thurber was elected president and Mr. J. W. Lovell vice-president and manager of the firm's business. There were some good names in the directory, among them that of Erastus Wiman, who, however, claims that he had no money invested in the concern, but had lent his name because Mr. Thurber had lent his. The object of the company was to put an end to the ruinous competition that existed before its organization between the publishers of paper-covered literature. The company either absorbed such firms altogether or bought out their interest in the plates of such books. About a year ago, it having been found impossible to control all the publications from one centre, it was thought advisable to separate the various lines, and accordingly subsidiary companies were formed. These were carried on under the firm names of Hovendon Company, 17 Waverley Place; Lovell, Coryell & Co., 43 East 10th Street; Empire Company, of which Mr. Lovell's brother, Frank F. Lovell, is president, 142 Worth Street; the National Book Company, the International Book Company, and Seaside Publishing Company, all of 142 Worth Street; and Lovell, Gestefeld & Co., East 23d Street. The proceedings against the United States Book Company have of course involved these sub-companies, and under the attachments the deputy sheriffs have taken charge of their offices. On the 1st inst. Receiver Gould succeeded in getting the sheriff out of the Hovendon Book Company and the International Book Company, the attachments against both concerns having been released, and is thus in absolute control.

V. M. Coryell, president of Lovell, Coryell & Co., has issued the following statement to the trade:

JAN. 28, 1893.
GENTLEMEN: We presume that you are already advised of the temporary embarrassment of the United States Book Company and its subsidiary companies. This company will continue to do business as usual, but will probably be reincorporated, leaving out the name of Lovell. Mr. John Lovell was in no way connected with this company as an officer or stockholder. Yours truly,

LOVELL, CORYELL & CO.,
V. M. CORYELL, President.

Since its organization the business is reported to have gone on fairly well, the ambition of its manager appearing to be the only drawback. He seems to have been continually reaching out for more, and so became unable to do justice to the material he already had in hand, thereby congesting the plant and in many cases rendering it inoperative. As an instance of his greed may be cited the fact that he had actually made arrangements with authors, at no insignificant prices, for upwards of two hundred new novels in one year, a number which might have satisfied all our publishing houses put together. Besides this his business methods were so unmethodical and unsatisfactory to some of the members of the company that it was only a question of time when the break would come. There was no accusation of criminal intent in conducting his business affairs as was reported, but he is censured in no measured terms for alleged mismanagement and carelessness.

THE Hamburg Landgericht (County Court) has recently decided that a firm of retail booksellers was guilty of a misdemeanor in offering a publication at less than the publishers' price to the public. The offending firm was fined 300 marks, and an injunction was issued restraining it from selling the work at a price less than that advertised by the publishers. The court took the view that offering the book at less than the advertised price was contrary (?) to usage in the book trade and a breach of contract with the publishers.

The Newsman announces that "there will be an important gathering of book, periodical and news dealers in Chicago, September 19, 20 and 21 next," and asserts that "it will be the most noteworthy assemblage of these trades ever held in America." We should be pleased to have the particulars, for thus far, even after careful inquiry, we have failed to find any one in the trade in this section of the country who has heard of this important project. Probably the "east" is not "in it" as yet. We advise the chief cooks not to overlook this element, else their cake may turn out all dough.

J. H. Slater in the London Athenæum.

It is wonderful how the early editions of popular modern authors manage to retain their position of "expensive iniquity," as an old book-hunting friend used to say. He meant "uniquity," though there is no such word in Webster, and the quality he spoke of had reference to really first-rate copies of books illustrated by the Cruikshanks, Leech, "Phiz" and other artists who have made for themselves an undying name by reason of the originality of their conceptions. Battered copies of such works are common enough, and collectors, who alone keep up the value of works of the kind, will have none of them; but first-rate examples seem to be increasing in value every year. In April Puttick & Simpson dispersed quite a large number of these "collectors' books," which some unknown admirer had got together, regardless, perhaps, of expense. George Cruikshank's "Table Book," in the original parts, sold for 11*l.* 5*s.*; and an original set of the "Comic Almanacs" for 13*l.* The complete set of plates to "The Fairy Library," signed by Cruikshank in pencil, brought 17*l.* 10*s.*; "Pickwick Papers," in the original parts, 13*l.* (this set contained the scarce "notice" to part xv.); "Sketches of Young Gentlemen," 1838, 5*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, and so on. A purchase of Capt. Richard Whitbourne's "Discovery of Newfoundland," 1620, for 13*l.* can be understood, dear though the price be; but why 5*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* for a record of the inanities of the worst kind of "young gentlemen" who vegetated in 1838? What Dickens wrote and Browne illustrated cannot be wrong, not even though the published price of 3*s.*, as in this case, be swollen to 5*l.* odd. More money has been made out of Dickens and all his works than ever he earned by writing them, though this experience seems to be hardly worth narrating in the face of so many other examples of a similar kind.

On April 12 Christie, Manson & Woods dispersed the books of the Hon. Lewis Wingfield, whose death was a distinct loss to art, more particularly to that branch of it represented by such books as Louandre's "Les Arts somptuaires," 1857, 4*to.*, which realized 5*l.* 10*s.*; the "Costumes du Moyen-Age chrétien" of M. Hefner-Alteneck, in 3 vols., 4*to.*, 1840-54, 11*l.*, and Le Comte de Viel-Castel's "Costumes, Armes, et Meubles, pour servir à l'Histoire de la Révolution Française," Paris, s.d., 4*to.*, 1*l.* 18*s.* Mr. Wingfield's library was a small one, but it was what is sometimes called a "working library," and thereby hang more tales than one. Passing to the end of April, we meet with a set of the Hakluyt Society publications, from the commencement in 1847 to 1891, in 79 vols. 8*vo.*, which realized 30*l.*; Montesquieu's "Le Temple de Guise," with proof-plates by Eisen, 1772, 8*vo.*, 43*l.*; "Don John of Austria," 2 vols., 1883, 4*to.*, by Sir W. Stirling-Maxwell, the same who haunted the dreams of poor Poet Close, 19*l.*

In May the three volumes of Barham's "Ingoldsby Legends," 1840-42-47, realized 23*l.* 10*s.*; and a set of A Beckett's "Comic Histories of England and Rome," 13*l.* The influence of Cruikshank and Leech is apparent enough here. "The Loving Ballad of Lord Bateman," first edition, 1839, may be cheap at 9*s.* as a memento of Dickens, who perhaps wrote the preface and notes; but 28*l.* 10*s.* for the three series of "Sketches by Boz," 1836, is certainly dear, even though the original cloth covers were inserted. "Sunday under Three Heads" sold for 8*l.* 15*s.*; and a clean copy of the first edition of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," 1866, for 8*l.*, a veritable triumph for the Rev. C. L. Dodgson, who wrote it. Perhaps Mr. Lang may be glad to hear that a very great demand has sprung up for all his books, especially those on large paper, and that, in the opinion of the speculators, the value is certain to increase. When, however, large-paper copies of the "Blue" and "Red" Fairy Books sell at public auction for four guineas each, there would not seem to be very much room for improvement, at least not yet. "Poems by Two Brothers," 1827, sold several times during the year, and two copies were on large paper. These brought respectively 28*l.* and 30*l.*, the published price being 7*s.* [The recent sale of the original manuscript for 480*l.* will be known to every reader of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in the issue of which for December 31 last the facts were fully reported.] The original edition of Thackeray's "Comic Tales and Sketches," with etchings by the author, 2 vols., 1841, is a scarce book, the value of which is appreciably increasing. It sold five times in twelve months, bringing 15*l.* 10*s.* (morocco extra), 7*l.* 5*s.* (ibid.), 16*l.* 5*s.* (original cloth), 11*l.* (ibid., soiled), and 31*l.* (original cloth, clean), respectively. The same author's "Second Funeral of Napoleon" sold twice, bringing 22*l.* 10*s.* (morocco extra) and 42*l.* (in the illustrated wrapper as published) respectively. The scarcest of all Thackeray's books is, however, "Flora et Zephyr, Ballet Mythologique," a series of nine humorous plates drawn by Thackeray and signed by the pseudonym of "Theophile Wagstaffe," 1836. The British Museum authorities have not yet made a "case-book" of their copy of "Flora et Zephyr," although it is worth some 80*l.* or 90*l.* as it stands. A copy sold in May, 1892, for 90*l.*, and another (with the cover torn off) for 56*l.* almost immediately afterwards.

Throughout the year the modern poets, or at least such of them as are worth reading, fared very well at the auctioneer's hands. Matthew Arnold, Austin Dobson, Robert Bridges, Browning, of course, Calverley, Andrew Lang, William Morris, Lewis Morris, George Meredith, the Rossettis, Swinburne, Tennyson, of course, and many others were in great demand. Of late a decided change of feeling has taken place with regard to poets and poetry. A few years ago it was a recognized rule that a poet, to bring his weight in gold, must be either a very great genius or else have been dead two hundred years at least—the longer dead, in fact, the merrier; but now there is room for almost all, dead or alive, who know how to sing Apollo's praise and do not make themselves or their works too cheap. Exceptions apart, however, the modern poet cannot compete with the old masters of the art—at least not in the auction-room. At the end of June Messrs. Sotheby sold a library consisting almost entirely of early English poetry, and among the lots were some books which one can hardly expect to see again, except, perhaps, within the walls of some great public institution. William Baldwin's "Canticles or Balades of Salomon," 1549, brought 19*l.* 5*s.*; Bandello's "Tragicall Historie of Romeus and Juliet," translated out of the original Italian by Broke, 1567, 13*l.* (no title); Clement Barksdale's "Nympha Libethris," 1651, 8*l.* 10*s.*; Bodenham's "Garden of the Muses," 1610, 9*l.* 5*s.*; Browne's "Britannia's Pastorals," 1613-16, 12*l.*; Brant's "Shyp of Follys," 1509, folio, 42*l.*; Cowley's "Poetical Blossomes," first edition, 1633, 4*to.* 28*l.* 15*s.*; Sir John Davies' "Wittes' Pilgrimage," no date, 4*to.* 14*l.* 5*s.*; Abraham Fraunce's "Countesse of Pembroke's Vvychurch," 1591, 4*to.* 22*l.* 10*s.* There were also several works by that repentant rake Robin Grene, one of which, the "Groatesworth of Witte," 1617, brought 23*l.* 10*s.*, a curious commentary on the last words of this very book:

"Remember Robert Greene, whome they have so often flattered, perishes now for want of comfort.... The fire of my light is nowe as the last snuffe, the want of where-with to sustain it. Now faint I of my last inffirmitie, beseeching them that shall bury my bodie to publish this last farewell written with my wretched hand. Felicem fuisse infaustum."

In this same library was a fairly good copy of the first folio of Shakespeare, 1623. It measured 12½ in. by 8¼ in., but had the title in fac-simile and several leaves mended in the margin. It brought 208*l.*, and was the only first folio publicly sold during the year. The second folio appeared once, though in a very dilapidated condition, the third folio not at all, and the fourth folio twice. Most of the existing copies of these works appear to have been acquired for the public libraries; the few that remain are hugged with religious care and are very seldom seen, perhaps even in private. At any rate, the fortunate owner of a first, second, third or fourth folio is more apt to overvalue than undervalue his treasure, and takes such excessive precautions in the preservation of it that to look is a crime and to touch flat treason. There may, therefore, be more copies of the Shakespearian folios under lock and key than any one is aware of.

Taking the book sales of 1892 for all in all, they are neither better nor worse than those of the preceding two or three years, as recorded in the pages of "Book Prices Current." The average is about the same, the same books appear over and over again, the same people buy them and pay much the same prices. The valuation of books is based upon a number of settled rules, perfectly well understood by all whose business it is to deal in them, and the chief factor to be taken into account is the temper of the public. The vox populi is, here at any rate, the suprema lex, and from that there is no appeal. The vox may be heard to-day or to-morrow; if to-morrow the man who is talked about may be dead; but no matter, his books will sell, and the auctioneer's hammer fall true to the reputation he has acquired. If of mean account, he will be bundled up in a "parcel" with other unfortunates and sold in bulk; if his name is shouted on the house-tops he will have a minute to himself, or perhaps even two if he be one of the world's great literary gods.

GERMAN BOOK INDUSTRIES AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

THE programme for the general exhibition of the book industries of the German Empire in Chicago, 1893, has recently been issued by the commissioners in Leipzig. It gives detailed instructions to all intending exhibitors for the selection, shipping and arrangement of their exhibits, and contains some interesting information as to the scope of the general exhibition. The industries included in the exhibition will comprise the publishing trade—covering books, maps, art-works and musical productions; printing, type-founding and stereotyping; electrotyping, wood-engraving and etching; copper-plate etching, lithography and chromo-lithography; methods of photo-mechanical reproduction; engraving and bookbinding. The exhibit will occupy the greater part of the German building, which stands near the Art building in the fair grounds. The tables, shelving and show-cases are to be of uniform and special design, and the greatest care will be exercised by the commissioners to preserve an attractive and harmonious arrangement of the different exhibits. Unbound books are entirely excluded, and publications in sheets are to be encased in a prescribed binding of linen-covered boards. In bound books the title is required to be printed on the upper cover, or, if printed on the back, the title must be from the bottom upwards. Engravings, colored prints and maps must be mounted in a prescribed manner. Bookbinders are requested to exhibit the finest examples of their art in bound volumes, portfolios, etc., and to furnish specimens of library bindings, to be exhibited in connection with the department of Library Economy. The committee reserves the right to reject such works as may be considered inappropriate or unworthy. The exhibits will be classified and grouped according to the classification. The commission especially recommends the exhibition of state and municipal publications, the transactions of societies, proceedings of associations, etc.

There will be an exhibit of German libraries under the direction of Dr. Welmann, of the Royal Library of Berlin, and Dr. Althoff, Privy Councillor in the department of Public Instruction. It will include the most important German bibliographical works; examples of library binding; the publications of various German libraries and the publications of different societies. A practical exhibition of the photo-mechanical methods of printing will illustrate the different stages of the process. There will be a general exhibit of the German music trade, and an exhibit of the finest examples of modern German bookbinding. A special catalogue of the general exhibition, printed at the Reichdruckerei (Imperial printing office), at Berlin, will be issued in a first edition of 10,000 copies, and will be sold at a low price.

DEALERS IN ELECTROTYPES OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

In answer to frequent inquiries for addresses of houses who make a business of supplying electrotypes of illustrations we print the following, which are all, so far as we know. Almost every publishing house, the magazines especially, sell duplicates of their illustrations under certain restrictions:

E. Albert & Co., Munich, Bavaria.
Cassell & Co., La Belle Sauvage Yard, Ludgate Hill, London.
W. Hinrichson, 87 Ru du Bac, Paris.
Rainer Hirsch, Neutitschein, Austro-Hungary.
Richard Jericke, Neukirchhof 30, Leipzig, Saxony.
Nop's Electrotpe Agency, 19 Ludgate Hill, London.
S. W. Partridge & Co., 9 Paternoster Row, London.
F. M. Haage, Leipzig. Reudnitz, Saxony.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS will set sail this month for Egypt in search of literary material. It is possible that he may complete the work the late Mr. Child had in hand when overtaken by death.

"THE EXQUISITE FOOL," a novel recently published by Harper & Brothers, which in style and method is a curiously exact reproduction of the novels of Mr. Henry James, is now announced, so says the New York Tribune, as the work of Miss E. F. Poynter.

In reply to the question who was to be appointed Poet Laureate, in the House of Commons on the 2d inst., Mr. Gladstone curtly replied to Mr. Johnston's interrogation that he had no intention of recommending the Queen to appoint a successor to Lord Tennyson.

VIRGINIA PENNY, author of "Five Hundred Occupations for Women," is, according to the New York Tribune in destitute circumstances. Miss Penny is sixty-five years old. She is living at No. 359 East Seventy-first St., and will acknowledge the receipt of all remittances.

ANDREW LANG has a volume of Homeric essays in press, which Longmans, Green & Co. will publish. Mr. Lang's standpoint is strictly conservative, some people would call it old-fashioned. He is a strong opponent of Kirchhoff's views regarding the composition of the Odyssey, and disapproves of any attempt to "dislocate" it.

AT the recent elections of members of the French Academy the Viscount de Bornier, the poet, and Thureau-Dangin, the historian, were chosen as successors to Camille Rousset and Ernest Renan. The competition for the seat made vacant by the death of Marmier was great, one of the candidates being M. Zola. Five ballots were taken without result. Zola received only six votes.

PETER F. BYRNE, late head-keeper of the Philadelphia Zoo, is revising the sheets for his new book, "From the Jungles to the Zoo." The work, which is nearly ready for the press, is full of matter entirely new, and judging from the knowledge Mr. Byrne has of wild animals, it will doubtless be full of useful information. Mr. Byrne has also entered into partnership with Louis W. Buckley in the publication of a "Directory of the World's Fair."

WILLIAM WATSON, the London Academy is glad to hear, has so far recovered that his doctor gives hopes that, after a few weeks' quiet and change of scene, he will be able to resume literary work. Meanwhile, two or three books of his may shortly be expected. One of these is a new edition of his earliest volume of poems, "The Prince's Quest" (1880), which attracted the favorable notice of Rossetti, who wrote of the author: "He goes straight back to Keats, with little modification." Another is a collection of prose, mostly literary criticisms contributed to the National Review, where also his "Wordsworth's Grave" first appeared. A third may be a poem of some length, entitled "The Eloping Angles," which he wrote about two months ago.

R. L. STEVENSON's new volume of Polynesian tales, with illustrations by Hatherell and Gordon Browne, may be expected early in April. The volume will probably be entitled, "Island Nights' Entertainment," and will consist of three stories—"The Beach of Falesà," "The Bottle Imp" and "The Isle of Voices." His novel, "The Adventures of David Balfour," which is now running as a serial in the Sunday's issue of the New York Sun, will not be concluded until the fall. Mr. Stevenson reports that he is well advanced with another Scotch novel, of which the scene is laid near Edinburgh about the close of the last century, and one of the principal personages is the notorious Lord Braxfield. He lately lost in the mail the end of his new novel. It was burned on its way across the plains.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Point of View is the title of a weekly soon to be started in Philadelphia. Is it to be edited by Miss Agnes Repplier?

A NEW monthly journal for boys and girls, entitled Our Youth, has just been begun by the Clemens Publishing Company, of San Francisco, Cal.

J. S. DICKERSON, a well-known Western journalist, has assumed the management of the various literary and pictorial departments of the Chicago Graphic.

THE propagation of polite learning and the diffusion of gayety and wit are objects which are to be promoted, it is hoped, in a new English weekly bearing the name of The Houyhnhnm: A Journal for Yahoos.

MR. REGINALD DE KOVEN, the composer of "Robin Hood" and other comic operas, who is now attracting so much attention in the musical world, has written his first set of independent waltzes, which The Ladies' Home Journal will publish in its next issue.

THE Atlantic Monthly for February contains interesting articles on "Books and Reading in Iceland," by William Edward Mead; on "The English Cambridge in Winter," by Albert Gillette Hyde; on "Shakespeare and Copyright," by Horace Davis, and a critical estimate of Thomas William Parsons, by Richard Hovey.

OUR enterprising contemporary, The Newsmen, begins its tenth year with a new dress and make-up in general. We presume that, whatever shape it may assume, it will always remain the same bright, newsy and fearless spokesman in behalf of the interests which it represents. The Newsmen is far and away the best journal for newsdealers published in this country.

THE late Mrs. Lamb's Magazine of American History has passed into the hands of the National History Company, of 132 Nassau Street, which publishes the National Magazine. Beginning with the February number the two journals will be united under the name of the older one (which is now in its twenty-ninth volume), with Gen. James Grant Wilson as editor. The magazine will be enlarged and the price reduced.

MR. FROUDE's remarkable inaugural address as Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford is given in the February Educational Review. There are also articles on "The Need of Universities in the United States," by Prof. Von Holst; on "The Relations of Literature and Philology," by Prof. O. F. Emerson; and on "Text-Books of Geography," by J. W. Redway; and the first of a series of articles on Educational Exhibits at World's Fairs is contributed by Richard Waterman, Jr.

The Critic's Boston correspondent hears an interesting story connected with Francis Parkman's work on "The Feudal Chiefs of Acadia," which began in the January number of the Atlantic. The story is that thirty years ago, at the first meeting of the gentlemen who started the magazine, Parkman was asked to write an article upon this subject. He replied that he could not find the time to do so, but that he would treat of it when he had the opportunity. Now, three decades after that proposition was made, the opportunity comes to him, and the long-postponed paper appears.

The School Review, published by Cornell University, has some excellent educational articles in its second (February) number. Among the subjects discussed are "The High School and its Enemies;" "Teaching Shakespeare," and "On Teaching English." In the "Book Department," conducted by Prof. C. H. Thurber, the latest educational works are criticised with the intention of guiding teachers in the purchase and selection of books. In the department of "Current Educational Literature," magazine articles bearing upon educational subjects are summarized and reviewed. The School Review, though published in connection with Cornell University, is in no sense an organ of that institution. Its object is to propagate sound educational thought and to report all important information relating to high schools and academies. In an early number there will be begun a series of articles by State superintendents on the various school systems of the United States and Canada.

A NEW weekly magazine has been started in the interests of sociology and nationalism. The first number of The Commonwealth is a fair sample of its aim, which is to comprise the essence of the important writings and news of the world on live topics, with contributions from leading writers. Much experience has proved that a much wider circulation of the ideas of the able authors on social science and general reform topics can be achieved by giving only the pith of their writings at low prices, as most people are too busy to read long articles, and many not yet fitted to digest them. "Wealth and Commonwealth," which forms the first number of this weekly library of sociology shows the significance of the word commonwealth and its appropriateness as a name for the new magazine. The Commonwealth will be issued by the Commonwealth Company, 28 Lafayette Place, N. Y. City, of which C. P. Somerby is manager.

A NEW monthly magazine, to be called The Philosophy of Nature, is to be published by A. G. Sullivan & Co., 47 and 49 Liberty Street, New York City. It will be under the editorial control of Mr. H. B. Philbrook, whose original works entitled "What and Where Is God?" and "The Work of Electricity in Nature" were noticed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of April 30, 1892. The object of the new periodical is "to continue and develop the work begun by these books by showing that in the animal and human kingdoms and spiritual sphere the law of inanimate nature is continued, and covers all the problems facing humanity in its relations to society and politics, and in regard to all its creed and methods of worship. Nothing will be allowed in its pages defamatory to established forms of religion or society, or what are really benefiting mankind by direct or indirect influence; but the editor will endeavor to show that the whole philosophy of nature includes all the facts of human experience, and that a knowledge of such fact is possible, and that by it every problem of worship, politics and society is explained." Continued articles will later be published in book form. Among the first subjects to be treated of is the Bible, which Mr. Philbrook claims "is one problem to be unravelled, merely by a deciphering of its figurative speech. That when so deciphered, it will be found a perfect work of priceless value to all classes."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GINN & Co. announce in their Ethical Series "Hume," by Dr. J. H. Hyslop, of Columbia College.

E. DARROW & Co., Rochester, N. Y., have in preparation a "History of the Plumb Family," by Henry B. Plumb.

We are pleased to hear that the friends in the book trade of the late John Ferguson raised a purse of over $1000 and presented it to his widow on the morning of Christmas Day.

JOHN KNOX MCAFEE, so long and favorably known as "Mr. Knox," has severed his connection with Leggat Bros., with whom he has been for 13 years, to take the position of travelling salesman for A. L. Burt.

RICHMOND, CROSCUP & Co.'s address is No. 9 East 17th Street. A figure dropped out of the address line of their advertisement in the Annual Summary Number, and so located them ten blocks lower down-town.

R. L. POLK & Co., Baltimore, Md., will publish the "Baltimore Directory" not later than March 1. It is the only directory embracing business, household and other data relating to Baltimore published in that city.

THE WHITING PAPER Co., Holyoke, Mass., has just issued a neat, interesting little booklet describing in detail how fine paper is made at their mills. The booklet is illustrated with interior and exterior views of their mills.

CHARLES H. SERGEL & Co. will publish at once Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis," in cloth and paper. They will publish shortly the second volume of the Latin-American Republics series, entitled "History of Chile," by Anson Uriel Hancock.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready Prebendary Row's "Reasons for Believing in Christianity" in paper covers for general circulation. He also announces a cheaper edition of "Character Building: talks to young men," by the Rev. Robert S. Barrett.

JOHN BROWN'S BIBLE, used by him while he was in jail at Harper's Ferry, and having many passages bearing on the abolition of slavery marked by his own hand, has recently been sold to F. G. Logan, of Chicago, a collector of mementos of the famous agitator.

THE CLEMENS PUBLISHING Co., San Francisco, Cal., announce "The Man from Mars," a romance in which the author, Hon. William Simpson, State Senator of California, deals with social problems, the labor question and the theories of Henry George; and also a new story by Joaquin Miller.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. announce a new edition of "Mark Rutherford" and other works, the authorship of which has been acknowledged by William Hale White. The issue will include Mr. White's translation of the "Ethics of Spinoza," which was published some years ago in Trübner's Philosophical Library.

R. FERGUSON, 1420 Pearl Street, Alameda, Cal., offers $5 for a copy of a reading-book entitled "Popular Lessons," which was once in use in the New York City primary public schools. The authors were, so Mr. Ferguson believes, Miss Edgeworth and Mrs. Barbauld. Here is a chance for some wide-awake dealer in old books.

THE ALBERTYPE CO., of New York, have just issued two albums, entitled "Select New York" and "Central Park." The first contains 100 prints, giving all the principal buildings in the city, with views of the bridge and points on the East and North Rivers. The Central Park album gives all the finest effects of New York's great breathing ground.

THE final volumes of Edwin L. Pierce's biography of Charles Sumner will appear in April, says a letter to the Critic from Boston. Nearly fifteen years have passed since the first volume came out. Sumner made Mr. Pierce one of his literary executors, but Mr. Pierce desired either Motley, Curtis, or R. H. Dana to write the biography. They all declined, and thus the work went to Pierce.

BURR BROTHERS, 114 Nassau St., New York, will issue a limited edition of 750 copies of an account of the life and works of Alexander Anderson, the first American engraver on wood, by Frederick M. Burr. It will contain three portraits of Anderson (who died in his ninety-fifth year) and numerous illustrations by himself. Many extracts will be given from a diary kept by him in 1795-8, during the cholera visitation.

THE ANNA C. REIFSNIDER CO., St. Louis, will shortly publish "How She Earned It, or, $25,000 in eleven years." As the name implies it is the story of a woman thrown on her own resources, who through pluck and perseverance attained success. The writer, who records her own experiences, was one of the first woman stenographers in the West, and her example did much to open this field of work to women. She is now at the head of the publishing firm which brings out her book.

GEORGE P. HUMPHREY will have ready by March first a reprint of "A History of the Indian Wars with the First Settlers of the United States to the Commencement of the Late War," with an appendix, not before added to this history, containing interesting accounts of the battles fought by Gen. Andrew Jackson. This mysterious book was first reprinted in 1828. It is by Rev. Daniel Clark Sanders, then president of the University of Vermont, who published it anonymously. It was attacked in an acrimonious critique, which had such an effect on Mr. Sanders or the publishers that the book was suppressed and is almost unknown to bibliographers. This early reprint shared the fate of the original. Two hundred signed and numbered copies will be printed with fac-similes of the two curious old plates.

THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE COMPANY makes the following announcement: "Two years ago the American Church History Society determined to issue a series of denominational histories which would together comprise an American Church History Series. It selected as its general editorial committee the following scholars: Philip Schaff, D.D., Bishop H. C. Potter, Geo. B. Fisher, D.D., Bishop John F. Hurst, E. J. Wolf, D.D., Henry C. Vedder, M.A., and Samuel M. Jackson, LL.D. The editorial committee has proceeded with the utmost care, and after two years of labor is able to announce the following: The whole work is to embrace ten octavo volumes of from 400 to 500 pages each; one volume being devoted to each of the largest and oldest communions of America; two volumes to the smaller bodies, and one to contain a compendious history of American Christianity as a whole, setting forth its relations to Europe, its distinctive features, especially the separation of Church and State, and its common institutions and operations."

FOREIGN NOTES.

ELLIOT STOCK has nearly ready the seventh volume of "Book Prices Current," a work without which no antiquarian bookseller can do business.

J. C. NIMMO has in preparation a "Study of Walt Whitman," by J. Addington Symonds, in which he will treat of Whitman as the thinker and writer rather than the man. The volume will contain a portrait and other illustrations.

It is reported that Thomas Hardy's great novel, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," published by Harper & Brothers, has been translated into Russian and is being issued as a serial in the Russkaia Mysl (Russian Thought). The translation is by Mile. Vera Spassky.

It is rumored that the story "Weeds," published anonymously recently by J. W. Arrow-smith, of Bristol, is by no less a personage than Jerome K. Jerome. This, if true, is a very interesting fact, as the story is entirely unlike anything that has yet appeared from his pen.

A. & C. BLACK will shortly publish a new edition of J. Addington Symonds' "Studies of Greek Poets," in two volumes. The two series, which are now out of circulation, will be recombined in chronological order, and a chapter on Herondas, with English versions of the Mimiambi, will be added.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & Co. have just issued a new edition, in two volumes, of "Parliamentary Government in England: its origin, development, and practical operation," by the late Alphæus Todd, Librarian of Parliament for the Dominion of Canada. The work has been abridged and revised by Spencer Walpole.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce among their issues for this month a new volume by the author of "Marius the Epicurean," entitled "Plato and Platonism." It will be uniform with the last American edition of Mr. Pater's books. In the department of fiction, besides Marion Crawford's "The Children of the King," they will issue "A Mere Cipher," by Miss Mary Dickens, whose first novel, "Cross Currents," attracted considerable attention a year or two ago; "The Marplot," by Sidney Lysaght; and "The Story of John Trevennick," by Walter Rhoades.

THE trade carried on in Edinburgh in forged manuscripts appears to have been much more extensive than was at first supposed. It is stated that the British Museum experts, after making an examination of 202 manuscripts which were bought by Mr. Kennedy, of New York, and presented by him to the Lenox Library, report that only one out of the entire lot is genuine. They also say that the "Early Historical" documents are absurd writings, alleged to be of various periods, but all being upon paper of the same make.

J. M. VALOIS, 1626 Rue Notre Dame, Montreal, has in press a second edition of "Le Répertoire National," a collection of Canadian literature from 1734 to 1848, compiled by J. Huston, with an introduction by Judge Routhier. The work makes four volumes, printed on selected paper from new type. This publisher also has just ready the second edition of the "Journal des Jésuites," by the Abbé Laverdière and Casgrain, which embraces a history of this organization in Canada from the year 1645 to 1755. The first edition was almost wholly destroyed by fire. The present edition has been reduced in price and is necessarily limited.

HOLBEIN'S "Dance of Death" is more often talked about than known, as good editions are scarce. An opportunity now presents itself to those who would possess this rare old work of obtaining a reproduction of the designs in Douce's edition of 1833, edited by Mr. Austin Dobson, who has also furnished a valuable introductory note. The book is most daintily got up, like all the productions of the Chiswick Press, and is issued in two limited editions of 100 numbered and 500 ordinary copies. The title-page of the original work is reproduced and is as follows: "Les Simulachres et Historiées Faces de la Mort, avant elegamment pourtraictes, que artificiellement imaginées. A Lyon. Soubz L'escu de Coloigne. M.D. xxxviii." All that is necessary to know of the history of the book will be found in Mr Dobson's note. Macmillan & Co. are the agents for the book in this country.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The John H. Williams Co. has been incorporated for printing and publishing books and pamphlets, etc., by John Howell Williams, Harry Taylor Poor, William Ross Wilson, James McEvoy and Joseph Ramsey Barry. Capital stock, $6000.

BAY SHORE, N. Y.—George B. Ketcham has opened a book and stationery store at this place.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—It is reported that the book-store of F. P. Rogers has been closed by the sheriff by virtue of several executions placed in his hands. The liabilities are estimated at $3000 and the assets at $500.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.—T. J. Smith has opened a book-store.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—Paul Trouche has started a book and stationery business in this city.

CINCINNATI, O.—The John Church Company, music-dealers and manufacturers and sheet music publishers, has been incorporated with the capital stock increased to $1,250,000.

DANVILLE, ILL.—Charles Smith has succeeded to the book business of George Kamper.

DENVER, COLO.—William H. Kistler, Thomas A. Hayes and Edwin A. Kistler have filed articles incorporating the W. H. Kistler Stationery Co., with a capital stock of $50,000.

DES MOINES, IA.—W. J. Hall has opened a new book and stationery store here.

DUBOIS, PA.—William McCloskey has opened a stationery store in this city. He will also keep a full line of school supplies.

GENOA, ILL.—Ed. Lane has succeeded to the book business of Mr. Stott.

HARRISBURG, PA.—R. V. Fairchild has opened a book and stationery store here.

HELENA, MONT.—The Helena Book and Stationery Co., composed of Peter Winne, Fred. Gamer and E. N. Wood, have bought the business of the Journal Publishing Co., and will do a general book and stationery business at 111 Main Street.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—H. E. Creamer has opened a book and stationery store.

LYONS, MICH.—L. E. Morse has succeeded W. I. Barnard in the book and stationery business.

MANCHESTER, CONN.—The Manchester News Co. has recently been established here.

NEW BERNE, N. Y.—C. Disoway & Bro. is the name of a new firm of booksellers.

NEW YORK CITY.—James Pott & Co. are now in their new quarters at 114 Fifth Ave.

NEW YORK CITY.—Brentano's, unable to obtain an extension of their lease until May, have removed their retail business from 124 Fifth Avenue to their temporary quarters at 31 Union Square. It speaks well for the generalship of this house that the transfer of their immense stock was made in about two and one-half days, business continuing without a break at both ends to the last moment. They expect to be in their new quarters on Union Square and 16th Street the first week in May.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Ladies' Home Journal will remove its editorial and art departments to the new Metropolitan Building, corner of Madison Avenue and Twenty-third Street, about the first of May.

NEW YORK CITY.—Rand, McNally & Co. have removed their offices from 323 Broadway to the new building at 61 East 9th Street, near Broadway, where they have about twice as much room as at the old place and are nearer the important part of the book trade.

ROCHESTER, IND.—A. T. Bitters has succeeded R. C. Wallace, bookseller and stationer.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The Graham Book and Stationery Company, St. Joseph, Mo., has made an assignment; liabilities, $9500; nominal assets, $12,000.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—The book and stationery business of John M. Dean & Co. has passed into the hands of Otto, Chatham & Dean. Messrs. Otto and Chatham were associated with the late Mr. Dean during the most successful years of his business, and, with increased capital, will no doubt hold the business to the same high standard. Mrs. Dean will retain her interest in the business.

PICK-UPS.

REALISM IMPRACTICABLE.—Egbert Easonice: Do you know society has nevah been wepwesented in novels as it weally is? Thanis Bight: Certainly not. A novel must be bright enough to be entertaining before it will succeed.—Puck.

MANY GREAT VOYAGERS.—Teacher: Now, although it isn't in your lesson, can any boy think of some other who, like the great Magellan, went around the world? Bright Pupil (promptly): George Francis Train.—Puck.

By PAUL BOURGET,

Author of "Pastels of Men," etc. Large
12mo, 450 pages, with cover in five colors, 50 cents; cloth, $1.25.

THE ONLY AUTHORIZED AMERICAN EDITION.

This great novel, so long expected, is now ready. It is having an enormous success in Paris, and will be equally popular in America.

The New York Herald says: "'Cosmopolis' will have an immense success outside of its high literary value. It is amusing, interesting and painful. The whole thesis will bring on a hot polemical discussion. Every person wanting to know more of the modern way of deciding questions of morality ought to be impressed by a perusal of 'Cosmopolis.'"

"Cosmopolis" is No. 19 of Sergel's International Library, the most excellent series of novels now published.

The "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," begun as a monthly supplement to The Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly, in an enlarged form, is now issued as an annual volume.

The volumes, beginning with that for 1890, contain a complete index in one alphabet to the magazine articles for the year, arranged on the plan of the original Poole volumes, with a direct reference to the date of issue. It indexes ninety-nine of the leading magazines (printed in the English language) of the United States and England.

The new volume, covering 1892, is planned to contain also an extension of the material of the "A. L. A. Index," so that it will be a first supplement to that important work.

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

The Grand Chaco.

By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN, author of "The Weathercock," "The Dingo Boys," "In the Wilds of New Mexico," etc. Profusely illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.50.

"We do not know whether Mr. Fenn has ever gone sporting or botanizing up a tropical river, but he certainly writes as if he had. It would not, indeed, be easy to find a more vivid and effective piece of local coloring. . . . Mr. Fenn's tale is just what such a story should be. There is no sentimentality and no bloodshed; and these two things are more and more the prevailing faults of literature."—The Spectator.

Stories and Sketches.

By GRACE GREENWOOD, author of "My Tour in Europe," "Queen Victoria: Her Girlhood and Womanhood," etc. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

Time appears to give but added force and brilliancy to Grace Greenwood's touch. This collection of stories and sketches abounds with examples of true humor, pathos, strength and imagination, which have long been identified with this brilliant woman's name. No one will pick up the book to lay it down with a cursory glance, and, once read, many lines and scenes will linger persistently in the memory.

PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED:

Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

A Study of his Life and Work. By ARTHUR WAUGH, B.A. Oxon. With portraits and 21 illustrations from photographs specially taken for this work. One vol., octavo, cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, $3.00. (Second edition.)

"Good taste, which means good workmanship, is characteristic of this volume; the author has so carefully wedded fact and allusion that the result is a striking and lifelike portrait. As an essay in criticism, Mr. Waugh's work is thoughtful, discriminating, sympathetic."—Boston Times.
"The entire volume deserves to be studied carefully. It is the ripe judgment of a scholar which is expressed in these pages, and the views of a thoroughly sane critic. A more careful study of the Laureate's work has not, we think, appeared."—New York Tribune.

A Republic Without a President.

By HERBERT D. WARD, author of "The Master of the Magicians," "The New Senior at Andover," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"Herbert Ward's capital little story, 'A Republic Without a President,' with others as good, is published in a volume of more than ordinary interest. The title story illustrates the unwisely defenceless condition of our harbors and coasts."—New York Recorder.

My Friend Pasquale.

By J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "Who Is the Man?" "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"Real engrossing bits of fiction, with most thrilling experiences which exercise not only the imagination of the inspired chronicler, but the fancy of the peruser."—American Hebrew.
"Neither du Boisgobyn or Gaboriau has ever conceived such an idea as 'My Friend Pasquale.' 'The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' pales before it. . . . The author has undoubtedly the power of depicting 'strong situations' in clear colors."—Toronto Week.

A Battle and a Boy.

By BLANCHE WILLIS HOWARD, author of "Guenn," "The Open Door," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"A very charming story of a Tyrolean peasant boy whose first acquaintance we make at the child-market, where he has gone to sell himself for a year's time. . . . The author has never done better, tenderer work; work fuller of simple life, wholesome fun, delicate sensitiveness."—Providence Journal.

Heinrich Heine.

The Family Life of Heinrich Heine.

One hundred and twenty-two Family Letters of the Poet, hitherto unpublished, from his college days to his death. By his nephew, Baron LUDWIG VON EMDEN. From the German by Charles de Kay. With four portraits. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Jules Michelet.

On the Highways of Europe.

By JULES MICHELET. Translated from the French by Mary J. Serano. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50.

To any one who is acquainted with the writings of M. Michelet it is unnecessary to say that the present volume is most captivating in style and matter. It is a book that every traveller will read to refresh his memory, and every stay-at-home will read because it is the next best thing to a tour abroad.

Henry W. Lucy.

A Diary of the Salisbury Parliament, 1886-1892.

By HENRY W. LUCY, author of "The Disraeli Parliament (1874-1880)," "The Gladstone Parliament (1880-1885)." With many humorous illustrations by Harry Furniss and a complete index. 8vo, extra cloth, gilt top, pp. xii, 530, $5 00.

In common with its predecessors by the same author the present volume has a vivacity in its sketches of political amenities and hostilities which gives to the book a charm always wanting in a mere chronicle of facts and figures. The illustrations by Mr. Furniss are in his usual apt and vigorous style.

G. Manville Fenn.

Nurse Elisia.

A Novel. By G. MANVILLE FENN, author of "Commodore Junk," etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, extra cloth, $1.00.

John Seymour Wood.

An Old Beau, and Other Stories.

By JOHN SEYMOUR WOOD, author of "Gramercy Park," "A Daughter of Venice," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Mr. Wood, although one of the youngest of American writers of fiction, has already won flattering recognition. Writing as he does of the scenes and subjects of to-day, his stories have a contemporaneous interest that is very attractive.

Grant Allen.

Blood Royal.

A Novel. By GRANT ALLEN, author of "In All Shades," "This Mortal Coil," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 50 cents. Cassell's Sunshine Series.

Mr. Grant Allen is one of the most popular of contemporary English novelists. "Blood Royal" is regarded by the author as his best effort.

A Blot of Ink.

A Novel. Translated from the French of RENÉ BAZIN by "Q" and Paul M. Francke. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 50 cents. Cassell's Sunshine Series.

"Q" might have written this story himself, so much does it possess of his own dashing style.

At the Threshold.

A Novelette. By LAURA DEARBORN. 16mo, unique cloth binding, 50 cents. The Unknown Library.

A poetic story of intellectual exaltation, strong in imagery, bold in subject and masterly in treatment. Philosophy, the arts, the sciences, the relations between the sexes and kindred subjects are treated from an after-death standpoint, with marvellous speculation and felicity; while, through all, a broad human love pervades the book, which enthralles alike the casual novelist or the student of social and domestic problems.

Gentleman Upcott's Daughter.

One of the brightest stories in this brilliant series.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. have in press a volume of essays by Emile Zola, entitled "The Experimental Novel, and other essays," and a volume of travels from the French of Jules Michelet, "Highways of Europe."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready several attractive works of fiction, including "A Golden Wedding, and other tales," by Ruth McEnery Stuart; William Black's new novel, "Wolfenberg;" "From One Generation to Another," by Henry Seton Merriman; "Catherine," by Frances M. Peard; and "Time's Revenges," by David Christie Murray. Mrs. Isa Carrington Cabell's book of out-door sketches, entitled "Seen from the Saddle," is also just ready in Harper's Black and White Series. They have also nearly ready "The World of Chance," by W. D. Howells;

"White Birches," by Annie Elliot; "Katharine North," by Maria Louise Pool; the fourth edition of Campbell's "The Puritans in Holland, England and America;" and the second volume of Green's "Short History of the English People."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & COMPANY will publish early in March Mark Twain's new story of the "£1,000,000 Bank-Note," together with several other stories by the same author which have never before appeared in book form. They include: "Mental Telegraphy," "Playing Courier," "A Letter to Queen Victoria," "A Cure for the B ues," "About Ships," "The German Chicago," "A Majestic Literary Fossil" and "The Enemy Conquered." They also announce for the same date a new dollar edition of "Tenting on the Plains," by Elizabeth B. Custer, printed from new plates, with the original illustrations, and bound in a handsome and appropriate cover. They will also publish early next month "One Hundred Desserts," by Filippini. This is the third volume of their Handy Culinary Series, and contains one hundred recipes, all of which have been tested by Mr. Filippini during twenty-five years' experience with Delmonico's.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a book entitled "Tropical America," by Isaac N. Ford, of the New York Tribune, in which, as the result of nine months' sojourn in South America, he presents an extensive study of the social, political and commercial conditions of the people; "The People's Money," by Col. W. L. Trenholm, comptroller of the currency under President Cleveland, who presents in a popular, non-technical style the principles which ought to control in financial legislation, and the natural laws which govern the operations of trade and exchange; "Stories of a Western Town," a new collection of Octave Thanet's dramatic and humorous sketches of character and incident; and "Calvinism: Pure and Mixed; a Defence," by Dr. William G. T. Shedd, the purpose of which is to "define and defend the tenets of Calvinism in their original purity and self-consistence, as distinguished from proposed modifications of them for the purpose of an alleged improvement."

ROBERTS BROS. will publish on February 15 the first instalment in their new edition of the novels of Susan Edmonstone Ferrier. "Marriage," in two volumes, which is the first novel to be issued, will be followed in March by "The Inheritance" and in April by "Destiny." Each novel will be issued in two volumes, with frontispieces from designs by F. T. Merrill, and in size and binding will be uniform with the same firm's recent edition of Jane Austen's novels. In evanescent humor and clever character-drawing Miss Ferrier's writings have much in common with Jane Austen's, and her stories are as lifelike pictures of Scotch life in the early days of the century as Miss Austen's are of English life at the same period. Other books to be issued simultaneously with "Marriage" are: "The Convent Life of George Sand," translated by Maria E. Mackaye from Mme. Dudevant's "L'Histoire de Ma Vie;" "In the Bundle of Time," a volume of short stories by Arlo Bates, intended as a companion to his "Book o' Nine Tales;" "Keep Your Mouth Shut," an excellent treatise by Dr. F. A. A. Smith on the evils of mouth-breathing; and an illustrated school edition of Edward Everett Hale's classic, "The Man Without a Country." Digitized by Google

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

 Sizes are designated as follows: P. (folio, over 30 centimeters high); (O. 4to, under 30 cm.); O. (8vo, 25 cm.); D. (16mo, 20 cm.); S. (16mo, 17½ cm.); T. (8mo, 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo, 12½ cm.); Ps. (48mo, 10 cm.). Sq., oblong, designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Prepared for two classes of students: 1. Those who are beginners in the language and therefore need numerous aids, and, 2. Those who are already somewhat advanced in the study, but need easy texts for rapid reading or for sight translation. To meet the wants of the first class the vocabulary has been made so full that a student needs but the merest outlines of German accidence before beginning to read the stories. Prefaced with a brief biographical sketch.

Bayer, K. v., ["Robert Byr," pseud.] The cipher despatch; from the German, by Elise L. Lathrop. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1893. c. '92. 2+808 p. il. D. (Worthington's international lib.) cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c. The political secrets of a cipher despatch in the possession of one Karst, in the German diplomatic service, are suddenly disclosed; circumstantial evidence pointing to Karst, he is suspected of treachery. The action of the German embassy relative to an unpleasant government affair is brought out in a story of unfulfilled political aspirations and disappointed love.

Bazin, René. A blot of ink; from the French, by Arthur T. Quiller Couch ("Q") and Paul M. Francke. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1893. c. '92. 2+305 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 183.) cl., 75 c; pap., 50 c.

A young man studying law under his uncle's protection is desirous of remaining in Paris and persuades his uncle that he takes great interest in Roman antiquities, which he studies up at the National Library. One day while writing out his order for books his pen slips and rolls into an "Early Text" in the hands of an irate student of numismatics. Hoping to persuade this man by flattery to desist from prosecuting him before the library authorities, our hero calls upon him and meets his daughter. True love does not run smooth at first. The book shows literary and artistic life in Paris.

Bible. New Testament. The Gospel of Matthew in Greek; ed. by Alex. Kerr and Herbert Cushing Tolman. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 25+116 p. D. cl., $1.

The aim of the editors of this New Testament series is to emphasize above all the individuality of the separate writers; this is done by indicating by bold type in the text the words which Matthew alone of the New Testament writers employs; by a list of passages peculiar to Matthew; by an estimate of the occurrences of every word; by a summary of prominent examples of Hebraism. After the Greek text of the Gospel of Matthew there are historical and geographical indexes and a vocabulary.

Black, W: Wolfenberg: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. '92. 6+298 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

The oriental steamer, Orotania, making the round trip from England to the Grecian Isles and returning, stopping on the way at many interesting places, is the scene. Americans and English people make up the characters, the principal ones being Mrs. Dumaresq and her daughter Amelia, from Florida, having in their train Wolfenberg, a celebrated American artist. Between Amelia and Wolfenberg, who is unhappily married, a strong platonic affection exists, which is destroyed by Paul Hitrovo, a young Russian adventurer, who wins Amelia's heart. This is but an outline of a story embracing several pathetic and original character studies and a fresh love-tale.

Bowen, H: Courthope. Froebel, and education by self-activity. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92. 8+209 p. D. (The great educators ser.) cl., $1.

After many years' study of Froebel's principles and methods, Prof. Bowen has concluded that his is the only system in which the details of actual practice are the real outcome of sound psychological principles, and in their application are continuously governed by those principles. In this work he has given a complete statement of Froebel's principles and methods as they refer to physical, intellectual and ethical training, and a brief sketch of his life. At the end of the book there are two short bibliographies—one a chronological list of Froebel's writings (5 p.), the other a list of "Some books on Froebel likely to be of use to students" (3 p.).

- Fenn, G. Manville. The Grand Chaco. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 8-386 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. A story of adventure in South American forests, along the banks of the Grand Chaco and its tributary streams. An English naturalist seeking rare orchids, two lads of fifteen or sixteen and a veteran guide are the characters whose varied and perilous adventures make up a story of hairbreadth escapes from dangers by land and water.
- Fenn, G. Manville. Nurse Elisia. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 4+313 p. D. cl., $1. The Elthornes are the county family of Lincolnshire. The squire falls with his horse and injures his spine. His son, a surgeon in a London hospital, treats the case, sends for advice, and the consulting surgeon sends "Nurse Elisia" from the hospital. Her arrival leads to many misunderstandings. She throws light upon the character of the daughter's suitor and endears herself to her impulsive patient. The young surgeon declares his love and the end is a great surprise.

Fewkes, J. Walter, ed. A journal of American ethnology and archaeology. V. 3. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892 [1893.] 4+144 p. map, O. pap., $2.50.

Contents: An outline of the documentary history of the Zuni tribe, by A. F. Bandler; Somatological observations on Indians of the southwest, by Dr. Herman F. C. Ten Cate. Both these contributors were of the Hemenway Southwestern Archaeological Expedition.

Fezandíe, Hector. The cannibal and the skeleton: a shadow pantomime. Phil., The Penn Pub. Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 2-18 p. (Keystone ed. of popular plays.) pap., 15 c.

Field, H. M., D.D. The story of the Atlantic telegraph. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92. 8+415 p. por. il. O. cl., $1.50.

The Rev. Henry M. Field tells the story of the Atlantic cable, from its inception in 1854, when the idea first presented itself to his brother Cyrus W. Field, a merchant of New York, who had retired from business, that the telegraph might be made to span the Atlantic Ocean, until after twelve years of unceasing toil and heroic patience the miracle was at length wrought, and the two continents were brought into speaking distance of each other. This is a new edition, revised and entirely rewritten, of a work first published in 1886.

Gardiner, Mrs. H. C. The Reverend Didymus Ego, M.D., and other stories. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1892 [1893.] 2+418 p. D. cl., 90 c.

Contents: The Reverend Didymus Ego, M.D.; Miss Phillissa's letters: Natural history; "Provoking one another to love and good works;" "A patch on the knee and gloves on;" "Sympathy; Glimpses of our lake region.

Grinnell, G. Bird. Blackfoot lodge tales: the story of a prairie people. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1892 [1893.] c. 12+310 p. D. cl., $1.75.

In this volume, Mr. Grinnell treats of another race of Indians, the Blackfoot, in the same manner as he did the Pawnee in "Pawnee hero stories." These stories were told to him by the Indians themselves, and are given in the words of the original narrators as nearly as it is possible to render those words into the simplest every-day English. They are Indians' stories, pictures of Indian life drawn by Indian artists and showing this life from the Indian's point of view; they tell of the history, customs and oral literature of the tribe. The author believes they depict the true character of the Indian as it is impossible for a white man to depict it.

Hyde, W. T. C. How do you spell it? or words as they look: a book for busy people; with an appendix defining many commercial and business terms in every-day use. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 2-342 p. D. cl., $1.

A novel method of fixing upon the vision the correct spelling of troublesome words. The alphabetical list which the book embraces contains practically all of the words, including derivatives in general use and also some of the derivatives which have troublesome primitives; in this list the letters which are ordinarily transposed, misplaced, omitted or otherwise misused are printed in bold-faced type, thus emphasizing to the eye the picture of the word as correctly spelled. The orthography is Webster's. The work claims to contain the largest compilation of homophonous words (those alike in sound but different in spelling) ever published. These words are first yoked together in the alphabet with their different meanings given—the only cases in which meanings are given—and then repeated separately.

Jones, Jenkin Lloyd. The cause of the toiler: a labor day sermon. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1892 [1893.] 32 p. T. (Unity lib., no. 20.) pap., 10 c.

Kirkland, Miss E. S. A short history of English literature for young people. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 398 p. pors. D. cl., $1.50.

A companion volume to the "Short history of France" and "Short history of England," by the same writer, with which it forms a series. Gives the leading facts, with accounts of their works, of the writers of England, from Cædmon and the author of "Beowulf" down to Tennyson. Miss Kirkland has thought it best not to go deeply into detail, as "experience teaches us that young people remember more when only a little is given."

Contents: Washington as he was—in camp, salon and stable: Worthy to come next (a story of Lincoln); Three great women (reminiscences of George Eliot, Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Lucretia Mott); How we stormed Pike's Peak before the railway; How we stormed the Rigi in spite of the railway; Two old heads: The chevalier; The vindication of Itala Donati; Great burial-places and great graves in London; The member from Carlow (a sketch of the Hon. Arthur McMurrough Kavanagh); A peculiar city; Two sermons on one text, etc., etc.

MacKie, C. Paul. The last voyages of the Admiral of the Ocean Sea, as related by himself and his companions. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892 [1893.] 2-518 p. D. cl., $1.75.

It is the fourteen years in Columbus' life which succeeded the discovery that are the subject of this narrative, the material for which was drawn from the writings of Columbus and some of his associates as collected by Navarrete and scattered through the history of Las Casas, the translations being made direct from the originals. The work is an effort to give a true estimate of Columbus' character and to refute the aspersions of his calumniators, who ascribed to him ignoble aims and motives.

*Mahan, A. T. The influence of sea power upon the French Revolution and Empire. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1893. 2 v., 847 p. 8°, maps, plans, cl., $6.

Maple, W. H. No beginning; or, the fundamental fallacy: a common-sense exposure of the error in the reasoning upon which is based the belief in a creation of the first cause of things. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 162 p. D. cl., $1.

Merriman, H: Seton. From one generation to another. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. '92. 4+256 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A strong story of the power of pre-natal influence. This is illustrated by a well-developed plot, in which a mother's selfish passion so affects her unborn child as to influence that child's life and make him the unconscious avenger of a wrong he never knew. This central idea, though ever present, does not overshadow a pleasant and wholesome love-story. The scene is laid alternately in England and India. By the author of "The slave of the lamp."

Michelet, Jules. On the highways of Europe; [from the French] by Mary J. Serano. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1898 c. 6+441 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Accounts of journeys made by Michelet in England in 1882; in Flanders and Holland (1887-40) and in Switzerland, Lombardy and Tyrol (1885). They are clever, unconventional estimates of the people, the customs, politics, etc., of the countries visited over fifty years ago.

Murray, D. Christie. Time's revenges: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1892 [1893.] c. 2+392 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story of a young Englishman—a bailiff on a nobleman's estate—who is unjustly accused of attempted murder, and convicted, though innocent, and sent to the colonies for seven years. After serving his sentence, he buys a home in Tasmania, and in twenty years' time is many times a millionaire. The plot is involved, but most skillfully worked out, and is rich in incidents and surprises. Tom Barton, the convict, continues throughout to be the hero, his faithful wife being admirably depicted. The story, however, has its climax in the love of Tom's son for the daughter of the man who had innocently branded him a convict.

*New York. Civil procedure reports; cont. cases under the code of civil procedure and the general civil practice; rep. with notes by H. Huffman Browne; with a reference to the sections of the code of civil procedure construed or cited in the opinions contained in the following reports [etc.]: N. Y. reports, v. 129-183; Hun's reports, v. 62-64; Daly's reports, v. 16, [etc.] V. 22. N. Y., S. S. Peloubet, 1892. c. 41+460 p. O. shp., $4.

*New York. Court of appeals. Reports of cases, at general term, not reported in the official series, from June, 1889, with notes by W. H. Silvernail. V. 4. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1893. c. 58+680 p. O. shp., $3.50.

Paine, T. Life of Thomas Paine, by the Editor of The National; with preface, notes, and portraits of the most celebrated of Mr. Paine's friends by P. Eckler. N. Y., P. Eckler, 35 Fulton st., [1893.] 10+88 p. por. il. O. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

A concise and impartial history of the life of Thomas Paine; it aims to show his real character and to correct many errors and conceptions concerning him; he was one of the chief instigators and promoters of the American Revolution, and also one of the most earnest and zealous workers in the brave struggle of the colonies; he was in his whole career an advocate of both political and religious liberty.

Peard, Frances M. Catherine: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. '92. 3+224 p. D. cl., $1.

The action turns upon the behavior of two young men who both seek the hand of Catherine Armstrong, after her beautiful face has been marred by a fall from a horse. The time is in the early years of the present century, the battle of Waterloo figuring in the story. The scene is a small English village.

Perry, Rev. G. G. Trying times: two tales from church history, Victor and Hilaria: a tale of the great persecution, by Rev. G. G. Perry. [Also] The cross in the heart, by T. Taylor. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. 6-886 p. il. D. cl., 80 c.

Pitman, I. Isaac Pitman's complete phonographic instructor; designed for class or self-instruction. N. Y., I. Pitman & Sons, 1893. c. 9+252 p. S. cl., $1.50.

A comprehensive text-book of the Pitman system of shorthand, beginning with the primitive signs and carrying the student by easy steps to a thorough knowledge of phonography. It is intended for individual or class instruction; contains exercises in law reporting, correspondence and general work, illustrated by plates in engraved phonography; and gives a list of "law and general phrases," "Latin and French quotations" and a chapter of "Practical hints in legal work."

Rathborne, St. George. The man from Wall St.: a novel. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 2-324 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 29.) pap., 50 c.

"The man from Wall Street" is an American stock-broker who has sensational adventures in Venice, Trinidad and Seville. The story, which has an American heroine and a sufficiency of villainous or scheming foreigners, comes to an orthodox conclusion, the final scene being the Plaza de los Toros, Seville, where the man from Wall Street wins honor in a bull-fight.

Reeve, C. H. Preventive legislation in relation to crime. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 95-106 p. O. (Publications of the Society, no. 68.) pap., 15 c.

Crime, the writer believes, can only be diminished and controlled by removing the causes which lead to it, and not simply by punishing the criminal. Prolific sources of crime, he says further, are class legislation, creating inequality in social and political conditions and unrestricted and unrestrained marriages. For the public safety laws should be made regarding the latter, making it a crime for the diseased, the poor, the criminal and the insane to marry or to become parents, either with or without the marriage ceremony.

Robinson, Ja. Harvey. Sidgwick's "Elements of politics." Phil., American Academy of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 88-94 p. O. (Publications of the Society, no. 67.) pap., 15 c.

A criticism of Prof. Sidgwick's work, published in this country in September, 1891, by Macmillan & Co. The weakness of the book is found to be in a "want of acquaintance with everything beyond England and the United States," and the suggestion is made that the book "might therefore be more correctly entitled 'The elements of English and American politics.' Literature in this field can only be corrected by thorough and intimate knowledge of other systems than our own."

Fifteen great musical composers are the subjects of as many papers. They are: Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, Bach, Handel, Gluck, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Schubert, Liszt, Rossini, Schumann, Donizetti, Meyerbeer and Wagner. Each paper is followed by a synopsis of the subject's life and a list of his works. These bibliographies are entirely of musical works, and are full and exact, having been taken from James D. Brown's "Dictionary of musicians."

School (The) of American history and institutions. Phil., University of Pennsylvania Press, 1892 [1893.] 15 p. O. (University of Pennsylvania, circular of information, 1892-1893, no. 1.) pap., n. p.

These pages outline, 1. The undergraduate course in American history, with the requirements for admission, the arrangements of studies, the degrees, fees and scholarship. 2. The graduate courses in American history and the library facilities. 3. Graduate course in closely related subjects: general history, economics, Roman law, philosophy, ethics and psychology. 4. The requirements, masters, degrees and the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Scott, Sir Walter. Waverley novels. [New Dryburgh ed.] In 25 v. V. 4, Rob. Roy. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 428 p. il. O. cl., $1.25.

Shaw, W. Hudson. Introductory lectures on the Oxford reformers. Colet, Erasmus and More, delivered in Philadelphia in 1893 under the auspices of the American Soc. for the Extension of University Teaching. Phil., American Soc. for the Extension of University Teaching, 1893. c. 83 p. O. pap., 50 c.

The successive stages of the great Protestant Reformation are faithfully portrayed in connection with the character sketches of the three men who are the best types of their respective times. "Colet struck the key-note of a mode of religious thought as strongly in contrast with that of the later Reformation as that of Catholicism itself." In Erasmus is summed up the classical revival of Germany; while in Sir Thomas More we find the third of the great Oxford reformers who, in a real sense, prepared the way for Luther; and though believing in methods very different from his, were after all the precursors of the Reformation.

Simmons, H. M. The unending Genesis; or, creation ever present. 3d thousand. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1893. c. '92. 4-111 p. sq. S. (Unity lib., no. 19.) pap., 25 c.

Stapleton, Patience. My Jean. Chic., Morrell, Higgins & Co., 1893. c. 5-332 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 32.) pap., 50 c.

Jane Johnson, the supposed orphan of a dissolute miner, finally becomes the adopted daughter of a man who "strikes" silver. The scene is in Colorado. The novel is of romantic and sensational interest.

Stimson, F. J. ["J. S. of Dale," pseud.] In the three zones. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 2+204 p. D. cl., $1.

Under this title the author of "Guernsey" has embraced three stories, the scenes of which are laid in three zones. They are called "Dr. Materialismus: his hypothesis worked out," "An Alabama courtship: its simplicities and its complexities," "Los Casaqueños," being the life-history of Don Sebastian, Marques del Torre and of Dolores, his wife, Condesa de Luna.

*Stokes, Whitley. Life and speeches of Sir Henry Maine. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1892 [1893.] 8°, cl., $3.50.

Stuart, Ruth McEnery. A golden wedding; and other tales. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 4+366 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Stories of southern life that are both pathetic and humorous. They are entitled: A golden wedding; Lamentations of Jeremiah Johnson; Uncle Mingo's "speculations"; The Widder Johnsing; Christmas gifts; "Blink"; Jessekiah Brown a courtship; Crazy Abe; Queen Anne; Camelia Riccardo; The woman's exchange of Simpkinsville; "Oh, shoutin's mighty sweet"; "Lucindy."

Thwaites, Reuben Gold. Our cycling tour in England, from Canterbury to Dartmoor forest and back by way of Bath, Oxford and the Thames Valley. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 6-315 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Author is secretary of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and author of "Historic waterways," a description of a canoe trip through Wisconsin, and "The story of Wisconsin," etc. Mr. Thwaites and his wife visited England in the spring of 1891, and went over the route indicated in the title on bicycles. They had no exciting adventures, but came so closely in touch with English rural life that they were able to give a truer and more perfect picture of it than the superficial traveller; the descriptions of scenery and famous old buildings are full of interest.

Van Ornum, W. H. Why government at all? a philosophical examination of the principles of human government. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1892 [1893.] 3-368 p. D. (Library of progress, no. 5.) hf. rus., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

The author begins with an examination of the character and functions of government, and the various theories of Henry George, Bellamy, Karl Marx and Froudhon; his conclusions are that all governments—popular or otherwise—have been and are failures: that the laws resulting from them have oppressed and injured man; his remedy is to abolish all law and government, not to punish crime, the only marriage to be natural selection, and the world and its riches to be all men's alike.

Watson, W. Poems. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 7+280 p. D. cl., $1.25; large-pap. ed., $3.50.

A high order of talent is recognizable in this volume of the collected poems of a young English poet. In addition to Mr. Watson's latest poems it contains all the poems included in the volume entitled "The Prince's quest, and other tales," a small edition of which was published in 1884; also his poem on "Wadsworth's grave," and his tribute to Tennyson at his death Oct. 6, 1892, entitled "Lachrymæ musarum." Of the twenty-six sonnets in the volume two are Shakespearian in form, one is irregular, and the remainder conform to the Petrarchan standard.

Presumably intended as a political squib on civic elections of 1892 in New York City and the rivalries of the daily papers—especially the World, Sun, Advertiser and Mail and Express.

Wilson, Theodora B., and Harvey, Ja: Clarence. After many days: an American novel, by two Americans. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., 1893. c. '92. 2-366 p. D. (Lovell's ser. of American novels, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.

When Robert Cameron returns to Casauqua after an eight years' absence in the west, he fulfils an engagement of long standing and marries Janet Morvick; this dashes the hope of his cousin, Neal Fleming, who seems doomed to play the part of a disappointed swain, until the irresponsible act of Ezra Felton brings about a tragedy, and Neal's long waiting is unexpectedly ended.

Winter, Mrs. Eliz. Campbell. ["Isabella Castellar," pseud.] The Spanish treasure: a novel; il. by Warren B. Davis. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1893. c. '92, '93. 5-335 p. il. D. (The choice ser., no. 78.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The writer is the wife of William Winter. Although the story opens in New York at the present time, it relates to a treasure buried in the far west among the Indians by a descendant of one of Columbus' crew, a Spanish outlaw named Pedro Mendoza. In a singular manner the surviving heirs of the Mendozas, a young American girl and an English nobleman, meet in New York, learn of the buried treasure and its history and of the "curse" that guards it, etc. (The attempt to find it is rich in thrilling adventures and apparently supernatural occurrences.)

issue.] N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1891 [1893.] c. 76. 4 v., il. D. cl., $3.60.

Contents: Winwood Cliff; or, Oscar the sailor's son. 4-314 p.; Thorncliffe Hall; or, why Joel Milford changed his opinion of boys whom he once called "goody-goody fellows," 5-280 p.; Roderick Ashcourt; a story showing how a manly boy and a noble girl battled with great troubles, 6-289 p.; Ben Blinker; or, Maggie's golden motto and what it did for her brother, 6-282 p. Originally published by Lee & Shepard in 1876-80.

Wood, Mrs. H: Danesbury House; with an introd. preface, by Mrs. Frances E. Willard and Lady H: Somerset. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893. c. 5+294 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 50.) pap., 50 c.

"Danesbury House," published in 1860, gained its author a prize from the Scottish Temperance League, offered for the best temperance tale illustrative of the injurious effects of intoxicating drinks, etc. It is endorsed by Miss Willard, who for twelve years has been president of the National W. C. T. U., and Lady Somerset, president of the W. C. T. U. of Great Britain, as containing "vivid lessons" which it is believed will help its readers to shun the cup "that lures but to destroy."

Wood, J: Seymour. An old beau, and other stories. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1893. c. '92. 5+314 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The initial story is a tale of New York club life. A New England ingenue gives an amusing incident in the life of a quiet girl who had tried to earn money as an actress. These two stories appeared in Scribner's Magazine in 1890 and 1891. "Poor Cousin Parker" and "How Amasa Snow got on his feet" appeared in Harper's Weekly in 1889. "Patriotism," "An unworldling," and "A street-car adventure" are published for the first time. By the author of "Gramercy Park" and "A daughter of Venice."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FEBRUARY 11, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereto."—LORD BACON.

RETAILERS' ADVERTISING.

"Have an issue, have some special article that will bear talking of, and which ought to sell if known, and let that article be your text for the day's advertising."

We select the above text from a sensible article that appeared some time ago in Printer's Ink on the importance of letting specialties sell staples. We think that it may easily be applied by the bookseller. We assume, of course, that every bookseller does more or less advertising of some kind. Is it directed effectively? That is a question for each individual to decide for himself. But let him never leave out of sight the fact that if the advertising be done through the daily press it must be varied and have "snap." No one cares to read back numbers. Nobody cares to trade with slow stores. The bookseller who loses sight of these facts and rests content to see his advertisement run in some obscure corner of the local paper, unchanged, and in type that is steadily becoming more battered and worn, from the beginning to the end of the contract, had better save his money, reform or go out of business. He will be forced to one of these alternatives sooner or later.

Let the bookseller bear in mind that he must have an issue—that is, a leader—as often as possible. Even if he has a whole storeful of new and salable books and stationery novelties, he must not present an inventory of the whole in every advertisement. Few ever want to buy a dozen articles—seldom more than one at a time. Good advertising consists in the selection of a few timely and seasonable books, or those which are exciting the talk of the day, or some specialty in stationery, or whatever else he may keep in stock, to stand as the representative of the dealer's stock in price and quality. He must choose a good thing to represent his store, and talk about that. Let him put his whole energy and force into a strong argument why it should be in every reader's hands; and let him try to talk as though that book or article was his entire stock. He will find that it will draw more people to his store than the mere mention or even enumeration of a whole library. If the bookseller has sufficient space at his command, two or three leaders can be put out at once, but seldom more than that in an ordinary advertisement. Periodically, say once a week or once a month at least, the bookseller should take a new book or some other store attraction and treat it in a like manner, and he will soon find that his leaders will be town-talk.

If the bookseller prefers to advertise by circulars let them reflect the policy of his store and be readable and attractive. The day of the old-fashioned, cheap, colored book-paper hand-bill is over and its place has been taken by the "primer" or little book.

The same amount of matter that was formerly crowded into a two or four page circular in the form of a letter sheet is now gotten up in small book form.

"The advertising matter," to quote the writer in Printer's Ink, "is confined to the inner leaves, which are usually of white or cream-tinted paper, and the covers are of darker, heavier paper, often in rough effects. There may be four, eight, twelve, sixteen, or as many pages as are necessary to contain the required matter. The page size is small, usually not over  $3\frac{1}{4}$  to 4 inches, and liberal margins are allowed, to afford a contrast for the type.

"They are neatly printed, and are certain to receive dignified and considerate attention from the recipient.

"They are greatly used in the large stores, being scattered all through the establishment in little baskets on the counters, easy to reach.

"Customers pick them up while purchasing other goods, often being in that manner reminded of articles needed, which perhaps they otherwise would not have bought.

"To help sell specialties and new lines of goods they are invaluable. Dealers frequently secure effective distribution by having one of every kind wrapped up in parcels and sent to the homes of their customers. Their cost is not excessive; in lots of 25,000 a twelve-page booklet of ordinary size, with neat cover, will cost about $5 per thousand."

As another illustration of the pernicious practice of the publisher competing with the bookseller, we are in receipt of a "personal, confidential circular" sent out by a leading publishing house, in which it offers its regular publications to certain parties either for their "own use, or for others," at a discount of  $33\frac{1}{3}$  per cent., and their special publications at from 10 to 25 per cent. We presume it has never occurred to the firm in question that by this action it is breaking faith with every bookseller whom it may have induced to keep in stock a more or less complete line of its publications; because by such a course it is robbing the dealer of a not inconsiderable portion of the very constituency upon which he relied when he stocked up with its publications.

Not satisfied with sacrificing its own books this wide-awake firm also offers the "books of other publishers at from 20 to 40 per cent." Here is an excess of enterprise indeed. A house that once boasted of publishing a book a day all the year around (excepting the Sundays), and that still puts its imprint on enough books to keep it honestly busy every working day of the year in making and properly distributing them through the regular channels of the trade, might be better engaged, we think, than to go out of its way to compete with the bookseller in placing its own books, and booming those of its neighbors by offering them to the public at trade discounts. It is about time a halt were called on such methods. They are not wise—certainly they are not fair.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

On the 3d inst., Charles W. Gould, receiver of the United States Book Company, obtained the consent of the attachment creditors to waive their right to keep the property in the hands of the sheriff, and was granted permission by Judge Patterson, of the Supreme Court, to sell the stock of the Hovendon Company, the International Book Company, the Lovell, Coryell & Company and the Empire Publishing Company. The move was considered advisable, as the receiver, aided by the managers of the various sub-companies, will be able to sell the books, which constitute the main item of the stock of the companies, to better advantage than the sheriff.

On the 6th inst., John I. Waterbury, the chairman of the reorganization committee, made the following statement:

"The reorganization committee has been almost continuously in session for the past few days, and has made a careful and thorough investigation into the affairs of the United States Book Company. It has obtained from the most available source statements of the assets and liabilities, and while these statements still require to be verified, which is being done as rapidly as possible, the committee feel entirely confident that there is a large surplus of assets over liabilities, putting the assets on what appears to be a conservative basis. Should the property be sacrificed at sheriff's sale, of course it is wholly uncertain what amount it would realize, but if it is permitted to be liquidated judiciously, under the management of the receiver, or under such other management as the creditors may assent to, we feel entirely confident that there is property enough to pay all debts and leave the company in a position to go on with its business. A statement will be issued to creditors as soon as practicable, doubtless within a few days, but the committee deem it best to defer this until such time as the information which they have received, and upon which their conclusions are based, can be verified and confirmed by the expert accountants and others who are now engaged in this branch of the work. Much has been accomplished already through the transfer of property from the sheriff to the receiver in the line of preserving the assets for the general benefit. The creditors thus far heard from, and who represent a large proportion of the liabilities, are co-operating with the committee; and we see no reason why the affairs of this company should not be placed in a sound and satisfactory position."

As we go to press, nothing more definite than the foregoing can be stated. We are informed authoritatively that the trade need not be alarmed of any demoralization resulting from the failure, as it is now known that the merchandise of the company will not be sacrificed. The reorganization committee is composed of some of the most level-headed business men of the country, and the plan which they will submit very shortly to the creditors promises to insure the payment in full of all claims and leave a satisfactory surplus for the continuance of the company's business. Already a number of the creditors, representing the largest proportion of the liabilities, have signified their acceptance of the plan proposed by the reorganization committee for the liquidation of their claims, and there seems to be no doubt that all the creditors will do the same.

Under the new administration we understand a very conservative policy will be adopted by the company, and none of the elements of weakness which existed in the old corporation will be discernible in the new. Altogether, in the opinion of those qualified to speak in the matter, if the organization committee be successful in obtaining the consent of all the creditors to their plan, of which there seems at present to be no doubt, the future of the company promises to be a bright one. The organization committee has been in almost continual session for the past week—being engaged at one time uninterruptedly for over fourteen hours—and Mr. Lovell has been before them for a great portion of the time, giving the committee whatever information they desired at his hands. We expect next week to be able to give the result of the committee's work and the plan for the reorganization of the company.

ILLUSTRATION AS AN ART.

W. LEWIS FRASER, the art manager of the Century Magazine, lectured before the students of the Academy of Design, in the library of the academy in Twenty-third Street, on the evening of the 8th inst., on illustration, and exhibited a collection of drawings by well-known illustrators.

The essential qualifications of an illustrator, Mr. Fraser held, are invention and imagination, composition and drawing being, of course, important considerations. "Art," Mr. Fraser remarked, "is nature seen through the prism of emotion, and, no matter what the form chosen for its expression, it is the expression that counts."

In the past twenty-five years the art of illustration has been advanced by the enterprise and liberality of American publishers and the appliances of photography, which, between the years 1860 and 1870, developed the possibility of printing the drawing directly upon the block for the engraver. This advance in the method of reproduction made possible the use of gouache, water-color, pencil, crayon, or charcoal, and this in turn, of course, opened the field of illustration to men who theretofore had ignored it.

"For illustration, I take it," said Mr. Fraser, in explaining just what he was talking about, "is a picture which elucidates written text, which conveys the meaning of the author, as the artist understands it, to the brain by means of the eye." Among the great illustrators he mentioned Cham, Daumier, Gavarni, Leech, Cruikshank, and in America, as second to none of these, Felix O. C. Darley. "These men," he said, "were great men and men of undying fame, but they were grudging by the critics of their day the title, artists. Even now I feel this feeling toward the illustrator has not fully disappeared."

THE BRADFORD BI-CENTENNIAL.

AT the meeting of the New York Historical Society, on the evening of the 7th, the executive committee reported regarding plans for the observation of the 200th anniversary of the establishment of printing in the colony of New York by William Bradford on April 10, 1693. In their search for the site of the original printing office the committee accepted a place on the north side of Dock St., now Pearl St., between Broad and Old Slip. A bronze tablet will be placed at this point bearing the following inscription:

"On this point William Bradford, who was appointed public printer on April 10, 1693, established the first printing press in the Colony of New York. Erected April 10, 1893, by the New York Historical Society."

The house from which the first number of The Gazette was issued is believed to have stood at the northwest corner of William St. and Hanover Square, the site of the Cotton Exchange, and a second tablet will be placed at this point with the following inscription:

"In a house standing upon this spot the first newspaper printed in the Colony of New York was issued October 23, 1735."

Permission has been obtained to use the rooms of the Cotton Exchange for the coming celebration in April. An exhibition of the Bradford imprints will be made at the rooms of the Society, beginning April 4, and continuing two weeks.

THE PRINTER OF THE MORMON BIBLE.

ACCORDING to a Bath, N. Y., correspondent of the Sun Major John H. Gilbert, who "set up" the Mormon Bible from the original manuscript and "worked it off" on the Ramage press which was recently discovered in a barn at Rose, Wayne County, is still living in Palmyra, where the book was printed. He preserved what is known technically as a pressman's copy of the Bible, and sold it not long ago for $500. The book was printed in 1829-30. Major Gilbert is about ninety years old and remarkably well preserved. According to Prof. John Fraser, of the University of Chicago, the "Book of Mormon" was originally written in 1812, as a historical romance, by Solomon Spalding, a crack-brained preacher, and the ms. falling into the hands of an unscrupulous compositor, Sidney Rigdon, was copied by him and subsequently given to John Smith, the founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

WINDOW-DRESSING.

"WINDOW-TRIMMERS who are in search of an attractive device for use in dull seasons, or to brighten up a display otherwise somewhat featureless," says a writer in The Newsman, "will find the following deceptive mirror easily arranged and likely to cause comment. The following rough diagram tells the story in the main:

"In the centre of the background of your display window place two frames of silvered glass—that is, mirrors without frames. Let them reach from the bottom of the window to a point above the head of the observer in front of the store. The edges should come close together at the back, and as there is no frame the line of jointure will hardly be visible. To an observer in front they will look like a flat mirror, and surprise will be occasioned by the fact that they do not reflect the observer's face and figure. A second glance will show why they do not; but to take that second look the passer-by must stop and look in the window, and that was what was wanted. There are few persons who can pass a window without glancing in to see if they are looking all right and in trim."

BOOKS AND PICTURES OF "HELL."

AN assignee in bankruptcy under the empire of Napoleon III. had a strange fancy for collecting all the bad books that he could lay his hands upon and placing them in his library. He carefully gathered all the new productions, until his library became so famous that it was seized by the authorities. Strange to say, the volumes went to "hell," in the language of the officials of the French National Library, the name of the room where all the immoral books, devilish pictures and vile engravings are securely locked.

The old assignee, according to a correspondent of the New York Sun, "has just sued the state for the recovery of his treasures. He claimed that the republic was bound to restore the books that the empire seized. But now he knows that out of hell there is no redemption; because the state attorney and the Procureur de la République beat him with the argument that morality is eternal and that a republic should maintain it even more jealously than an empire.

"'Hell' is situated in the Rue Richelieu, and contains about 700 damned volumes. When one wants to go there it is necessary to send a petition to the chief administrator of the National Library, stating precisely the reasons for such a serious step. A severe inquiry is immediately made into the case, with the chances all in favor of a refusal. Sad to say, doctors and lawyers can all go to 'hell'; there are no obstructions thrown in their path; but the gates are closed to journalists, which is some consolation.

"The pictures, etc., in 'hell' generally represent subjects analogous to those which are to be found in the Secret Museum of Naples, or those which in ancient times used to decorate the walls of the mansions of the Romans.

"But as the Devil—and he should always be spelled with a big D, à tout seigneur tout honneur—is not so black as he is painted, the 'hell' of the National Library is not much of a place after all. Out of the three millions of volumes in the library, seven hundred is the precise number of lurid productions which are consigned to the place of darkness, there to be kept from the public light forever and ever."

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

OPINION in re THE WORDING OF A COPYRIGHT INSCRIPTION.

JUDGE BAKER, of the Federal Court held in Washington, D. C., on the 2d inst., rendered an opinion in a copyright case involving the use of superfluous words relative to a copyright inscription. The Whitely Land Company, a syndicate of capitalists, laid out a town-site as a suburb of Muncie. A prospectus of the improvement was gotten out, and in addition other advertising matter, part of which was a map of the addition and the location. T. C. Hefel, a civil engineer, brought suit in the U. S. Court for an injunction against the company and a suit for damages for infringement of a copyright, claiming the syndicate had used a map owned by him. A demurrer was filed by the syndicate stating that in the case the requirements of the copyright law had not been complied with, inasmuch as on the chart or map appeared the words: "Copyright entered according to an Act of Congress, 1889, by T. C. Hefel, Civil Engineer." It was urged that the statute requires that the stamp should have been as follows: "Copyright, 1889, by T. C. Hefel." The point claimed was that the superfluous words destroyed the meaning of the law. The demurrer was overruled, Judge Baker sustaining the complaint, holding that the law's meaning is not changed by superfluous words that do not vary its meaning. The statute gives Hefel $1 for every sheet or chart found to be an infringement, and he claims to have found 10,000. In the event that he proves his case upon final trial, he will thus secure $10,000.

(CANADIAN COPYRIGHT.)

ADVICES from Ottawa state that on the 1st inst. in Parliament Sir John Thompson said the British Government had not yet given notice of the withdrawal of Canada from the Bern Copyright Convention, as requested by the Dominion Parliament two years ago. The imperial authorities have not yet permitted the Canadian copyright act of 1889 to go into operation. A despatch on the subject was received a few days ago and is now being considered by the government. The copyright act passed four years ago is of an essentially home-rule character, and repudiates, as far as Canada is concerned, the copyright convention entered into between Great Britain and foreign countries.

OBITUARY NOTES.

BARON BRABOURNE, better known as the Rt. Hon. Edward Hugessen Knatchbull-Hugessen, died in London on the 6th inst., aged 64. He represented Sandwich in the House of Commons from 1857 to 1880, when he was elevated to the peerage. He wrote a number of stories for young people and edited "Letters of Jane Austen," his maternal great-aunt, and published "Life, Times and Character of Oliver Cromwell" and "The Truth About the Transvaal."

THE death is announced of Dr. Robert Dickson, a recognized authority on the history of early Scotch printing. He wrote "The Introduction of Printing into Scotland," and more recently, along with Mr. Edmond, "The Annals of Early Scotch Printing."

L. W. HOPKINS, for the past thirty years connected with the wholesale stationery business in Boston, died on the 15th inst. at the home of his mother in Brunswick, Me. Mr. Hopkins had been afflicted with blindness the past few years and had also paralysis of one side, on account of which he was obliged to give up active business. He was connected with some of the best houses on Cornhill, Boston, when that was the centre of book and stationery business, but of late years was best known in connection with the house of Hall & Whiting, and later as a partner in the firm of their successors, Greenough, Hopkins & Cushing.

SAMUEL HENSEL ZAHM, head of the book-selling firm of S. H. Zahm & Co., of Lancaster, Pa., died at Tampa, Fla., on February 5. Mr. Zahm had gone to Florida for his health on December 28 with his wife; but he was not supposed to be in a critical condition and his death was a severe shock to his relatives and friends. He was born in Lancaster, Pa., March 9, 1840. In 1875, after having been engaged in the book business in Kansas City and as travelling salesman for a Pittsburg firm, he returned to his native town and with William Reichenbach opened a small second-hand book-store. His partner died in 1878 and Mr. Zahm formed a partnership with Samuel Auxer, under the firm-name of S. H. Zahm & Co. At that time his store was removed to 18 and 20 S. Queen St., where the firm has since carried on a flourishing business. Mr. Zahm was active in municipal affairs, having been a member of the common council and the board of health. He was a charter member of the Lancaster County Historical Society and of the Pennsylvania German Society, and belonged to several other local and general organizations. He was a student and scientist, well versed in archæology, his collection of stone implements and relics of American aborigines being a remarkably fine one, numbering many thousands of specimens. As an antiquarian and bibliophile he was regarded as an authority, being particularly well posted on Americana. He was prominently identified with the Methodist Episcopal Church of Lancaster. Mr. Zahm was twice married, his first wife and their two children having died several years ago. His second wife survives him.

A SWINDLER—A WARNING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly:

WE desire to warn the trade that a young man, evidently a German, has been presenting forged orders for books to be delivered on our account, and request that he be detained until we can be notified in case of his detection.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

PROFESSOR BOYESEN, it is reported, has resumed editorial relations with The Cosmopolitan Magazine.

A NEWSPAPER for the blind, the Weekly Summary, printed in Braille type and published in London, has just passed its thirty-fourth number.

THE February issue of The Catholic World is a "golden jubilee number," commemorative of the fiftieth anniversary of the consecration of Leo XIII. On the cover is given an excellent portrait of the Pope, and the frontispiece is a fine likeness of Mgr. Satolli. Three sonnets by Eugene Davis are on Leo XIII. as "Poet," "Priest and Prelate" and "Pontiff."

The Citizen has been decided upon as the name of the new Philadelphia weekly. The Point of View being discarded. Mr. Henry Collins Walsh will be the managing editor, Mr. Francis Howard Williams the literary editor, and the following staff will have charge of departments and assist in the editorial work: Mr. Harrison S. Morris, Prof. Angelo Hellprin, Miss Agnes Repplier, Mr. Owen Wister, Mr. Thomas Earle White, Miss Anne H. Wharton and Prof. Edmund J. James.

J. L. AND J. B. GILDER, the editors of The Critic, have acquired the controlling interest in that paper hitherto held by Mr. Charles E. Merrill. Mr. Joseph B. Gilder succeeds Mr. Merrill in the presidency of The Critic Co. Miss Gilder and her brother founded The Critic in January, 1881, and have always been its editors. Since the beginning of the present year the paper has appeared in a new dress of type, and illustrations have been introduced to brighten up its pages. Literature will continue to hold the first place in its columns, but an effort will be made to render the paper more attractive to the general reader. The Critic's thirteenth year bids fair to be the most prosperous in its history.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

AN outcome of the Loan Collection of Decorative Bindings, Rare Books, Manuscripts, and other Bibliographical Specimens from the libraries of Philadelphia, held last month at the Philadelphia Academy of the Fine Arts, is an interesting catalogue, giving bibliographical memoranda of the works exhibited together with the names of the owners. The exhibition was as remarkable as any yet made in this country, and it is to be hoped that the further displays promised may be arranged in the future. Among the treasures were a Coburger Bible, 1478; an Elliot Bible, 1663; a Saur and an Aitkin Bible, the former dated 1693-1758, the latter, 1782; specimens of the Saur and Ephrata presses, two of the earliest printing establishments in this country, the latter being famous also as the printers of the first paper money issued by order of Congress during the Revolutionary war; a copy of Boccaccio's "Noble Women," printed by Johannes Czeiner at Ulm, 1473, and bound by Roger Payne; three Shakespeare quartos, bound by Horace Howard Furness; the manuscript of Charles Lamb's "Dissertation upon Roast Pig," and other equally rare literary treasures. Every one of the treasures shown was remarkable also for its binding. (53 p. 16".)

ALBERT A. POPE, of Boston, has in preparation a catalogue of "books, pamphlets, and articles on the construction and maintenance of roads." Copies of this catalogue will be presented to the public libraries of the United States. The objects of its publication are to furnish a convenient book of reference and to obtain information concerning all road literature which may have been omitted, so that the list may be made as complete as possible. Mr. Pope is also making a special collection of publications relating to the making of roads and keeping them in good condition. This will be open to the public. Mr. Pope desires to make the collection as complete as possible, and information on the subject may be sent to him at Box B, Boston, Mass.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, N. Y., in their "Floral Guide for 1893" have combined a most novel and charming feature in the way of hundreds of beautiful and appropriate poetical quotations from the best authors, making The Poets' Number of Vick's Floral Guide a source of interest and pleasure the whole year. The practical part contains colored plates of alpine aster, begonia, dahlias, dutchman's pipe, clematis, pansies, cannas, corn and potatoes, and hundreds of engravings of flowers and plants of which they furnish the seeds.

THE MATTHEWS-NORTHROP CO., Buffalo, N. Y., have recently issued "Some Proofs" from their complete engraving and printing establishment. The volume contains about 100 pages, 9 x 11½ inches, printed on one side only, with illustrations produced by various processes. The specimens include exquisite examples of color prints, maps and every variety of engraving. As a sample of fine printing the volume addresses itself to the connoisseur and collector. The nominal price of $1 is put upon this publication.

THE A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO., of Chicago and New York, have issued a "List of 1881 Family Weekly Newspapers" that will gladden the eyes of the collector fully as much as that of the advertiser, because it contains over eighty pages of as fine color printing as has ever been put between the covers of a book. The presswork was done at the De Vinne Press and is perfect in every detail.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Robert Clarke & Co., Cincinnati, O., Books on the Rebellion, (476 titles.) Messrs. Clarke & Co., have in press a new Americana catalogue which they are to have ready in April next.—Max Harrwitz, Potsdammerstr., Berlin W., Photographie, Lithographie, Typographie. (370 titles.)—Otto Harrassowitz, Querstr., 14, Leipzig, Egyptologie and Assyriologie, comprising the library of the late E. V. Bergmann, of Vienna. (No. 186, 600 titles; probably the most important collection of the kind ever offered to the public.)—Lang & Co., 209 N. 7th St., St. Louis, Mo., Americana and a few miscellaneous books and pamphlets. (No. 36, 347 titles.)—S. B. Luyster, 79 Nassau St., N. Y., Miscellaneous. (No. 188, 458 titles.)—Martinus Nijhoff, 18 Nobelstraat, La Haye. A rare collection of old and new books. (1250 titles.)—David Nutt, 270 Strand, London, Miscellaneous. (No. 33, 676 titles.)—H. Sotheran & Co., 136 Strand, London, Clearance Catalogue. (No. 2, Ge-Sc, 96 p. 12".)—M. Spirgatis, 23 Marlenstr., Leipzig, Nationalökonomie. (No. 12, 579 titles.)—Thomas Whittaker, 2 Bible House, N. Y., Lent list, 1893. (40 p. 12".)—Ye Olde Booke Store, [J. Hosey Osborn] 95 Van Houten St., Paterson, N. J., Miscellaneous. (624 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GINN & Co. will publish at once "Lord Chesfield's Letters," selected by Edwin Ginn.

MARION CRAWFORD has in press a small volume entitled "The Aim of the Novel." Among its contents are some of his Forum papers.

M. GIBBS, 45 Rose Street, New York, has issued a booklet entitled "Poker Points," with decisions of a draw-poker congress, compiled by W. L. Call.

ESTES & LAURIAT will publish a translation of Dumas' "Les Compagnons de Jehu," by Miss Katherine P. Wormeley, who has rendered Balzac so acceptably.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have in preparation a memoir of Bishop Phillips Brooks, based on his letters and papers, which will be issued by arrangement with the family.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM, New York, announces for early publication "Towards the Sunset," by the Rev. A. K. H. Boyd, the author of the "Recreations of a Country Parson."

THE next volume in Roberts Brothers' edition of Balzac's works translated by Miss Wormeley will be "The Great Man in the Provinces," a continuation of "Lost Illusions," just issued.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will issue shortly another story by the author of "Fire and Sword" and "The Deluge." It is entitled "Without Dogma," and has been translated by Mrs. Iza Young, nee Slupka.

MACMILLAN & Co. will shortly publish the first volume of a new work on "English Prose Writers," by Henry Craik, prominent in educational affairs in Scotland. The work will be in five volumes.

THE F. H. GILSON COMPANY, printers, 54 Stanhope St., Boston, have issued a typographical curiosity entitled "The Miniature Song-Book." The book is 1½ x 1½ inches in size and contains 48 pages, of which 32 pages are music. The price of the booklet is five cents.

BOUSSOD, VALADON & Co. have in preparation a work entitled "Mary Stuart," by John Skelton. The book will be a serious historical work, forming a defence of the queen. It will have portraits of Mary at different periods of her life, of many members of the French court, and of English statesmen of the period, reproduced from originals lent for this purpose by Queen Victoria, the French government, the Marquis of Salisbury and others. A limited edition of 200 copies on Japanese paper will be published this spring, and an ordinary edition will appear in the fall.

MRS. BLAINE has published the following card: "The public advertisements of many biographies of James G. Blaine pretending to be authentic and authoritative compel me to state that no biography or 'Life and Work of Mr. Blaine' is authorized or approved by myself or by any member of Mr. Blaine's family; that no manuscript by Mr. Blaine, or any private letter or paper of Mr. Blaine's, or any material for biography has been given out to any one. If in the future any authentic or authorized biography should be prepared by competent authors, it will be authenticated and authorized by myself."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in preparation for early publication "Major-General Wayne and the Pennsylvania Line in the Continental Army." In this work Dr. Charles J. Stillé will give fresh light on the career of the Revolutionary general whose biographer he has been, and will show the part played by Pennsylvania troops in the Revolution. He has had access to General Wayne's voluminous correspondence with the statesmen and soldiers of his day, and is therefore able to speak with authority on the achievements of the Pennsylvania line, especially in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, Green Spring and Yorktown. The volume will be uniform with the author's previous work, "The Life and Times of John Dickinson." Other books which will soon be forthcoming are: "The History and Theory of Money," by Prof. Sidney Sherwood, of the University of Pennsylvania; a volume of educational and literary "Essays and Sketches," by Julia Dubring; "Through Colonial Doorways," by Anne Hollingsworth Wharton; "John Gray," a novel of old-time Kentucky, by James Lane Allen; "A Leafless Spring," a new story by Ossip Schubin; "Val-Maria," a romance of the time of Napoleon Bonaparte, by Mrs. Lawrence Turnbull; and "A Riddle of Luck," by Mary E. Stone. They will have a third edition, revised and corrected, of Benjamin Franklin's "Life," written by himself, edited by John Bigelow.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The firm of Bradley & Woodruff was dissolved on the 1st inst., Frederick O. Woodruff retiring. Mr. Arthur I. Bradley will continue the business on his own account under the firm-name of A. I. Bradley & Co. Mr. Woodruff, who has many warm friends among the booksellers in this country, has gone into the real-estate field, in which he has already been quite successful. We regret his loss to the book trade, and wish him good luck and success in his new enterprise.

CINCINNATI, O.—A. E. Wilde, of the A. E. Wilde Co., wholesale booksellers, is dead.

DARLINGTON, S. C.—B. O. Bristow, bookseller, has sold out.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—A. J. Holman & Co., publishers, have been succeeded by A. J. Holman & Co., limited.

RALEIGH, N. C.—The firm of Moore & Watson, subscription-book publishers, has been dissolved and the firm reorganized under the name and title of the Southern Publishing Co.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—J. C. Hassinger has sold out his book and stationery business to H. W. Muzzall, who has been a well-known resident of Santa Barbara for the past twenty years.

SAN JOSÉ, CAL.—F. A. Taylor has opened general headquarters at 80 South First Street, New Ryland Block. He also continues his store at 113 West Santa Clara Street, just west of the electric-light tower.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—We were misled in referring to Mr. John M. Dean as being the late Mr. Dean. Having had a call from the gentleman we can testify that he is still alive and doing well. The Mrs. Dean who retains her interest in the business of Otto, Chatham & Dean is in no way related to Mr. John M. Dean.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusives of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

A NEW NOVEL BY OPIE READ,

Author of "A Kentucky Colonel," etc.

A collection of Mr. Read's newspaper stories is being advertised in a way which may create the impression that it is a new novel. We beg to announce, therefore, that the manuscript of Mr. Read's latest work, a novel of about 300 pages, the scene of which is laid in Chicago, is now in the hands of our printers. Mr. Read has been at work on this story for over a year, and has surpassed all his previous efforts. The title has not been decided upon, but the book will appear in March.

Some Good Books Recently Published by LAIRD & LEE, CHICAGO.

THE FAMOUS ROMANCES OF VOLTAIRE. A superb edition of these celebrated tales by the greatest writer the eighteenth century produced, with 32 full-page illustrations by famous French artists. The brilliant wit and never-flagging imagination of Voltaire are shown here in their best vein and without one objectionable feature. 12mo, paper covers, 490 pages, 50 cents.

MYSTERIES OF THE COURT OF NAPOLEON III. By GILBERT-AUGUSTIN THIERRY. This story, founded on fact and narrated by the son of one of Napoleon III.'s own councillors of state, possesses an interest vastly superior to that of any modern historical novel. It is graphic, realistic and enthralling from the first to the last line. The book is beautifully illustrated with 8 reproductions of wash drawings made for us in Paris. 12mo, paper covers, 319 pages, 50 cents.

DR. PERDUE. By STINSON JARVIS. This book, forming No. 2 of our "PRIZE NOVEL SERIES," was awarded the $1000 cash prize offered by us for the best original American novel submitted to us between May 2 and Sept. 30, 1892. It is a yachting story, full of the true spirit of the sea and replete with incidents of the most exciting nature. A true novel of the day, written by a master hand, recognized as such by the leading critics of the American press. Illustrated with 8 superb half-tone engravings on enamelled paper. 12mo, paper covers, 397 pages, 50 cents.

Marriage.

Uniform with our "Jane Austen." 2 vols., 16mo, half russias, $2.50.

"In November, 1854, there died in Edinburgh one who might, with truth, be called almost the last, if not the last, of that literary galaxy that adorned Edinburgh society in the days of Scott, Jeffrey, Wilson and others. Distinguished by the friendship and confidence of Sir Walter Scott, the name of Susan Edmonstone Ferrier is one that has become famous from her three clever, satirical and most amusing novels of MARRIAGE, THE INHERITANCE and DESTINY. She may be said to have done for Scotland what Jane Austen and Maria Edgeworth have respectively done for England and Ireland."—Temple Bar Magazine.

Convent Life of George Sand.

Translated by MARIA ELLERY MACKAYE. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

The book contains a short biographical sketch by the translator and a portrait of George Sand.

THAT WILL BE READ WITH GENUINE ZEST.

BRIGHT, NEW, READABLE BOOKS

By AMERICAN WRITERS.

THE BRIDES OF THE TIGER.

By WM. H. BABCOCK.

"By his quaint, sly humor, his genial worldly wisdom, and his narrative and descriptive methods, at once vigorous and sober, the author reminds one of Blackmore. The resemblance to 'Lorna Doone' is further increased by the clever imitation of seventeenth-century English in which the book is written."
—Chicago Tribune.

FENCING WITH SHADOWS.

By HATTIE TYNG GRISWOLD.

"A charming story, as full of real life as to seem real pictures rather than romance. It is a story to warm the heart and enlarge within it all the humanities and Christian graces. It has many characters to admire and love."
—Inter-Ocean, Chicago.

MY JEAN.

By PATIENCE STAPLETON.

"My Jean" is the strongest work from the pen of this gifted American authoress. "Kady" and "Babe Murphy," her former books, have had an extensive sale and have received the highest praise from the press. The plot is a strong and novel one and the book is well worth reading.

A MODERN QUIXOTE.

By Miss S. C. McCAY.

"The pictures of Southern life are very vivid, and the reproduction of the Georgia dialect is more than excellent."
—Detroit Free Press.

THE LOYALTY OF LANGSTRETH.

By JOHN R. V. GILLIAT.

THE MAN FROM WALL ST.

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE, author of "DOCTOR JACK."

A graphic depiction of the adventures of a typical New Yorker in Europe. The scene is principally laid in Venice and the pictures of life in the sea-girt city are drawn with a master hand. The work recalls to mind "Mr. Barnes of New York," but it is a far stronger and more studied production.

THE DEVIL'S GOLD.

The Story of a Forgotten Race, by OSCAR F. G. DAY.

AN UNWEDDED WIFE.

By GENEVIEVE KIRK.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Idle Days in Patagonia.

By C. H. HUDSON, C.M.Z.S., author of "The Naturalist in La Plata," etc. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

Of the author's previous book, "The Naturalist in La Plata," the New York Sun says: "A notably clear and interesting account of scientific observation and research. Mr. Hudson has a keen eye for the phenomena with which the naturalist is concerned, and a lucid and delightful way of writing about them, so that any reader may be charmed by the narrative and the reflections here set forth. It is easy to follow him, and we get our information agreeably as he conducts us over the desert pampas, and makes us acquainted with the results of his studies of animals, insects and birds."

A Few Thoughts for Lent. Gathered from the writings of the Rev. WILLIAM F. MORGAN, D.D., late Rector of St. Thomas's Church, New York. Square 32mo, 150 pages, half white, $1.00.

"These are brief extracts by Mrs. Dahlgren, daughter of the late Dr. Morgan, from his Lenten sermons. They appeal very forcibly and lovingly to the Christian heart and conscience, and cannot fail to be a devotional help to any one who is making a right use of the privileges of this Holy Season."—Newport Convocation Journal.

Helps to a Holy Lent. By the Rt. Rev. F. D. HUNTINGTON, D.D. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

New Helps to a Holy Lent. By the Rt. Rev. F. D. HUNTINGTON, D.D. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

Dear Feast of Lent. By the author of "Rosary for Lent." 12mo, cloth, red edges, $1.

A Thought and a Prayer for Every Day in Lent. 24mo, paper, 15 cents.

"Filled with admirable Christian thought."—Southern Churchman.

Meditations on the Life of Christ.

By THOMAS A KEMPIS. Translated and edited by the Ven. Archdeacon Wright and the Rev. S. Kettlewell. With a preface by the latter. 12mo, 442 pages, cloth, $1.25; white cloth, gilt, $1.75.

"The book follows the life of Christ in a meditative rather than an historical order, with the view of drawing the heart to Christ, and feeding on Him in love and devotion. While the book has a general resemblance to the 'Imitation,' it differs greatly in the subject-matter of the meditations, which is Christ in the various phases and acts of His life and passion."—The Independent.

Holy Writ and Modern Thought. A Review of Times and Teachers. The Bedell Lectures, 1891. By A. CLEVELAND COXE, Bishop of Western New York. 16mo, 271 pages, cloth, $1.00.

Hiram Golf's Religion; or, The "Shoemaker by the Grace of God." 16mo, 134 pages, cloth, 75 cents.

"This little book contains, in quaint and simple sketches, the essence of practical Christianity. . . . It cannot fail to be of service to ministers and laymen alike."—N. Y. Observer.

NOTES IN SEASON.

GINN & Co. will publish next month "Ormsby's Translation of Don Quixote," abridged and edited by M. F. Wheaton, formerly teacher of literature in Abbot Academy.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just issued a short volume of stories by Thomas Hardy, J. M. Barrie, Clark Russell and others, with portraits and illustrations, under the title of "Stories in Black and White;" "The Diary of an Idle Woman in Constantinople," by Mrs. Minto Elliot; and an authorized translation of Dr. Ebers' autobiography. They also announce the third volume of their Great Commander Series. This is a biography of Andrew Jackson, and was the last literary work of James Parton, completed just before his death.

THE CENTURY Co. is about to publish "A Handbook of Invalid Cooking," by Mary A. Boland, instructor in cooking in the Johns Hopkins Hospital Training-School for Nurses. The book is intended not only for nurses in training-schools and private practice, but for all who care for the sick. Besides recipes, menus, suggestions for the proper feeding of children, etc., a part of the book is devoted to "Explanatory Lessons," wherein the various food principles are described, with chapters on Nutrition, Digestion, Chemical Changes in Food, etc., etc.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will shortly publish "Literary Criticism for Students," by Prof. Edward T. McLaughlin, of Yale, which consists of selections on literary aesthetics by the great English critics from Sir Phillip Sydney to Walter Pater. They will also publish "Representative English Literature," by Henry S. Pancoast, University Extension Lecturer, which contains a large proportion of literary history, and the selections (on the principle that it is better to know a few things well than many vaguely) are somewhat fewer than is usual in such collections, but each complete in itself. Both volumes are suitable for general reading as well as for class-room use.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish shortly a new volume by Wilfrid Ward on "William George Ward and the Catholic Revival," which forms a sequel to "W. G. Ward and the Oxford Movement." The forthcoming work will contain reminiscences of Prof. Huxley, Dr. Martineau, Cardinal Vaughan, Prof. Sldgwick, Lord Emily, Dean Goulburn, Sir M. E. Grant Duff and Baron von Hügel. Other features of interest will be an account of the late Mr. Ward's intercourse and correspondence with Cardinals Newman, Wiseman and Manning, John Stuart Mill, F. W. Faber, Lord Tennyson, Dr. Bain and M. Ollé-Laprassé. The volume will contain an account of modern Ultramontanism, beginning with the publication of Joseph de Maistre's celebrated work, "Du Pape;" some hitherto unpublished documents relating to the proceedings of the Vatican Council; and a sketch of the Metaphysical Society, of which William Ward was at one time chairman, and which included among its members such men as Mr. Gladstone, Lord Sherbrooke, Tennyson, and others.

THE publication in book form this week by Tait, Sons & Co. of Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis" occurs simultaneously with what probably is the end of the controversy as to their claim to rank as the only authorized publishers of the work. Heretofore Charles H. Sergel & Co., acting, however, in good faith, based on an arrangement made with foreign publishers, had laid claim to their edition as an authorized one. Tait, Sons & Co. promptly disputed the claim on the ground that they had been duly authorized to act as the American publishers and had contracted to pay a considerable sum of money for the privilege. From the correspondence elsewhere in this issue it will be seen that Sergel & Co. agree that any subsequent editions they may issue of this book will be published without the words "authorized edition." Further than this, they will not publish for the present any editions in cloth, thus giving Tait, Sons & Co. the sole market for that binding. The edition issued by Messrs. Tait is remarkable for its careful and excellent translation and its fine typographical appearance and artistic binding, both in cloth and paper.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (O. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Annual American catalogue, 1892: being the full titles, with descriptive notes, of all books recorded in The Publishers' Weekly, 1892, with author, title, and subject index, publishers' annual lists, and directory of publishers. [Third supplement to the American Catalogue, 1884-90.] N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1893. c. 18+225+144 p. O. hf. leath., $3.50.

There are 4963 titles, arranged in alphabetical order, embraced in this catalogue, a larger number than shown in any of the previous volumes; at least 8000 titles are followed by explanatory or descriptive notes, giving a complete résumé of the contents of the book, making the volume a valuable one for reference in seeking information relative to the books of 1892. The result of the increase in publication is a greater number of pages in the body of the book, a larger index and a larger list of publishers than in former volumes.

Argles, Mrs. Margaret, ["The Duchess," pseud., now Mrs. Hungerford.] Lady Verner's flight. N. Y., J. A. Taylor & Co., 1893. c. '92. 3-810 p. D. (Broadway ser., no. 19.) pap., 50 c.

A sweet and innocent young girl marries Lord Verner, a notorious rake, supposing him to be a model of all the virtues; he has married her for her money, consequently the process of disillusionment on her part is rapid. To escape from Lord Verner and his vile boon companions Lady Verner runs away and finds a position as housekeeper to a young and handsome country squire. Of course many complications follow, which are related with both wit and humor.

Baum, Rosemary. That box of cigarettes: a farce in three acts. Bost., Walter H. Baker & Co., 1892 [1893]. c. '92. 25 p. D. (Baker's edition of plays.) pap., 15 c.

*Beckwourth, Ja. P. Life and adventures of James P. Beckwourth, mountaineer, scout, pioneer, and chief of the Crow nation of Indians; written from his own dictation by T. D. Bonner. New ed., with preface by C. G. Leland, ("Hans Brietmann.") N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 440 p. 8", (Adventure ser.) cl., $1.50.

Bourget, Paul. Cosmopolis; from the French, by Hettie E. Miller. Chic., C. H. Sergel & Co., 1893. c. 3-338 p. D. (Sergel's international lib., v. 1, no. 19.) pap., 50 c.

Bourget, Paul. Cosmopolis: a novel. [From the French.] Authorized ed. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. 7+843 p. D. cl., $1.50; (Hollywood ser.) pap., 50 c.

The author pronounces this a "drama of passion," which, although it has its scene in Rome, has no particular Roman feature. The characters are Venetians and Englishwomen, Poles, Romans, Americans and Frenchmen, who have sought Rome for profit, pleasure or through expediency. Baron Hafner, a European adventurer, whose connection with the scandal of the Credit Austro-Delmatie has tarnished his reputation somewhat, is seeking a noble sultor for his beautiful daughter; the others are chiefly engaged in intrigues of various kinds, in which a husband, wife or lover is being deceived. The time is the present, the actors representing types found in most large cities. Bourget aims to illustrate through them "the permanence of race," the strength of hereditary traits when awakened through any great passion.

Brandt, J. L. Turning-points; or, great questions for young men and women; with introd. by F. D. Power. Rev. and enl. ed. Cin., O., Standard Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '90, '92. 11+843 p. il. por. O. cl., $1.50.

- An English lord occupying a minor post in the government and hoping for future leadership is much annoyed by threatened exposure by means of two letters which he knows to be compromising. He sends his solicitor on a secret quest for these letters, which are in the keeping of a gouty colonel travelling in Switzerland with his daughter and step-sister. Swiss scenery, storms, avalanches, glaciers, mountain walks, searchings for reputed gold-mines and many scenes of love and intrigue make a brisk story with happy ending.

- The author is an advertising expert who writes from a long experience. What he has to say is of interest both to newspaper men and to advertisers. With a history of advertising he gives much valuable information in answer to such questions as the following: How often should we advertise? How often change the "ad."? What papers should be used? How about cuts? How much space should be used? Is it better every day small, or every other day a large "ad."? He takes up serialism every form of advertising in the daily, weekly, country paper and in the great magazines, as well as the bulletin-boards.

- Jarvis, Stinson. Dr. Perdue. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1892 [1893.] c. 8-397 p. il. D. (Library of choice fiction.) pap., 50 c.
"Dr. Perdue" is the name under which a Canadian who has served seven years in prison for embezzlement is known in Paris. After taking to himself a wife a woman comes to Paris who had been betrothed to him in his youth and becomes a member of his household. The story has to do with the revived love of these two people and also with the guilty passion of an Anglican priest for Dr. Perdue's wife.

After a long life of excesses Sir Arthur Peyto determines to make a will in accordance with the suggestions of his nephew Robert, an expectant heir. The conditions of this document if carried out will seriously affect the financial and matrimonial prospects of his niece Celia, who believes herself his heir. Before Sir Arthur's purpose is legally executed he dies. Robert then uses this invalid document to attain at one stroke a fortune and the girl he loves. Celia, chiefly notable for a hasty temper, attempts to checkmate her cousin; her unconventional way of doing this has sensational consequences which hasten an unexpected crisis.

Knox, T. W. The Siberian exiles: a novel; il. by Victor Perard. N. Y., Rob. Bönner's Sons, [1898.] c. '92, '93. 4-355 p. il. D. (The choice ser., no. 77.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A novel of European and Asiatic Russia of our own time. It tells of the exile, without trial, of the head of a family, guiltless of any crime or treason, simply upon suspicion. All the exertions of his family and friends are powerless to save him from the terrors of a Siberian exile and the life of a state prisoner in the mines. Col. Knox has travelled in Siberia and visited the mines and prisons, and therefore writes of what he has seen in describing the cruelties of prison life.

Covers the history of New England, in the form of a story, from 1620 to 1844, the period at which the New England colonies formed their first confederation for mutual protection. In order that the reader may have a better idea of the Pilgrims and their peculiar persecutions the story opens with their flight into Holland. Just a glimpse of their life in Leyden is given, and they are hastened on board the Mayflower, a full and accurate account of their memorable voyage being embodied in the narrative.

Norris, Mary Harriott. John Applegate, surgeon: a novel. St. Paul, Minn., The Price-McGill Co., [1893.] c. 4-334 p. D. (The golden lib. of choice fiction, no. 6.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is New York. John Applegate, a medical specialist and confrère of Dr. Huntington, loves Margaret Huntington, generally supposed to be the doctor's daughter; in an incidental conversation, however, between Drs. Applegate and Huntington, it is revealed that the latter adopted Margaret for the purpose of testing whether education or heredity is strongest in the evolution of human character. The interest is in the final solution of this social problem, and in the unlooked-for developments of the young surgeon's wooing.

Ross, E. Alsworth. The standard of deferred payments. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, 1893. 37-49 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 70.) pap., 15 c.

The object of this paper is to examine the arguments of the monometallists and the bimetallicists, and to inquire what standard of deferred payment will insure justice to both debtor and creditor. The writer finds the argument of the first "wholly unsound"—but does not find the bimetallic argument "entirely" right.

Vanity's daughter is on trial for murder when the story opens in England. Twenty years before a young flower-dei from Florence had appeared in the streets of London. A rich young Londoner broke his engagement and married her. About a year after she left him to save him from a former lover. A strong prison scene between the murderers and the deserted fiancée of former years tells a sad story of vanity, misplaced love and cold-blooded revenge.

Ten Brink, Bernhard. History of English literature, (Wyclif, Chaucer, earliest drama, Renaissance;) from the German, by W. Clarke Robinson, translation rev. by the author. V. 2. Pt. 1. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1893. c. '92. 10+339 p. O. cl., $2.

The first volume of this work appeared in English ten years ago; it reviewed the history of English literature from the earliest times of the ancient hymnic poetry and the old Teutonic delities up to the close of "Piers Plowman's vision." The proposed second volume apparently outgrew its contemplated limits, and the author published the portion here given as volume 2, part 1, without waiting to complete the portion he had designed as volume 2. Part 2 of volume 2 is to continue the history up to the accession of Queen Elizabeth. It had not gone through the press when the author's death occurred in January, 1892. In the present volume the author puts forth all his strength and compresses the results of his life-long study of Chaucer. By the side of Chaucer are placed Wyclif, the early religious drama and the Renaissance.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FEBRUARY 18, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

A PLEA FOR BETTER TRANSLATIONS.

YEAR by year the more important and notable books published throughout the world are translated into many languages, that all persons interested in their subjects may be enabled to keep abreast of, or in touch with, the intellectual development, the thought and views of their neighbors. One might think that, in view of the growing demand for these interpretations of the thoughts of other nations, pains would be taken by the publishers that the translation should as closely as possible render the subject-matter and style of the original, or at least furnish an equivalent therefor. And yet it is a matter of fact that, so far as the rendering of lighter literature is concerned, this object is rarely attained. Indeed, the idea is current that any person distantly familiar with a foreign language (and sometimes barely above a speaking acquaintance with his own) can translate a book from that language into his mother tongue, provided he is approximately acquainted with the vocabulary of the subject treated of. Novels dealing with the every-day affairs of life, no matter how epigrammatically or idiomatically they may be treated by the author, seem to present the least difficulty to the would-be translator. Women especially attack the translations of the latter as they would millinery or dressmaking when the need of self-support arises; or, more frequently even, consider it a pleasant pastime for leisure moments in which to gain a trifle for pin-money. And what is the result? Translations from foreign languages into the English tongue—particularly those issued in this country—are as a rule beneath criticism from a literary standpoint, and very often far out of the way as regards accuracy or true feeling for the author's meaning.

A long array of translations of fiction comes to our mind, and after we have picked out half a dozen novels from the collection it would be hard to say which of the remaining number is the "least worst." In the first place the greater part of the translating is done into a language that cannot pass as English. Involved sentences, awkward construction and weak grammar—often-times an entire disregard of grammar—disfigure the work. The translators rarely grasp the significance of the authors' characters, their surroundings, their plane of education, etc., and then render their conversations in English that is an equivalent of the French spoken by such characters. In other words, whether the persons moving in the story be noblemen or rowdies, refined ladies or scullions, the translator makes them speak the same kind of English. So in a novel recently published a refined Italian lady, a little bit startled, is made to cry out, "My God! what is the matter?" And often such ejaculations are rendered more coarsely still. French ladies and Spanish noblewomen use very strong terms for very trifling occurrences; but it totally destroys the author's intention to give these idiosyncrasies of French or Spanish speech in verbatim translation.

Almost all the published work in this line shows signs of having been hurried. The driving publisher is felt in every line. But even with all the time that might be given, the greater number of the translators whose work we have in mind could do no better. The trouble is that translating is considered hack-work by the average publisher, and he expects it done for the smallest sum, always falling back upon the unanswerable argument that he can get all he wants at his own price.

A new novel appears abroad and creates a sensation. The publisher feels that unless he can get it into English at once the interest in the book may wane and his profit be curtailed. So a quick worker is engaged, and the production of an author whose reputation rests almost wholly on style and artistic use of idiom and epigram—an artist who perhaps devotes days and weeks to refining a single sentence until it glitters like a polished gem—is ground out in a few days and turned into "English as she is spoke." In short, when completed, the work being devoid of the action or adventure that might hide by the intrinsic interest of its subject the inadequate means by which it is conveyed to the reader, the translated book conveys as little idea of the beauties and

A few years ago, when every one had a right to translate the work of a foreign author, the element of competition entered into the contest and the best translation was the most likely to hold its own in the end. But now, when it is hoped that we shall soon get things so straightened out that only one "authorized" translation can appear, it becomes more and more desirable that publishers should put capable writers as well as translators at this important work. The novels of Balzac now in the market show what perfection the translator's art can reach. But a price must be paid that will buy the right pen. The translator must thoroughly understand not only the foreign tongue, but be in sympathy with the work, and then interpret it for the public in good grammatic English.

Will it pay to buy this talent?

Does it pay to publish execrable translations?

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

JUDGE PATTERSON on the 10th inst. removed the affairs of the United States Book Company from the charge of the sheriff and placed them in the hands of the receiver, Charles W. Gould. This action was taken with the consent of all parties in any way concerned in the business, and thus clears the way for the perfection of the plan of the reorganization committee. This committee, of which John I. Waterbury is chairman, will have their plan ready shortly, and will compose an advisory committee for the reorganized company.

The progress of the examination of the accountants shows that the estimated assets and liabilities of the company are approximately as stated by the committee on the 6th inst. and given in our last week's issue.

DELAY OF SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

At the monthly meeting of the American Trade Press Association, held on the 13th inst., the question discussed was second-class mail matter, and the delay that has been experienced in the Post-Office in the delivery of such matter. Assistant Postmaster Gayler, Superintendent of Mails A. B. Maze and Superintendent of Second-Class Matter E. F. Post, of the Post-Office, were present, and answered many of the questions that were put to them. Mr. Gayler said that much of the delay that the publishers of weekly papers had experienced in getting their matter to their subscribers was due to the fact of the small appropriations made by Congress for running the Post-Office. Another reason he gave was that the mails were overburdened with sample copies of papers which existed for no purpose but as advertising schemes and to further the wares of manufacturers, etc. Mr. Gayler's idea was to remedy this evil by raising postage on sample copies of all kinds and thus shut out many of these papers from the mails.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATIONS.

NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS AND NEWS-DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

ALEX. McNIE, Winona, Minn., Pres.
F. W. IIDDINGS, Grand Forks, Minn., Vice-Pres.
CHAS. D. RAYMER, Minneapolis, Minn., Sec.
GEO. W. SAYRE, Minneapolis, Minn., Treas.

THE above-named association was organized at St. Paul, Nov. 24, 1891. The object of the same is "social, educational and protective"—to bring the members of the book and news trade into closer and more pleasant relations.

There are several such organizations throughout the United States, also a national association, and the "Northwestern" is not the smallest or weakest. It is not necessary to state the advantages of such an association; every intelligent dealer can appreciate that point, and, we hope, will send the admission fee of $1 at once to the undersigned, who will send receipt and by-laws, bulletins and other information as fast as issued.

In making your application for membership, please answer the following questions:

Are you a bookseller or newdealer?

Do you make this or some other line of business your specialty?

What is the worst grievance you have to contend with?

If you do not wish to join us, why?

Will you attend our annual meeting in June or July?

What city would you be in favor of having it in, and on what date?

An immediate answer will oblige

Yours fraternally,

A. C. MCCLURG.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB, of Chicago, composed of the most influential and wealthiest citizens of Chicago, honored itself and the book trade by electing, at its last meeting, as president Gen. A. C. McClurg, the senior member of A. C. McClurg & Co. In such a man as Gen. McClurg the whole profession takes pride, and we do not think it amiss at this time to append to this announcement a few facts relating to the career and the public services rendered by one of the most intelligent and enterprising representatives of the book trade in the West.

A. C. McClurg, a Philadelphian by birth, spent the greater part of his childhood and youth in Pittsburg, where his father erected the first foundry in a city which has since gained a worldwide reputation for its iron industries. Young McClurg acquired the foundation of his education at the public schools, and went thence to Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio, where he was graduated. He then took up the study of law under the instruction of the Hon. Walter H. Lowrie, Chief Justice of Pennsylvania. By applying himself closely to his studies his health became so seriously impaired that at the solicitation of his friends and with regret he relinquished his studies and in 1859 went to Chicago and as junior clerk entered the employ of S. C. Griggs & Co.

When the war broke out Mr. McClurg assisted in recruiting the "Crosby Guards," which was assigned to the 88th Illinois Volunteer Infantry as Company H. Mustered in as a private he was shortly elected to the captaincy of the company and commanded it in its first engagement at Perryville, Ky. In May, 1863, he was tendered the position of assistant adjutant-general on the staff of Gen. McCook. After Chickamauga Capt. McClurg joined Gen Baird's division and distinguished himself in the charge on Missionary Ridge, being the first to reach the crest of the ridge. Three weeks before the fall of Atlanta he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and retained as adjutant-general of the 14th Army Corps in recognition of his gallant services at Jonesboro. Near the close of the war, in further recognition of his services, Col. McClurg was promoted to the rank of colonel and brevetted as brigadier-general. He was urged to accept a commission in the regular army, but though the temptation was strong he returned to Chicago and re-entered the employ of S. C. Griggs & Co.

In 1871, when Mr. Griggs retired from the retail and jobbing business, Gen. McClurg and his fellow-associate, the late Mr. E. L. Jansen, continued the business under the firm-name of Jansen, McClurg & Co., which became A. C. McClurg & Co. after Mr. Jansen's retirement in 1887. Since then, through his untiring energy, enterprise and able administration, the business has assumed almost gigantic proportions, and is one of which not only Chicago but the whole country may reasonably be proud.

General McClurg is also vice-president of the University Club, vice-president of the Chicago Historical Society, trustee of the Newberry Library and president of the Chicago branch of the International Copyright League, and has been president of the Chicago Library Club.

"THE EVENING POST" LIBEL SUIT.

THE taking of testimony in the libel suit brought by Isaac K. Funk against The Evening Post was finished on the 15th inst. in the Supreme Court before Judge Lawrence. The Post, it will be remembered, spoke of the publication of an edition of "The Encyclopædia Britannica" as "piracy." The defence asserted the right to criticise by the use of the strongest words so long as individual malice was not a factor. Charles A. Clapp, of Dutton & Co.; Charles Scribner, of Charles Scribner's Sons; Charles E. Merrill, Henry Holt and G. H. Putnam were called to testify as to "trade courtesy" in the publication of works protected by a foreign copyright. E. L. Godkin, editor of The Evening Post, was also a witness. In rebuttal Mr. Funk was called, with George E. Hicks, who had gone through the files of The Evening Post and found republications from many English works.

COMMUNICATION.

IN RE THE AUTHORIZED EDITION OF "COSMOPOLIS."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: As there seems to be some misunderstanding concerning who really is the authorized publisher of "Cosmopolis" in America, we think it right that the trade should know exactly how matters stand. We therefore make the following explanation, as much for the benefit of Tait, Sons & Co. as for our own.

We received, Dec. 23 a copy of the French edition of "Cosmopolis" from our Paris agent. We at once placed the book in the hands of our

M. Paul Bourget.

DEAR SIR: We have just received from Paris a copy of your new book, "Cosmopolis." Presuming you have selected no publisher for America for this work, we are about to publish it in English for the American market, and we should be pleased to pay you a royalty on every copy published. Will you kindly inform us whether you will permit us to call the edition an authorized edition, and if so, we will take pleasure in forwarding you payment for every copy sold? Very truly yours,

CHARLES H. SERGEL & Co.

We received no answer from M. Bourget, but on January 25 we received the following letter from his publisher:

PARIS, Jan. 13.

Messrs. Charles H. Sergel & Co.

I will authorize you to translate "Cosmopolis" into English, and to publish that translation as the only authorized American edition, for the sum of two thousand francs.

Accept my assurance of respect, etc. A. LEMERRE.

We at once accepted M. Lemerre's offer, and stated that a draft would be sent on publication of the book. On the same day, Jan. 25, we sent out announcements to the press that we were about to publish an authorized edition of "Cosmopolis." A few days later we sent a similar announcement to the trade. January 28 we learned for the first time that Tait, Sons & Co. had announced an authorized edition of the same book. When this announcement was confirmed by a circular from this firm, we wrote Messrs. Tait, Sons & Co. the following letter:

Messrs. Tait, Sons & Co.

We observe that you have announced an authorized edition of Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis." Inasmuch as we have before us a letter from the Paris publisher, authorizing us to publish the only American edition of this book, we write to you to request you to remove the words "authorized edition" from your edition. If you have been authorized by the author, or if you are in any way authorized by the publisher, both yourselves and ourselves will be compelled to look for redress to Alphonse Lemerre. If it shall appear that you are more entitled than ourselves to use the words "authorized edition," we will cheerfully remove them from our book, and naturally expect your acquiescence in our request to do the same.

Very truly yours,

CHARLES H. SERGEL & Co.

In reply to this letter we received a communication from them, in which they state that they have received a letter from the Paris publisher, M. Alphonse Lemerre, which gives them authorization in the following words: "The right to publish the translation for America, it is well understood, is exclusive to your firm." A few days before receiving this letter from Tait, Sons & Co. we sent the following communication to M. Bourget's publisher:

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.

M. Alphonse Lemerre.

Immediately on receipt of your letter of January 13 we sent an acceptance of your offer, authorizing us to publish the only edition of "Cosmopolis" in English in America, for the sum of two thousand francs. Two days after writing you, we were informed that another house, Tait, Sons & Co., of New York, had announced an authorized edition of "Cosmopolis." As there cannot be two sole authorizations for America, we write for an explanation before sending a draft for the two thousand francs.

Very truly,

CHARLES H. SERGEL & Co.

From all this it appears that the Paris publisher has authorized two American houses to bring out the "only authorized edition" of "Cosmopolis." After making his offer to us, and before a reply could be received, the Paris publisher completed arrangements by cable with Tait, Sons & Co. We are loath to believe that M. Alphonse Lemerre would accept money from two persons for the same authorization, but it is nevertheless true that his carelessness has led to two houses announcing authorized editions of the same book.

As there is no advantage in this case in having an "authorized" edition we shall cease calling our "Cosmopolis" an authorized edition, and shall refuse to pay Mr. Alphonse Lemerre two thousand francs. Meanwhile we shall try to persuade Paul Bourget to accept from us a royalty for every copy sold.

CHARLES H. SERGEL & CO.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR : In quoting from our reply to their letter to us of the 2d of February, Messrs. C. H. Sergel & Co. omitted to state that we requested them to remove the words authorized edition from their book, and to call in any copies which they might have sent out ; a course, we said, "which we would ourselves have unhesitatingly adopted had we discovered that we had no power to issue the authorized edition."

In their reply to us of the 9th of February, the firm in question declined to withdraw any book from the market, but stated that any subsequent editions which they might issue of "Cosmopolis" would be published without the words "Authorized Edition," and they added that they would not for the present publish any editions in cloth.

Answering their last communication of the 9th inst., we said as follows :

"With all deference to your judgment of the situation we do not see, and cannot for one moment admit, that your company has any right to print the words 'Authorized Edition' on the copies of 'Cosmopolis' issued by you. So far as we understand the situation it is simply this :

"The Paris publisher wrote you that he was willing to accept 2000 francs for the right to publish the only authorized American edition. M. Lemerre did not say that he was going to hold his offer open for you, and with the cable at your disposal you evidently took no pains to verify your claim. We, on the contrary, as soon as we could obtain a definite figure from Lemerre, promptly cabled him our acceptance of it through our agents, and requested his confirmation also by cable, which we as promptly got, thereby closing the matter up in a business-like manner. We have held back our book until we could positively use the words 'Authorized Edition,' with the result that you are first in the field, and that so far as can be ascertained you have flooded the market with books which wrongfully bear the title 'Authorized Edition,' to the great loss and injury of this company."

In conclusion we would say that while we have had certain pleasant and courteous letters from Messrs. C. H. Sergel & Co., we regret to say that we do not find that their actions consort with their words. Thus, on the 2d inst. they wrote stating that they were willing to remove the words 'Authorized Edition' from their book if it should appear that we were more entitled to the words than they were, while they were writing to the trade under the same date that their authorized edition would be out on the 6th, a thing which would be manifestly impossible if they had to remove the words "Authorized Edition" from it.

Not content with supplying orders which they had obtained, Messrs. C. H. Sergel & Co. forwarded great quantities of the book throughout the country to the trade on sale, thereby exhausting every possibility of sale before—making a virtue of necessity—they intimated their intention to surrender their claim to the authorized edition.

Our claim has been indisputable from the outset and has been regarded as such by the book trade in this vicinity at least, and we think it is to the credit of the trade in this city, Boston and elsewhere that although, as explained, we held our book back until such time as we could issue it as exclusively the "authorized edition," many of the largest and most reputable houses of the trade refused to purchase any of Messrs. Sergel & Co.'s copies of "Cosmopolis," but preferred waiting for ours.

While on the subject of "Cosmopolis," we might refer to a communication in one of the New York dailies, which states that "the claim of publishers to have the only 'authorized edition' is all 'buncombe' and a good deal of tempest in a teapot, for anybody has a right to make a translation of the work and print it."

Regarding this, we would avail ourselves of the opportunity offered by your valuable columns to say that, having agreed to pay a considerable sum of money for the exclusive right to publish an authorized edition of "Cosmopolis" in this country, the sole authorization so obtained has, or ought to have, its specific value in the eyes of the book trade of the highest class, as well as among the best class of readers. The paper in question may call this buncombe if it likes, but we do not consider it empty talk to notify our intention to safeguard a valuable property for which we pay a good round sum of money. Of course, as the same paper says, "anybody has the right to make the translation and print it." We are quite conscious of that fact, and we do not propose to say one word against those publishers who print the book without authority of the owner so long as they omit the words "authorized edition."

At the same time we venture to think that our practice as publishers is more in conformity with the best traditions of the trade, in paying to the foreign owner of the book such a price as he considers proper for publishing it in this country.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THOMAS WHITE DELAND.

At a meeting of the book trade, held at the office of Lee & Shepard, Saturday, Feb. 11, at which Mr. Wm. Lee was chosen chairman and Mr. W. B. Clarke secretary, the following action was voted :

"Resolved, The publishers and booksellers of Boston, assembled to take action because of the departure of a highly esteemed member of the book trade, Thomas White Deland, who passed away after an active life of more than thirty years in the house of Messrs. Little, Brown & Co., of this city, desire to express their sorrow at the loss of one who was an honor to the trade and to testify their personal regard for him.

"It is hard to realize the extent of our loss, but we feel sure that the memory of his valued and pleasant association with us, as well as the abiding influence of his upright life, will serve as a guiding stimulus to those who have so long enjoyed his friendship and business association.

We must defer to a later issue the obituary notice which we hoped to be ready to print in connection with the foregoing.

H. H. WEST, of the H. H. West Company, booksellers and stationers, Milwaukee, Wis., died early this month. His funeral took place on the 3d inst. at the Calvary Presbyterian Church in that city, and was very largely attended. He located in Milwaukee in 1849, and had been identified with the interests of the city ever since. He was at one time a member of the board of aldermen of that city. He was a man of sterling integrity, of genial and warm impulses, and in every way stood high in the esteem and respect of all who were brought into contact with him.

T. W. LAWRENCE, one of the oldest and best-known booksellers in New York City, died on the 15th inst. at 669A Hancock St., Brooklyn, of gastric fever. He was born Sept. 16, 1828. He learned the bookbinder's trade and became an expert finisher. He finally established a business at 60 Nassau Street, where for a quarter of a century he was a dealer in rare books and engravings. He was one of three famous American inlayers whose work is accounted far superior to that of their French and English rivals.

PROF. WILLIAM HOLMS CHAMBERS BARTLETT, the author of "Treatise on Optics" (New York, 1839), "Synthetical Mechanics" (1850), "Analytical Mechanics" (1853) and "Spherical Astronomy" (1855), died at his home in Yonkers, N. Y., on the 11th inst., aged eighty-nine.

REV. FRANCIS WOLLE, one of the most famous Moravians in this country, died on the 10th inst., at the age of seventy-five years. In 1884 his first volume made its appearance from the Moravian Publication Concern in a handsome royal octavo volume, "Desmids of the United States and List of Pediostrums." This volume was followed in 1887 by two more volumes on "The Fresh-Water Algae of the United States." Mr. Wolle's last scientific work is "Diatomaceæ of North America."

HENRY CHURCHILL DE MILLE, the dramatist, died suddenly at his home in Pompton, N. J., on the 10th inst., at the age of forty. He was born in North Carolina and was graduated at Columbia College. He studied for the ministry, then was a teacher in the Lockwood Academy, Brooklyn, 1875-1878, and in the Columbia Grammar School until 1882, when he became examiner of plays at the Madison Square Theatre. While there he wrote a play called "Delmar's Daughter." He and Charles Barnard then wrote "The Main Line," and in co-operation with David Belasco he produced such successful plays as "The Wife," "Lord Chumley," "The Charity Ball" and "Men and Women." His last work was "The Lost Paradise."

LOUIS JOHN JENNINGS, journalist and author, died in London on the 9th inst., 57 years of age. He was born in London and in 1869 became connected with the New York Times. While acting as editor of that paper he was instrumental in exposing the Tweed Ring. In 1876 he returned to Europe. In 1885 he was elected to the House of Commons by the Conservatives of Stockport and re-elected the following year. Mr. Jennings was the author of a number of works, including "Eighty Years of Republican Government in the United States" (1868), "Field Paths and Green Lanes" (1877), "Rambles Among the Hills" (1880), "Mr. Gladstone, a Study," and "The Millionaire" (1883). He was the editor of the "Croaker Papers" (1884), and was some years a contributor to The Quarterly Review.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

TOLSTOI is said to be busy writing a book on Japan, its people and religions.

SIR M. E. GRANT DUFF is writing a little book on M. Renan, with whom he had an intimate acquaintance, dating back to 1859.

A FORMAL organization is proposed for the purpose of preserving as a memorial the James Russell Lowell estate in Cambridge, known as "Elmwood."

"BARBARA YECHTON" is the pseudonym under which Miss L. F. Krause, of New York, has contributed a number of sketches and a story called "Ingleside" to the Churchman, with which she is editorially connected.

PROFESSOR HENRY DRUMMOND will deliver the Lowell lectures at Boston this spring. The subject will be "The Evolution of Man." Professor Drummond has not yet decided as to the date of the publication of these lectures, but has taken steps to protect his copyright in America.

ANOTHER authors' society, "to look after the interests of fictionists and feuilletonistes only," and to be called Romanciers Français, has just been started in Paris with the active support of nearly all the leading novelists. The old Société des Gens de Lettres is considered unequal to present-day demands.

AFTER a long illness Miss Bayly (Edna Lyall) is again at work. Her new novel, now in process of composition, is a story of the civil war and will appear under the title "To Right the Wrong." Miss Bayly desired to name her book "Jocelyn" in honor of the hero, but has deferred to the wishes of her publishers.

THE author of the anonymous "Sketches of Indian Life" which have been appearing in Macmillan's and have been attributed by many to Rudyard Kipling is T. A. Steele. Mr. Steele resides at Turfiff, in Aberdeenshire. He has written some stories, esteemed of great merit, for the new London illustrated weekly, the Sketch.

THE author of "Gentleman Upcott's Daughter," one of the most successful numbers of Fisher Unwin's Pseudonym Library, is, according to The Bookman, Walter Raymond, who issued last year a book under his own name, entitled "Taken at His Word." It was published in two volumes by Messrs. Bentley, and was favorably received. Mr. Raymond, who resides in Yeovil, is said to have much important work on hand.

PROF. JOSIAH ROYCE, who has been suspected of the authorship of "Calmire," has written a letter to the Boston Budget denying the rumor. He says: "I am grateful for the kindness that can attribute to me so notable a production, but as a fact I am not the author of 'Calmire,' and do not wish even for a moment to be thought of as such. The doctrines represented in 'Calmire' are not such as I believe or have expressed. The author is, on the whole, a Spencerian. I am not. For the rest, the author has a knowledge of the world that I have not, and a judgment as to many things of life very different from my judgment." We suppose there will be many more guesses before the authorship is revealed—if it ever shall be. So much may be taken for granted, that the author is no novice and undoubtedly has good reasons for remaining anonymous.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Belford's Magazine will shortly add to its pages, under the editorship of Mr. John Hunt Morgan, of Lexington, Ky., a department devoted to light poetry, illustrated humor, anecdotes, humorous paragraphs, etc.

WITH the first issue in March, Town Topics will be permanently enlarged to thirty-two pages. Arrangements have been completed with twenty-five of the most distinguished writers of fiction to contribute short stories and serials to its columns. Among them are such authors as Amélie Rives, Mary J. Hawker ("Lance Falconer"), F. Marion Crawford, Jerome K. Jerome, Edgar Fawcett, Julian Hawthorne, Ambrose Bierce, Hamlin Garland, Paul Lindau, Catulle Mendès, François Coppée, Anatole France, etc., etc. Hereafter each number of Town Topics will contain a short story, and a chapter or two of a serial by one or the other of these entertaining littérateurs.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS are preparing an interesting contribution to the World's Fair in the form of an "exhibition number" of Scribner's Magazine, to be published simultaneously with the opening of the exposition at Chicago. They have planned to make it as fine an example of an American magazine as can be produced by a house to whom the best literary and artistic resources are open. It is not proposed that the text shall relate chiefly to the Fair, but, on the contrary, the leading writers and artists have been asked to contribute to the number what they themselves think will best represent them. The pages of text and illustration will be largely increased, and the appearance of the number is likely to be looked for with eagerness by all readers interested in the work of American magazines.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CLEVELAND, O. — The Burrows Brothers Company have purchased the entire stock of old and rare books formerly carried by Arthur H. Clark at 183 Dearborn Street, and have made arrangements with Mr. Clark, one of the best posted men in this line in the West, to remain with them. He has the consent of the house to enlarge their department of old books considerably and to make it as important a feature of the business of the firm as possible.

KNOXVILLE, TENN. — The firm of Ross & Goodheart has been dissolved by mutual consent, B. Goodheart retiring. The firm will be succeeded by Ross & Co., who are authorized to collect all amounts due the old firm.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — Tunstall & Elwell have opened a jobbing store for school goods and stationery at 334 Monroe Avenue. Mr. Tunstall was formerly with E. Darrow & Co.

ST. JOSEPH, MASS. — Henry Brill, bookseller, has given preferences to home creditors and relatives for $30,000. No other creditors are protected, and the prospects for unsecured creditors to get their money are said to be poor.

UTAH, MON. — The Utah Book and Stationery Co. (Duncan M. McAllister, manager) have opened a fine book and stationery store in the McCormick block, 18 W. First South Street, just around the corner from their former location.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. J. SCHULTZ & Co. will publish in March a new novel by Ople Read entitled "The Colossus;" also a new edition of "A Kentucky Colonel," of which they claim to have sold nearly a hundred thousand copies.

TIBBALS BOOK COMPANY, 26 Warren St., N. Y., have acquired the stock of Prof. John M. Armour's "Divine Method of Life," "Atonement and Law," and "Mercy: its place in the Divine government," and will hereafter be the publishers of the same.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have in preparation "Five O'Clock Stories," by the Sisters of the Holy Childhood; and "New Month of Mary," by St. Francis de Sales, from the French by a Sister of the Visitation, Baltimore, printed with the approbation of His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons.

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. will publish at once two new books by the Rev. F. B. Meyer, viz.: "Moses, the Servant of God," in the Old Testament Heroes Series, and "The Future Tenses of the Blessed Life," uniform with "The Present Tenses," etc. They also announce "Princeton Sermons" by the president and faculty of Princeton Theological Seminary.

DURING Lent, F. Marlon Crawford, Thomas Nelson Page and F. Hopkinson Smith will give readings at Daly's Theatre, New York City. Mr. Crawford will give the first reading, making selections from "Zoroaster," "The Witch of Prague," "Sant' Ilario," "A Cigarette-Maker's Romance," and from his latest books, "Children of the King" and "Pietro Ghislen." The entertainments will begin at 11 A.M. on the 20th inst.

THE NATIONAL NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION held its seventh annual convention in New York City on the 15th and 16th inst. There were delegates from every State in the Union the membership representing, it was estimated, a capital of nearly $1,000,000,000. (?) The relations between the newspapers and typographical unions, mechanical improvements and the different methods of advertising were among the principal topics of discussion before the convention.

D. C. HEATH & Co., encouraged by the success of Strang's "Exercises in English," have just issued a completely new edition in larger type, revised and enlarged by Professor Carpenter, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The new edition contains also some pages made up from entrance examination papers at Harvard and at the Institute. The book consists of very carefully chosen and systematically arranged specimens of incorrect English, against which pupils should be cautioned. It is a valuable supplement to any grammar or rhetoric.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued a contribution to the Evidences of Christianity in the volume on "Primary Convictions," by the Bishop of Derry and Raphoe. It comprises a series of discussions on "the true characteristics of the Christian creed—on the belief in the Father Almighty, in the incarnation of the Son, in the Holy Ghost as speaking by the prophets, in the resurrection of the body, etc.—each of which is stated in its divine simplicity apart from all particular theories on the subject." This volume will be appropriate for Lenten reading. The latest addition to Harper's Franklin Square Library is a novel by H. B. Finlay Knight, entitled "A Girl with a Temper."

D. LOTHROP COMPANY announce "In the Wake of Columbus," an illustrated account of travel along the track of the great discoverer; "From Cordova to Cathay," by Frederick A. Ober, who was the special Columbus commissioner sent out by the World's Fair directory to gather Columbian facts and relics; also the elegy written by Richard Hovey on the death of Thos. William Parsons, entitled "Seaward," which will be printed on parchment paper, with illuminated initials and photogravure portrait. The work on Oliver Cromwell, by the Rev. George H. Clark, D.D., announced by the D. Lothrop Company for issue some weeks ago, has been delayed until now. Dr. Clark takes the view of Cromwell which Carlyle made the world generally adopt.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready the second edition of F. Marion Crawford's "Children of the King," of which the first edition was entirely exhausted on the day of publication, February 7. They have also issued a new and revised edition of "A Roman Singer" in the new Uniform Edition of F. Marion Crawford's novels. Among other volumes just issued are Walter Pater's "Plato and Platonism;" "The World of the Unseen," by Rev. A. Willink; an edition of the "Collected Poems of William Watson;" a third edition of Sir John Lubbock's "Beauties of Nature." Some new dollar novels are also just published: "The Story of John Trevennick," by Walter C. Rhoades; "The Marplot," by Sydney R. Lysaght; and "A Mere Cipher," by Mary Angela Dickens. & The Life and Adventures of James P. Beckwourth" forms the new volume in the Adventure Series.

ONE of the most expensive extra-illustrated books yet made is said to be a Bible now owned by Theodore Irwin, of Oswego, N. Y. It is valued at $10,000. The original was in seven volumes, 16mo, and by the addition of drawings and engravings it was enlarged to 60 volumes, each 16 x 24 inches, which occupy 17 feet of space on the shelves. This remarkable book contains 3000 pen-and-pencil drawings, etchings, engravings, lithographs, oil and water-color paintings, and mezzotints. Among the illustrations are parts of the "Great Bible of Cranmer," printed in 1533; parts of "The Bishop's Bible," printed in 1568; of the Nuremberg Bible, the first illustrated Bible published, printed in 1476, and of "Luther's Version" and the "Breeches Bible." The extender has brought together not only all that could be found of the best and rarest efforts at illustrating the text of the Bible, but also the art of modern painters and engravings, making it one of the most complete and valuable copies of the Bible in existence.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just ready the complete works of John G. Whittier in seven large octavo volumes, of which they print two editions, one a handsome library edition, the other an "artist's edition," limited to 750 copies. This edition is printed on English hand-made paper and illustrated with photogravures, steel-engravings and etchings on India paper. Among the artists who have made the illustrations are Mary Hallowell Foote, Howard Pyle, C. S. Reinhart, W. L. Sheppard, E. W. Kingsley, E. H.

Garrett, W. T. Smedley, Irving R. Wiles, J. Appleton Brown and Gilbert Gaul. Each volume is bound in parchment and silk, with cover design by Mrs. Henry Whitman. The edition comprises Mr. Whittier's completed works, as revised and rearranged by himself. This house will have ready on February 18 "John Keble," by the Rev. Walter Lock, sub-warden of Keble College, Oxford, to be uniform with the volumes on Newman, Manning, Wesley and Wilberforce; "Fair Shadow-Land," a volume of poems by Edith M. Thomas; "At the North of Bear Camp Water," by Frank Bolles; "Books and Their Use," with a list of books for students of the New Testament, by J. Henry Thayer, of Harvard University, and the 14th volume of the Gentleman's Magazine, dealing with English Topography. W. G. Collingwood's biography of Ruskin will be published within a few weeks by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. It will have portraits and illustrations, and there will be two editions, the more expensive one having the illustrations on India paper. Mr. Collingwood for many years has been secretary to Mr. Ruskin.

FOREIGN NOTES.

SUIT was recently brought in England by a number of German publishers against Charles Scholl, a Liverpool bookseller, for an infringement of their rights in a number of works reprinted in George Munro's Deutsche Library, and offered for sale by the defendant. In a test case brought before the High Court of Justice, Justice Stirling granted an injunction restraining the defendant from infringing the plaintiff's copyright, and more especially from importing or issuing the book (Freitag's "Verlorene Handschrift") or any colorable or other imitations of the book. He also ordered the plaintiff to deliver up all copies in his possession and to pay costs. An important feature of the suit is that the court recognized copyright in a foreigner's book, notwithstanding the fact that it had not been recorded at Stationers' Hall.

THE syndics of the Cambridge University Press announce a collection of popular articles on the history and archaeology of the Bible, written by different scholars, under the general editorship of Prof. Lumby. While forming a volume by itself, under the title of "The Cambridge Companion to the Bible," it is also intended to be bound up as a supplement to the Reference Bible, the whole constituting "The Cambridge Teachers' Bible." The main aim has been to incorporate the latest results both of criticism and of exploration; to show how the composite material of the text was gathered together, to explain the relation of the several books to one another, and to give a continuous narrative of the religious history of Israel. A special chapter has been contributed by Bishop Westcott on the sacred books of præ-Christian religions, and there will also be a history of the Bible in English. The antiquities, the geology, climate, geography and natural history of Palestine are treated in separate articles. Finally, there will be a glossary of Bible words, a concordance and an entirely new set of maps. Among the contributors are Bishop Perowne, the master of St. John's College, Prof. Robertson Smith, Prof. H. M. Gwatkin, Prof. Skeat, Prof. A. B. Davidson, of Edinburgh, and the Rev. W. Houghton. The work will be ready for publication early in April.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The French War and the Revolution.

By Prof. W. M. SLOANE. American History Series. With maps, 12mo, $1.25.

Prof. Sloane's book is a compact, popular narrative of the events of the period which succeeded that described in Prof. Fisher's "Colonial Era," the first volume in the American History Series. It is a thoroughly philosophical account of political causes and effects, and a graphic picture of the times as well.

The Duchess of Berry

AND THE REVOLUTION OF 1830. From the French of I. de Saint Amand. With portrait. 12mo, $1.25.

The dramatic Revolution which brought about the July monarchy of Louis Philippe has never been more vividly and intelligently described than in this the last of three volumes devoted to the Duchess of Berry, in the Famous Women of the French Court.

Reveries of a Bachelor, and Dream Life.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

THE FREE TRADE STRUGGLE IN ENGLAND. By Gen. M. M. TRUMBULL. Paper, 25 cents; cloth bound, 75 cents.

"It is not strange that it has reached a second edition, for few books draw one on with such attraction."—The Dial.

DARWIN AND AFTER DARWIN. An exposition of the Darwinian theory and a discussion of post-Darwinian questions. By GEORGE JOHN ROMANES, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.

1. THE DARWINIAN THEORY. 460 pp., 125 illustrations, cloth, postpaid, $2.00.

Many recent discoveries unknown to Darwin are brought forward. One charm of the book is the wealth of original illustrations, the author rightly claiming in the preface that figures are more convincing than language. Altogether, the merits of this work far outweigh its defects: it is the best modern handbook of evolution."—The Nation.

Edited by ANDREW LANG.

New Limited Edition of 1000 Copies.

Scott has stamped his genius on an entire country and language, and the Waverley Novels are read by millions, and in every civilized country in the world. These great novels have never before been properly illustrated.

This edition is enriched, at a cost of over forty thousand dollars, with proof impressions on Imperial Japanese paper of three hundred original etchings from paintings by celebrated artists of France and England, among whom are Sir J. E. Millais, R.A., R. W. Macbeth, Gordon Browne, Pettie, Lefort, Lalauze, Teyssonnières, etc.

The type will be large and new, set in a fine, open page, the margins ample, and the paper a beautiful natural tint, the volume a small 8vo, easy to handle, and the binding vellum cloth, gilt tops slightly trimmed. Complete in 48 vols. issued 2 vols. per month, at $2.50 per volume. Also 500 copies printed on Holland hand-made paper, with fifty additional illustrations, and bound in half leather, at $5.00 per volume.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. will issue on Feb. 25 a new novel by Stanley Waterloo, called "An Odd Situation." It is said to make use of the present relations between the United States and Canada in a decidedly original way, the interest of the story turning on a question of boundary lines. The covers of both cloth and paper editions will be striking, showing a map of the disputed territory guarded by the American and Canadian flags. They will publish in March a translation of Henry Greville's "Aurette," and "A Royal Robber, or, the seizure of Strasburg in 1681."

SAALFIELD & FITCH will publish immediately "The First Millennial Faith," by the author of "Not on Calvary." The book is intended as a help and guide to the many readers who can spare but few hours to religious study. It presents in as clear and concise form as is practicable the teachings of the Christian fathers and early martyrs, and reviews the thought and doctrines of the first one thousand years of the Christian era. While attempting to treat the subject in as popular and interesting manner as possible, the author has endeavored to avoid all unnecessary prolixity.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for early publication "The Empire of the Tears and the Russians," by Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, translated from the third French edition by Mme. Ragozin; "Outlines of Roman History," by Prof. Henry F. Pelham, of Oxford University, a work particularly designed for reading classes and higher-grade students; "Studies of Travel in Greece and Italy," a volume of historical and archaeological papers by the late Professor Freeman; "Venice: an historical sketch of the republic," by Horatio F. Brown; "The Making of a Newspaper," the experiences of well-known American journalists, written by themselves and edited by Melville Phillips; "Ruminations," a volume of essays by Albert Mathews; and "The Genesis of Art-Form," a consideration of aesthetics by Prof. Geo. L. Raymond, of Princeton College. New issues in their various series will be "Napoleon," by W. O'Connor Morris, in Heroes of the Nations; "Story of Poland," by W. R. Morfill, in Story of the Nations; "The Silver Situation in the United States," by Prof. F. W. Taussig, in the Questions of the Day Series; and in the Knickerbocker Nuggets a selection from Hazlitt's "Spirit of the Age, or, contemporary portraits," edited by Reginald Brimley Johnson. The second group of the Ariel Shakespeare will comprise "King John," "Richard II.," "Henry IV.," "Henry V.," "Richard III.," and "Henry VIII.," They will have several good stories: "Marked Personal," by Anna Katharine Green; "A Conflict of Evidence," by R. Ottolengui; "A Literary Courtship," by Anna Fuller, author of "Pratt Portraits"; "Voodoo Tales, Told by the 'Aunties,'" collected from original sources by Mary A. Owen; and "A Washington Symphony," a society story by Mrs. William Lamont Wheeler. In the branches of science and religion they will issue "The Philosophy of Individuality, or, the one and the many," by Antoinette Brown Blackwell; "The Gospel and Its Earliest Interpretations," a study of the teaching of Jesus and its doctrinal transformations in the New Testament, by Dr. Orello Cone; "Dogmatic Christianity," a discussion between an archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church and the Hon. Wm. Dearing Harden; "The Origin and Growth of the Bible, and Its Place Among the Sacred Books of the World," by Jabez Thomas Sunderland, author of "What Is the Bible?"; "Vertebrate Embryology," by Dr. A. Milnes Marshall, professor of zoölogy in Owens College, England, and C. H. Hurst, demonstrator of zoölogy in Owens College; and "A Junior Course in Practical Zoölogy," by the same authors.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (12mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

The plan of this monograph is foreshadowed in its title; it does not claim to trace the genesis and evolution of existing assemblies, nor—deeply interesting and informing as the task would be—can the labor of a detailed analysis and commentary on all modern legislatures fall within its scope. It seeks rather to set in array the principal phenomena of such assemblies, and from the data furnished to draw the more striking and essential lessons.

Phila., Boericke & Tafel, 1898. c. 4-884 p. O. cl., net, $2.50.

This treatise has been practically rewritten and considerably enlarged. Everything that Dr. Schüssler himself has written up to the publication of his latest, the eighteenth edition of his Abgekürzte Therapie, is included, together with much clinical experience by the homœopathic profession, account of which is scattered throughout journals and society transactions.

Boles, H. M. Prisoners and paupers: a study of the abnormal increase of criminals and the public burden of pauperism in the United States: the causes and remedies. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1898. c. 12+817 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

The views expressed in this study by Mr. Boles were obtained in the pursuance of his duty as a member of the State Board of Public Charities of Pennsylvania, which led him yearly to visit the four hundred and forty-six charitable, reformatory and penal institutions of the State. He thinks we are too sentimental regarding our paupers and criminals—that we nurse and cherish types that, left to themselves, would go down in the battle of life; he suggests radical changes in treatment and a "positive remedy" for the extinction of these classes. The volume is full of valuable facts and statistics on the many causes of the problems discussed, such as intemperance, immigration, etc.

Bonney, G. E. Electrical experiments: a manual of instructive amusement. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., [1898.] 18+252 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

Shows how induction-coils and other electrical apparatus can be used for instructive amusement; gives directions also for making instruments at home from materials obtained at little cost, commencing with the common horseshoe magnet.

Bottoms, S. R. How to manage the dynamo: a handbook for ship engineers, electric-light engineers and electro-platers. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. c. '92. 2-63 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

Intended specially for the use of those who, being thoroughly good engineers and capable of managing ship or land engines, find themselves suddenly called upon to undertake the management of the dynamo of an electric-light or electro-plating installation. The instructions given apply more particularly to the dynamo, its management, its defects and their remedies. No explanations are made of the theoretical or constructional details. A table of definitions is given at the end of the book.

In the little town of Verbecara in Calabria there is a family who have worn for many generations the name of Dei Figli del Re—"The children of the king." Whether a king had founded their race is not now known, but they were considered something above ordinary mortals. Two brothers, Ruggiero and Sebastiano, the present descendants of this family, are the heroes. Ill-treatment forced them to run away from Verbecara when boys, and after many years of adventure on the sea they came to Sorrento one summer, and now sail the pleasure-boats for visitors. Here the chief episode of the story takes place. It relates to Ruggiero's love for the Signorina Beatrice, a beautiful heiress, whose mother is trying to obtain rank for her by marrying her to the Count of San Miniato, a libertine and a gambler.

- Ferrier, Susan Edmonstone. Marriage: a novel. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 2 v., 4+844; 3+824 p. S. hf. rus., $2.50.
Miss Ferrier died in Edinburgh in November of 1854. Her three novels, "Marriage," "The Inheritance" and "Destiny," portray with a clever, satirical pen the humorous side of Scotch social life; through them she has painted some indelible portraits of the men and women of her time, doing for Scotland what Jane Austen and Maria Edgeworth did for England and Ireland. The present edition of her works is unabridged, being the first reprint from the original editions, and contains all omitted matter in other reprints. The volumes are uniform with the edition of Jane Austen, published by Roberts Bros., and each contains a frontispiece in photogravure from designs by Frank T. Merrill. The first volume opens with an article on "Miss Ferrier's novels," reprinted from Temple Bar of Nov., 1875, and a paper reprinted from the same magazine for Feb., 1874, entitled "Recollections of visits to Ashestiel and Abbotsford," by Miss Ferrier.

A detective story. The incidents take place in New York City and along the Hudson above Dobbs Ferry. A celebrated lawyer whose daughter is supposed to be entitled to the Dugdale millions is not satisfied that the direct heir has been sufficiently sought after. He employs his confidential clerk to make investigations into old records and the result is skilfully kept as a final surprise.

Keeling, Elsa d'Esterre. Orchardscroft: the story of an artist. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 5+310 p. D. cl., $1.

The story opens in a London tenement. A dying woman abandoned by her husband leaves her baby girl to the care of her equally poor neighbors. Moved by jealousy, the woman to whom the child is confided abandons it at the gate of a country house, Orchardscroft. The owners adopt the little girl. Here the rest of the story is played out. The only son of the poor Londoners becomes an artist and his love for the girl whom he thinks so much above himself is gracefully and sympathetically told.
